G. O. P. UPHOLDS RUM TAXES AS SCHOOLS' HELP

Halts Horner Effort on Gas Levy.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—A political battle with the Republican minority holding the whip hand waxed hotter and hotter today over the school bills pending before the legislature.

The Schnackenberg bill, providing for diversion of state liquor taxes to the common school fund, withstood the shock despite Gov. Horner's open disapproval of that legislation.

In the lower house an attempted roll call to reconsider the Schnackenberg measure was withdrawn by Democratic leaders when the tally fell far short of the required constitutional majority of 77 votes. The bill, sponsored by Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], minority leader, had passed the house yesterday.

For Aid from Sales Tax.

In the senate seven Republicans introduced a bill that would place the first $2,500,000 of sales tax collections in the state's general revenue fund each month and then pour the rest of the money into the school fund.

Since the outset of this special session Gov. Horner has held steadily that neither the liquor nor the sales tax could be tapped for the schools. During a lull in the storm the senate passed the so-called "pegged levy" measure, the final bill of seven sponsored by the Chicago board of education, by a vote of 36 to 0. Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] pushed the bill toward passage with the explanation that it was necessary if the Chicago schools were to continue to function.

Results of the Bill.

Richard S. Folsom, attorney for the Chicago school board, expressed his elation at the action. By pegging the 1933 educational fund levy at an arbitrary $44,000,000 and the 1934 levy at $43,000,000, instead of using the existing tax rates, the board will obtain an additional estimated $8,500,000 in revenue, according to Folsom.

Since the lower house had passed the "pegged levy" bill last week only the governor's signature is needed for its final enactment.

The first definite move of the administration toward school legislation was made early today with the introduction of a bill by Representative Thomas P. Sinnett [Dem., Rock Island], majority leader in the house. The bill would divert two-thirds of the city's share and one-third of the county's share of the gasoline tax to the common school fund.

Sees Millions in "Gas" Tax.

Sinnett contended that between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 would be added to the fund by this legislation. The annual appropriation, under the present law, is $10,500,000, and Chicago receives $3,200,000 of this amount.

"You are taking a part of the city's and a part of the county's gas tax," asked Representative Schnackenberg, "and not touching the state's share?" (Each of the three governments at present receives 1 cent of the tax of 3 cents a gallon.)

"That is true," replied Sinnett.

"Well, the state administration is certainly generous," snapped Schnackenberg.

There will be a hearing on the bill tomorrow morning and Mayor Kelly of Chicago is said to oppose it.

Clash Over Proposed Bill.

The debate on school legislation in the lower house was held over the motion of Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago] to reconsider the Schnackenberg bill.

Schnackenberg obtained the floor to oppose that.

"Passage of this bill marked an important milestone toward saving the schools in this crisis," said Schnackenberg. "Instead of forging ahead with this victory some of the gentlemen want to retreat. The governor has expressed his sympathy for the schools, has nearly shed tears, but he doesn't want to give up any state funds for them."

Schnackenberg then began to poke fun at the administration position, accompanied with gales of laughter from his Republican colleagues.

"It would be like my walking down the street with Representative Sol Roderick" [Rep., Chicago], said Schnackenberg. "We would be approached by a man asking if we could spare a dime. I would express my most heartfelt sympathy and then turn to my friend and say, 'Sol, give him a dime.'"

"The liquor tax won't be any smaller in the school fund than in the state treasury," said Rep. Leroy M. Green [Rep., Rockford].

"Sinnett's argument is that it is

DOZEN RESCUED IN FIRE; SMOKE OVERCOMES 11

Four children, one adult resident, and six firemen were overcome by smoke last night when fire of unknown origin attacked a large apartment building at 1314-16 George street. A dozen others were carried to safety down ladders and about 15 of the 50 families who occupy the building were forced to the street. The flames were confined to one section of the three story structure and most of the damage resulted from smoke.

Peter Umbricht, a tenant, was found unconscious in his flat after the flames had been extinguished. He was taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital. The children overcome were Edward, Mary, Loretta, and Eileen Horan, 10, 8, 7, and 4 years old. Inhalator squads revived them and the girls were taken to the Children's Memorial hospital and Edward was taken to Augustana hospital. The six firemen were overcome while searching for a baby which they were told had been left in a burning flat. They were quickly revived and returned to work.

Damage of $25,000 was caused last night by a fire which swept through the three story factory building occupied by the Illinois Carpenter and Cabinet shop at 312 West Austin avenue.

Lady Boss of Mint Resigns Her Party Post

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint and Democratic national committeewoman from Wyoming, today resigned from the latter post because of the administration's drive to separate all party and government positions.

Mrs. Ross, who was also a vice chairman of the Democratic high command, becomes the fifth national committee member forced into a resignation by the administration's attitude.

Two prominent holdouts against the new policy, however, remained tonight. Postmaster General James A. Farley himself continues to be national committeeman from New York and head of the national committee, as well as postmaster general, but intends to quit his two party posts as soon as possible.

Julian Also Holds Out.

The other holdout is William A. Julian, treasurer of the United States and committeeman from Ohio. Asked tonight if he was considering resigning, he said he had "not considered such action."

Mrs. Ross, it is reported, resigned reluctantly. Her resignation followed by one day that of the other vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, Arthur F. Mullen of Nebraska. Besides Mrs. Ross and Mr. Mullen, the national members who have resigned are Frank Walker, former treasurer and now secretary of the emergency council; O. Max Gardiner, former committeeman from North Carolina, now practicing law here; and Robert Jackson, former secretary of the committee and committeeman from New Hampshire, now practicing law here.

President Roosevelt has said that national committeemen should not practice law before government departments or hold party and government positions at the same time. A law to bar such practices is being drafted with the support of the White House.

Reveal Her Letter.

In the course of her letter of resignation Mrs. Ross said:

"I do not know how I could, even if I chose to do so, relate my connection with the Democratic national committee to the mint service in such a way as to serve my own advantage or that of any other person. In order, however, to avoid even an appearance of conflicting interests where there are concerned my public service and my identity with the organization of my party I tender to you my resignation from the Democratic national committee, and state for your information that I have sent to Wyoming my resignation as national committeewoman from that state."

MULISH SOOKY DEFIES POLICE AND STREET CAR

A large dun colored mule answering to the name of Sooky when it answers at all strolled yesterday from the William P. Sheppard Cartage company barn at 1412 Altgeld street and planted himself on the car tracks at Cortland street and Elston avenue.

The conductor and the motorman, finding that neither threats, cajoling nor pushing would clear up the traffic situation, summoned police. Sergts. Edward Fureck and John Walsh from the Shakespeare avenue station responded in an automobile. By this time Sooky was quite mulish, determined not to move at all.

"You push from behind," said Fureck to the motorman, "and we'll turn our car sideways and shove this animal clear away."

Sooky proved equal to the emergency. First he kicked out the glass in front of the street car. Then he kicked out the headlights of the automobile. Then he stood still and gave another mule laugh. Half an hour later, having attached a rope to Sooky and commandeered the help of the neighborhood, the policemen got the animal dragged over to a filling station. There his owners got him back.

INJURED TRAPPER USES WAR CODE TO CALL HELP BY AIR

TELEGRAPH CREEK, B. C., March 7.—(AP)—Using a telegraph code he learned in the world war, William Scott, a trapper, brought an airplane party to his relief and was recovering in a hospital here today from loss of blood resulting from an injured foot.

Scott cut his foot while chopping firewood near his cabin in northern British Columbia. Painfully he made his way through rain and slush to a refuge cabin five miles distant on the Yukon telegraph line, where he sent out his appeal for help.

Relief parties were unable to make their way through 100 miles of rain-washed snows. Finally Pilot F. R. Barr flew from Atlin, B. C., rescued Scott and brought him here yesterday.

BACHELOR, 103, IS STILL CHAMP OF SINGLE LIFE

St. Paul, March 7.—(AP)—Dan Eyre, who today completed 103 years of bachelorhood, is not opposed to marriage.

He said so today as he celebrated his birthday by smoking two cigars—ordinarily his quota is one—and admired a birthday cake nearly hidden by a forest of candles.

"If I had my life to live over again," he asserted, "I would still be a bachelor, but I would be the last to discourage young men who want to marry."

A native of England, Eyre came to Hastings, Minn., as a young man.

PRESIDENT ASKS RETURN TO CIVIL AIR MAIL FLYING

Seeks Bars Against Former Evils.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—A basis for restoring the air mail to commercial operators was laid down by President Roosevelt today and will be embodied in legislation to be started through congress not later than next week.

In identical letters to Chairman Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] of the senate postoffice committee, Chairman James M. Mead [Dem., N. Y.] of the house postal committee, and Chairman Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] of the special senate committee investigating air mail, the President outlined a plan calling for new temporary contracts and the eventual regulation of air mail routes and rates by the interstate commerce commission.

Reveals New Control Policy.

The announcement of this ultimate goal—regulation by the I. C. C.—makes the administration plan more than an attempt to rebuild the service which was wiped out of existence last Feb. 9, when Postmaster General Farley canceled all domestic air mail contracts on the ground that they were the fruit of collusion and fraud.

Passage of the legislation suggested by the President would mark the first actual step toward bringing under federal interstate regulation one of the services—air, bus, and truck, and waterways—competing with the railroads.

The new policy will be for contracts to be let for not more than three years "on full, open and fair competitive bidding, with a limitation of the rates of compensation above which no contract will be awarded."

The legislation carrying the program into effect, Senator McKellar indicated, will fix the limit of compensation mentioned by the President far below the prevailing 40 cents per mile. The figure, the senator said, may be as low as 25 cents.

Six months before the three year contract expires, according to President Roosevelt's suggestion, the question of the public convenience and necessity of the various routes and the question of maximum rate of pay would be submitted to the I. C. C. Under this plan transportation of the mails by air would be placed under substantially the same regulation as that of the railroads.

New Charges Bared.

The President's letter reached the capitol while the halls of congress were sounding to new charges and new disclosures relating to the air mail inquiry.

On the senate floor Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.] was charging that evidence that J. P. Morgan & Co. had sold 4,500 shares of United Aircraft stock shortly before the cancelation of the contracts proved that "the international bankers" had advance knowledge of what was about to take place.

"Evidently," he said, "the money changers have not yet been driven out of the temple."

Before the Black committee of investigation, Paul Henderson, vice president of the United Aircraft, was testifying that Lehr Fess, son of Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep. O.], one of the most ardent defenders of the canceled contracts, had been hired by his company to lobby for passage of the McNary-Waters air mil act in 1930. Two days of activity earned the younger Fess between $3,000 and $5,000 pay, the witness said.

Safeguards designed to correct conditions developed by the Black committee's inquiry were included in the President's program.

Text of President's Letter.

The President's letter follows:

"Our domestic air mail contracts have been canceled. The army air corps is temporarily carrying the air mail. I believe we should make new contracts with commercial air carriers as soon as possible to carry the greater part of our air mail.

"To protect the public interest and to provide for new contracts on a basis of honest payment for honest service, I suggest new legislation on this subject.

"We must avoid the evils of the past and at the same time encourage the sound development of the aviation industry.

"I suggest that new air mail contracts be let for a period not exceeding three years on full, open and fair competitive bidding, with a limitation of the rate of compensation above which no contract will be awarded.

"Any combinations, agreements, or

"YOU AIN'T SEEN NOTHIN' YET"—GEN. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—Striking assertions from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's speech of tonight follow:

"Of course we can't succeed without public support of what we are trying to do and I want to warn noncompliers that we are not only going out to revive public sentiment for the Blue Eagle but, under specific orders from the President, we are reorganizing to enforce the penal sections of the act. Regardless of publicity I have been too gentle. . . . 'You ain't seen nothin' yet.'"

"Throughout that whole difficult and trying period when, in panic and under the urge of extremists, the wreck of our system was threatened, the strong, sane, moderate mind that upheld you was that of the President."

"You will all remember the bed of the Procrustean bandit. If you weren't long enough to fill it you were stretched. If you were too long they cut off part of you. Nobody in this administration has ever advocated that."

"There are some industries that couldn't do what I tentatively suggested about wages and hours. There are some where business is so little that, if they did adopt the rule, it wouldn't make any difference to employment. But there are many that obviously can—and ought to—meet the suggestion to work on a 10 per cent decrease in hours per week and a 10 per cent increase in hourly wages."

"We have had a more reasoning, complete, and intelligent understanding of policy from labor than from anybody else."

"I think this is war and that there can be only one leader in a war. I came here against every inclination to help Franklin Roosevelt because I love him and think he is right. If, in my own judgment, my blunders get so gross that they are hurting him, I will get out."

"There has been much talk of economic planning. But nothing like it has ever happened in the history of the world. It is as important as the council of Nicea or the treaty of Verdun."

"We have got to accord labor the rights guaranteed by this act. There is no law prohibiting a company union as such if there is no interposition whatever by employers, and if the men freely choose it. But 99 times out of 100 you and I know that this is not the case. Let's not kid ourselves. Let us act before congress acts. Let us obey the law."

"The essence of the New Deal is public knowledge of methods and results. A man may be entitled to a $100,000 salary from a corporation in which labor, consumers, and stockholders are all interested. But he ought not to object to having everybody know about it. That is the only bitter pill to swallow. As far as I am concerned, I am willing to swallow it. I have made more than that in my time, and [with my abundant faith in what is being done here] I'll bet I will make it again. But in order to accomplish such blessed events let's get together—let's pull together—let's play the game!"

Mouse Puts Whole Town of Princeton, Ill., in Darkness

Princeton, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—A mouse paid with its life for plunging Princeton into darkness for several hours this week. It was found dead on the main switch posts by Earl B. Angle, city engineer. The front feet were on one post and the hind feet on the other post, making a complete short circuit. The mouse cost the city $150, the price of a new switch.

INDUSTRY MUST BACK NEW PLAN, IS ULTIMATUM

Sessions Set Today; Code Eagle Next.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Half defensively, half defiantly, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, chief of the NRA, flung in the teeth of American business captains tonight a new program of tightening the regimentation of business enterprise under government control, including increased wages and reduced working hours.

Addressing 4,500 members of industrial and commercial code authorities at the conclusion of their sessions in Constitution hall, the redoubtable general heralded a forthcoming Presidential edict designed to bolster up the NRA, or, as he put it, "to revive public sentiment for the Blue Eagle," which he thus for the first time admitted to be waning.

Penalties Threatened.

Interwoven with the general's blustering remarks were hints of a recently matured scheme for a more daring cracking down on recalcitrants and chiselers than hitherto attempted—all under the ægis of a new bird to be known as the Code Eagle.

With beads of perspiration standing out on his glowing features, the general served notice of what is to come in these words:

"Of course, we can't succeed without public support of what we are trying to do and I want to warn noncompliers that we are not only going out to revive public sentiment for the Blue Eagle but under specific orders from the President we are reorganizing to enforce the penal sections of the act. Regardless of publicity I have been too gentle. We deliberately delayed action because of misunderstandings, but—if I may lapse into the vernacular—'you ain't seen nothin' yet.'"

President Approves.

The President, said Gen. Johnson, has given approval to the new plan for putting teeth in the NRA. Earlier in the day the President himself had given in earnest that he contemplates no retreat from the full implications of industrial regimentation under government supervision. He pronounced it a good guess that he will ask congress to extend the time limit on the licensing provisions of the NRA.

The act gives authority to the President to place any industry under license and to revoke the license of any concern in the industry, thereby compelling it to shut down. This authority to license expires next June under the terms of the recovery act which granted it for one year only, whereas the life of the act was limited to two years.

Holds Powerful Weapon.

The President has never invoked the licensing authority and it is widely believed that he has refrained from doing so because of the doubtful constitutionality of the provision. He apparently regards the provision, however, as a powerful weapon which he may desire to use at some future time for the disciplining of one or more industries.

After giving vent to many horrendous hints of terrors to come for those who fail to get into step with the New Deal, the general wound up with an optimistic note. A $100,000 corporation salary is not inconsistent with the New Deal, the general asserted, and he himself expects to earn that much again.

"We are going to have no super-government of industry," he said. "The balanced scheme of labor, industry, consumer's representation will be maintained. The goldfish bowl will still be open. Every critic will be invited in the future [as in the past] to come in and tell us how to do it better. Nobody has any occasion to worry as long as he is straight.

New Deal Is Public Knowledge.

"Industry is intrinsically straight. The essence of the New Deal is public knowledge of methods and results. A man may be entitled to a 100 thousand dollar salary from a corporation in which labor, consumers and stockholders are all interested. But he ought not to object to having everybody know about it. That is the only bitter pill to swallow. As far as I am concerned, I am willing to swallow it. I have made more than that in my time and [with my abundant faith in what is being done here] I'll bet I will make it again.

"But in order to accomplish such blessed events, let's get together—let's pull together—let's play the game."

Gen. Johnson lost no time in launching the new program. He called for the appointment of two committees —one representing the capital goods industries and the other the consumers good industries—to meet with him tomorrow to map the course of action.

New Hour-Pay Plan.

These committees will be called on to formulate a scheme for a ten per cent increase in wages and ten per cent decrease of hours of labor for such industries as can bear this additional burden and to put into effect other code revisions suggested by the 12 weaknesses in the system pointed out by Gen. Johnson in his address to the sessions of critics last week.

When this program shall have been completed the President, according to the procedure outlined by Gen. Johnson tonight, will proclaim it in an executive order binding upon business enterprise so far brought under codes of fair competition.

When Gen. Johnson said "You ain't seen nothin' yet" he is understood to have had in mind particularly the advent of the code eagle which is to supplant the Blue Eagle. The Code Eagle is to be more terrible than the Bandersnatch.

Code Eagle Coming.

No one is to be permitted to sell or to buy from any person or concern that does not sport the Code Eagle. Only concerns that pay their dues to their trade associations will be given Code Eagles. And Code Eagles may be taken away by the labor board and other NRA authorities.

To all doubters of the effectiveness and wisdom of NRA, Gen. Johnson bade defiance. He had a department store owner in mind when he said:

"Now, in respect of this 'pitiful' affection of mine for the Blue Eagle, may I say to my good friend—[and I hate to say it, because he has done much to carry forward the President's program as any man] that, if we took away his blue eagle for some non-compliance [which would never happen] his great department store would collapse like a row of dominoes in a fortnight for lack of patronage and, dear friend, don't advise anybody to start trifling with that bird.

One Leader in War.

"I would like to express this thought even though it may not seem pertinent. It arises from the suggestion that the Blue Eagle is a personal symbol. I admit that I rather favor him. But I have neither political nor personal ambition.

"I am a soldier by training and inclination. I think this is war and that there can be only one leader in a war. I came here against every inclination to help Franklin Roosevelt because I love him and think he is right.

"If, in my own judgment, my blunders get so gross that they are hurting him, I will get out. Or if I am too slow to see that I have done this and he implies it, I will get out. But in either event, I will applaud the act that ousts me and stand by my chief no matter what happens. Except for his encouragement I would have gone long ago.

In "For the Duration."

"In the meantime, nobody need speculate on getting me out or affecting my course of conduct by threats. I am in 'for the duration,' and if my manner is politically unorthodox, so is this job 'unorthodox.' We will carry on to the end."

The general began with a recital of the origin of the NRA. He told how the President had "turned over to American industry what it had clamored for many years—industrial self government."

"Don't forget that," roared Johnson. "Don't let any of these propagandists divert you from the strength behind our system. Don't overlook the President."

Seeks Consistent Policy.

Getting down to cases the general said as the result of two weeks of invited criticism the administration expects to arrive at a consistent policy.

"Only one thing," rasped Johnson, "was cut-and-dried in advance and I am prepared to defend that conclusion on purely professional grounds to the discomfiture of any opponent—that, in this emergency and until payrolls catch up with employment—it is proper to encourage increased wages and reduced hours per week.

"But you will all remember the bed of the Procrustean bandit. If you weren't long enough to fill it you were stretched. If you were too long, they cut off part of you. Nobody in this administration has ever advocated that. The President especially repudiated those ideas.

Cites Exceptions.

"There are some industries that couldn't do what I tentatively suggested about wages and hours. There are some where business is so little that, if they did adopt the rule, it wouldn't make any difference to employment.

But there are many that obviously can—and ought to—meet the suggestion to work on a 10 per cent decrease in hours per week and ten per cent increase in hourly wages. The President expressly said that he favored resiliency in any such rule. We all know that some industries cannot do this. We know that in some it would be ineffective. But we know that in many there is no excuse for not doing it."

Praises Labor's Stand.

Referring to objections voiced in a letter by the machinery code and numerous other groups while he was dictating his speech the NRA chieftain added:

"The thought has been presented by one of our best friends that to announce this rule and then invite proof of exceptions is wring because it might mislead labor into thinking that the rule applies to all employment.

"Without drawing invidious distinction—may I say that this solicitude about labor's lack of understanding is unwarranted. We have had a more reasoning, complete, and intelligent understanding of policy from labor than from anybody else. I can assure my industrial friends that labor understands exactly what we mean when we say that this rule will not apply to all industries but only to those to which we find that it is applicable."

Gen. Johnson would not admit that either the come-one, come-all critics last week or the code authorities this week had suggested any improvement of NRA he hadn't already thought of.

Proposed 12 Code Points.

"At the beginning of public hearings," he said, "I proposed twelve heads of code improvement—and even that was said to be a smart crack. The conferences have emphasized and defined those twelve points, but they have added no new points.

"Merely for an administrative reason, our proposal is [when all the evidence is digested and a conclusion reached] that all the final suggestions be announced as a presidential ruling, governing all codes, and that a definite period be stated during which any industry, or company, which finds reasons why it can not comply, shall be given an opportunity to present those reasons and why [as to that industry—or company within an industry] there should be modification, stay or exemption.

"I must emphasize that this applies to all twelve points and not merely to the question of hours and wages. The latter is only one of twelve points and all will be treated on the same formula.

Disappointed at Sessions.

"I will say frankly that I have been disappointed. Perhaps I expected too much. I thought you would bring us some plan. I think that there are still possibilities. I believe that, on a plan that I shall later present to you, we will still get results."

Most of the criticism of NRA voiced in the last fortnight the general dismissed as political.

"It is fair to say," he went on, "that our people in these hearings demonstrated that they are squarely and almost unanimously behind the recovery act, just as you demonstrate by your presence at this convention that industry also is squarely and almost unanimously behind that act.

Asked Only Complaints.

"Remember that, to the complaint roundup of last week, we did not invite those who APPROVE of what has been done: We invited only those who COMPLAIN on what has been done. Considering that 125,000,000 people were affected and that only a few heads of complaint were filed and that nearly all of these were accompanied by unqualified endorsement of the general principle of NRA we are encouraged if not satisfied. In such a great experiment as this, especially as long as depression threatens, we can never feel satisfied.

"Now my only disappointment about this meeting is that discussion has not been more free. It is not a very satisfactory demonstration that American industry has anything to offer except objection. We have to plan our way out of this mud hole and that must be done by hard headed business men and not by academicians."

Then the general went into his reasons for treating capital goods industries differently from consumers goods industries in the matter of raising wages and reducing hours.

"The question of reabsorption of the unemployed in the industries has to be treated in different ways for different industries," he said.

"In particular, there are two outstanding classifications of industry which present strikingly different problems, the consumers goods industries and the producers or capital goods industries. In the latter class there has been, as you all know, a great lag in the revival as compared with the consumers goods industries, and by far the larger part of those unemployed today are persons who were formerly attached to the capital goods industries and expect reemployment there.

Asks Industries Aid.

"There are many more things to be discussed: How are we going to make jobs by production and consumption? How are we going to activate the capital goods industries? What more can we do than we have done?

"On this subject we invite your participation in finding a solution for this problem which we have stated so simply. We shall invite a committee selected by you from the capital goods industries to work with the administration and to report to the President shortly on how we can create jobs in some way other than any yet suggested.

"May I ask that the capital goods industries code authorities and committees convene tomorrow morning at 10 a. m. in the auditorium of the department of commerce under the chairmanship of Mr. Houston of the Baldwin Locomotive committee to select a committee of 12 to confer with me at noon tomorow.

Meeting Called Today.

"May I also ask that all code authorities and committees of consumers' goods industries convene tomorrow at 10 a. m. under the chairmanship of Mr. George Sloan at Memorial hall, D. A. R. building, to select a committee of 12 to confer with me at 4 p. m.

"At the close of this meeting Mr. Leon Henderson will state the code authorities that should attend these meetings. We shall arrive at no conclusion without thorough discussion with both of these committees.

"We have got to accord labor the rights guaranteed by this act. There is no law prohibiting a company union as such if there is no interposition whatever by employers and if the men freely choose it. But 99 times out of 100 you and I know that this is not the case. Let's not kid ourselves. Let us act before congress acts. Let us obey the law.

Let Men Express Choice.

"Call in Senator Wagner's board. Let your men express their choice under those public auspices from which no question can arise. Let's get this troublesome questioned settled promptly and for all time. We know something about what is toward in this country—the worst epidemic of strikes in our history. Why suffer it? Here is a way out.

"Play the game. Submit to the law and get it over quickly. I want to tell you this for your comfort. I know your problems. I would rather deal with Bill Green, John Lewis, Ed McGrady, Mike MacDonough, George Berry, and a host of others I could name than with any Frankenstein that you may build up under the guise of a company union.

Quick Way to Peace.

"In fact—take it from me and a wealth of experience—their interests are your interests, and under the law and in this modern day it is the best and quickest way to economic peace. Here is one cloud that we can erase from our horizon with one stroke. Let's do it."

During the day the President issued an executive order adding a new combination of letters to the alphabetical soup, the "NRRB" [national recovery review board], dedicated to the protection of little business from the oppression of big business. This is the outcome of the charges made by Senators Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.] and William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] that small business enterprises are being pushed to the wall by the operation of NRA codes dominated by big business.

The board appointed by the President is headed by Clarence S. Darrow, Chicago's famous Socialist lawyer. The other members are W. W. Neal, Fred

TRACE ANCESTRY OF BLUE EAGLE; FINDS ITS GRANDPA IN GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 7.—Evidence was submitted here today that the eagle in the American NRA emblem isn't American at all—it's German. The "iron-fisted look" of the evidence, moreover, indicates that the Blue Eagle's ancestors first achieved prominence in the Bismarckian era in Germany.

It seems that observation here which have often been made, that "the NRA emblem doesn't look American," were inspired, presumably, by its menacing dictatorish appearance. His curiosity stirred by such talk, some smart fellow started an investigation.

Consequently he came upon what he suggests is the NRA bird's grandfather. It is the eagle in emblem of the Verein Deutscher Maschinenbau-Anstalten—VDMA, which, translated, is the German Machinery Manufacturers' association. And the VDMA was organized years ago. Furthermore, it is claimed the VDMA eagle must be given credit, too, for originating the cogwheel idea.

P. Mann Sr., John F. Sinclair, Samuel C. Henry, and W. O. Thompson. The order prescribes the following duties and functions of the board:

"1. To ascertain and report to the President whether any code or codes of fair competition approved under the authority of Title I of the national industrial recovery act are designed to promote monopolies or to eliminate or oppress small enterprises or operate to discriminate against them, or will permit monopolies or monopolistic practices, and, if it finds in the affirmative, to specify in its reports wherein such results follow from the adoption and operation of any such code or codes.

"2. To recommend to the President such changes in any approved code or codes as, in the opinion of the board, will rectify or eliminate such results.

$25 a Day and Expenses.

"The members of said board shall receive as compensation for their services $25 per day for the time they are engaged, respectively, in the performance of their duties, together with such expenses as may be allowed by law to officers and employés of the regular establishments of the government, and the said board may, without regard to the provisions of the civil service laws or the classification act of 1923, as amended, or the provisions of executive order No. 6440, as amended, appoint and fix the compensation and prescribe the duties of such clerical, technical, and legal personnel as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this order.

"The facilities and records of the national administration shall be available to the board whenever required in connection with the performance of its duties."

Say Codes Are Violated.

Numerous speakers at the sessions of the code authorities during the day asserted that there is widespread nonobservance of the codes and that enforcement of the codes would increase employment to a greater extent than reducing maximum hours of labor.

"We believe the first step to be taken to increase employment is to insist upon compliance with the present hours of labor provisions," said Arthur D. O'Shea of the National Retail Code authority.

"I am sorry I am unable to give even an estimate of the numbers this would put to work, but I know you will agree with me that it would be substantial.

"Clarification and instruction are necessary in cases of violations through ignorance, but where violations are willful, prompt prosecution is necessary.

"Another advantage of code compliance would be the popularizing of this program. Nothing weakens the movement so much as nonenforcement.

"Until compliance is nearly 100 per cent and added reduction of hours would place greater burdens on those who comply and give greater advantages to those who evade.

"In considering changes, due thought should be given to results of shortening hours affecting consumption. Shorter hours in practically all cases mean higher prices and the immediate results of higher prices are: [a] increased sales resistance, [b] curtailed production, [c] reduction in employment. We believe that shorter hours would be a dangerous move at the present time."

BELGIAN PREMIER HINTS VERSAILLES PACT IS "DEAD"

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BRUSSELS, March 7.—A declaration which is interpreted by newspapers as admitting the hopelessness of enforcing the Versailles treaty was made in the senate yesterday by Count de Broqueville, Belgian premier. He referred particularly to the question of preventing German rearmament.

He said he saw only two ways to force Germany to respect its obligations—a preventive war or to invoke article 213 of the Versailles treaty, which permits the league of nations council by a majority vote to order an investigation. He said Great Britain and Italy, at least, among the great powers, would refuse to support league action.

Discussing the possibility of a preventive war, Count de Broqueville said:

"Such a remedy would be worse than the evil it tried to correct. No government dreams of it, neither France nor any other. I refuse to launch our country on such an adventure."

Therefore, he said, the best thing would be to seek an armament convention "calling for minimum sacrifices and maximum guarantees."

BEGIN HEARING OF WARD COMMITTEE CONTESTS TODAY

Hearing of contests filed against Democratic and Republican candidates for ward committeemen will be begun before the election board today. They are expected to continue all week.

When the deadline excitement of Tuesday night died down it was found that contests had been filed against only 34 Republicans and 49 Democrats. Cornelius J. Harrington, counsel for the Democratic county committee, denied rumors that he acted for the organization in about twenty contests which he filed. In each instance, he said, his services were retained by the contestant and some of his clients are Republicans.

It was learned that a Democratic proposal to head the ballot list with the office of county treasurer because they consider their candidate for that post County Clerk Sweitzer, the head of their ticket, cannot be carried out. The statutes place candidates for sanitary trustee ahead of county candidates.

Harry F. Hamlin announced yesterday that, although one of his petitions for Republican committeeman of the 48th ward had been withdrawn, he had another on file and still is in the race. Several belated withdrawals were accepted during the day.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Met with Music and Song in Virgin Isles

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, March 7.—(AP)—Cheers and music greeted Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt this afternoon on her arrival from San Juan, Porto Rico.

A band played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," school children sang a song of welcome, and the "NRA Song," and 12 year old Elaine Brown stepped forward with roses as the President's wife and her party stepped from their airplane, the huge American clipper, flying boat of the Pan-American line.

A light rain fell as the party completed the flight from San Juan. So far the 1,258 mile over water jaunt from Florida has taken 13½ hours of flying time.

Helps Dedicate Building.

Immediately Mrs. Roosevelt plunged into the interests which brought her to this section—a study of economic and social conditions.

An automobile took her to the municipal hospital where, in a brief ceremony, a building was named "The Anna Eleanor building" in her honor.

Mrs. Roosevelt's first real speech of the trip was made to Virgin island residents.

"I am happy to greet you all and bring you the greeting of my husband, the President," she said, amid a roar of applause.

"He would have enjoyed very much the trip I have just had and will enjoy even more the one he hopes to make next summer to your very beautiful island.

Doesn't Mind the Rain.

"The rain does not mean so much to me as to you, because I am used to a great deal of rain and also snow."

"It seems very lovely to me here, even though the sun does not shine as usual.

"I cannot tell you how beautiful I think the colors are. The islands are very, very lovely. Thanks for this welcome in the rain, which must have been disconcerting to you."

The sun came out again as Mrs. Roosevelt motored to the government house, where she rested in anticipation of a tour of the island.

Mrs. Roosevelt will leave for St. Croix by air at 10 a. m. tomorrow and will return here at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, according to plans made tonight. Subsequently the party will proceed to San Juan for dinner tomorrow night with Gov. Blanton Winship.

The reception here was noisy and gay. Many natives went to the plane in boats despite the rain. Air line officials gave Mrs. Roosevelt a raincoat to protect her dainty white gown. As the visitors hurried to get out of the rain the populace shouted "Viva! Viva!" and staged a near riot in an attempt to see her.

Today's journey began at 6:30 a. m. from Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, where Mrs. Roosevelt and her friends spent last night. They flew to San Pedro de Macoris, Dominican Republic, and from there to San Juan, and then to St. Thomas. Mrs. Roosevelt conducted a short aerial survey of San Juan.

Tugwell Answers a Question.

As Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, who will make an economic and agricultural survey of Porto Rico, saw the first outlines of the island from the air, he was asked: "How can you hope to cure this age old island of poverty when the continent is in such straits?"

"This is home as much as the United States," he replied.

Among those who had gathered at the San Juan airport to greet the party were Gov. Winship, Martinez Nadal, president of the Porto Rico senate; Garcia Mendez, speaker of the house; Mrs. Jean Whittemore, collecter of the port, and Maria Luisa Arcelay, the first woman member of the senate. A group representing agricultural interests welcomed Mr. Tugwell.

Mrs. Roosevelt kissed her old friend, Mrs. James Bourne, wife of the relief administrator.

DISTILLED SPIRIT INDUSTRY ADOPTS A BUSINESS CODE

Members of the distilled spirits rectifying industry at a sectional meeting held yesterday in connection with the national wine and liquor dealers' convention in the Hotel Sherman approved a proposed code of fair practices. A committee of twenty-one members to supervise its enforcement will be chosen at a meeting of the industry today.

Former Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria, now connected with a distilling firm, in a discussion before the association yesterday suggested that the government lower the tax on whisky imported from Canada from $5 to $2.50 a gallon. Such action, he said, would make much better blends possible. He urged that distillers and wholesalers try to prevent the return of the old saloon.

A wine tasting contest will be held in the hotel this afternoon, the point at issue being the relative merits of foreign and domestic wines. More than 100 bottles of wine will be tested. The tasters will be Peggy Hambleton, John Winterbotham Jr., Seymour Blair, Andrew Rebori, and William C. Boyden.

MAZE OF CLEWS LINKS KILLINGS OF 2 HOODLUMS

Two hoodlums were shot to death a few hours apart on the west side yesterday, and last night the police were working on a vague maze of clews that indicated there was some connection between the two shootings.

The first victim was "West Side" Frankie Pope, 38 years old, a vice monger who was involved in a variety of rackets. He was riddled with bullets by two mysterious gunmen who invaded his room at the Vernon hotel, 758 West Jackson boulevard, about 8 o'clock in the morning and shot him in a pistol battle.

Six hours later Daniel Losce, 54 years old, was shot to death while he sat smoking a cigaret in his automobile before the city water pipe extension office at 2252 South Ashland avenue. Losce had a police record dating back to 1922 and showing he had been arrested as a suspected murderer and mail robber. In his home at 3853 Lake Park avenue was found a small arsenal, which the police said was indicative of his current activity in the underworld.

Mail Robbery a Link.

The link by which police consolidated their inquiries and endeavored to learn if there was a common motive for the slayings was provided when it was learned that both Pope and Losce were connected in some way with the $133,000 Evergreen Park mail robbery of 1928.

Losce was once suspected of being a participant in the Evergreen Park robbery. Among Pope's effects were found papers which indicated he had been mulcting the relatives of imprisoned mail robbers and other convicts at Leavenworth penitentiary by promising to gain paroles. Pope's death was believed to be the result of his failure to keep those promises.

The Slaying of Pope.

Pope was shot ten times in the head and body. The two assassins, the police said, had met him several hours earlier in a saloon at 13 South Halsted street, and were quickly admitted to his hotel room when they called to kill him.

They appeared at the hotel at 8 a. m. and went to Pope's room after a brief talk with him on the house telephone. Five minutes later Clifford Mitchell, the hotel clerk, said he heard a succession of pistol shots. Just before the shooting a maid said she heard a woman in Pope's room cry out, "My God, don't do that!"

Assassins and Woman Flee.

While Mitchell was calling the police the assassins and the woman who had screamed disappeared. When the clerk and policemen entered the room Pope was dead. A large number of bullet holes in the walls led the police to believe that Pope had fired at his assailants. Two emptied pistols were found near his body.

Among Pope's papers the police found two lists of names of prisoners now in Leavenworth prison. Pope was released from this penitentiary last November after serving 18 months for violation of the prohibition act. Most important of the criminals named on the list were Virgil Litzinger, Johnny Flannery, Tommy Holden, and Francis Keating, who are serving sentences for the Evergreen Park mail robbery.

Find Number of Letters.

Another list, presumably of relatives of the convicts, was also found as were a number of letters which indicated that the writers desired to make appointments with Pope to discuss plans for winning the release of prisoners. The investigators also found a petition to President Roosevelt in which clemency was sought for James Sansone, convicted of a Toledo mail robbery.

Sansone's aunt, Mrs. Mary Iannuss, 1933 Taylor street, told the police: "Pope promised to do everything for everybody and never did anything."

Pope used the maiden name of his mother as his name, though he was born Ernest Mazzone. He was given the "West Side" label to distinguish him from the real Frankie Pope of the north side, formerly known as the "millionaire newsboy."

POLITICS CLOGS INDIANA POLICE, DIRECTOR SAYS

Indianapolis, Ind., March 7.—[Special.]—Unauthorized interference and politics must be divorced from the state police if that department is to become as effective as the people of Indiana have a right to expect, it was asserted here this afternoon by Al Feeney, state safety director.

Feeney, who played center on the University of Notre Dame football teams on which Knute Rockne was quarter back, asserted he was being hindered in his efforts to build up the state police force.

While outrages like the escape of Dillinger from Crown Point jail are disgusting, said Feeney, "they are not more obnoxious than any political setup which would tend to undermine my efforts to make the state police force an organization capable of dealing with gangsters efficiently."

Feeney asserted that before his régime the state police force was composed "mostly of generals, with very few privates, or forty-eight men and fourteen officers. We now have fifty-eight men and four officers."

Jury to Try Basil Banghart Is Chosen in Record Time

A jury qualified to impose the death penalty was completed in record time yesterday to try Basil Banghart, Touhy gangster, for the kidnaping of John Factor, wealthy speculator. The last eight jurors were speedily accepted attorneys had spent most of the day in reaching an agreement on the first panel of four. Judge Walter P. Steffen is presiding at the trial.

Two weeks ago three other members of the Touhy gang were convicted and sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary for the same crime. These defendants, who have started serving their terms in the state penitentiary, are Roger Touhy, Albert Kator, and Gus Schafer.

The state was preparing for their second trial—the first ended in a jury disagreement—when Banghart was arrested with another member of the gang, Isaac Costner, in Baltimore. Both were returned to Chicago, following their identification by Factor, and Costner turned state's evidence to clinch the state case against Touhy and his two co-defendants. Costner will also testify against Banghart.

Stewart Begins Cautiously.

The selection of a jury to try Banghart began slowly yesterday with Defense Attorney William Scott Stewart proceeding cautiously in his questioning of veniremen. The first panel of four jurymen was completed when Attorney Stewart did an about face in his attitude toward Frank Helander, 9231 South Laflin street, as a prospective juror.

Helander, an uncle of Municipal Judge William E. Helander, had been accepted by the state and tendered with the rest of the panel to the defense. Attorney Stewart challenged Helander without asking him a question. Then as Helander left the box and started for the door the defense attorney suddenly withdrew his challenge and recalled him to the box. After a few questions Attorney Stewart announced that the panel was acceptable.

Earlier in the day Judge Steffen overruled defense motions for a change of venue outside the county and for a continuance. After the judge had denied the motion for a change of venue on the ground that there is local prejudice against Banghart, Attorney Stewart demanded a list of prospective jurors.

Prosecutor Crowley Replies.

"I haven't received any request for such a list," Prosecutor Wilbert F. Crowley told the court. "Anyway, he could have obtained the list at any time at the clerk's office."

"I haven't a list of witnesses, either," the defense attorney countered.

"The witnesses are the same as those in the other trial," the prosecutor said. "Stewart not only has the list but knows what they will testify to."

Attorney Stewart then presented a lengthy affidavit in which he sought a continuance. The court denied the motion and the defense attorney returned to his request for a list of veniremen, witnesses, and added a demand for a copy of the indictment. All three requests were granted by the state.

Banghart, attired in the same brown suit that marked his previous court appearances, stood silent during the preliminary arguments, surrounded by a dozen armed policemen.

Factor to Testify.

Assurance that Factor, who was not in court yesterday, would be present to testify against Banghart was given by Attorney Franklyn R. Overmyer, attorney for the British crown. Attorney Overmyer is to appear today before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan on a motion for Factor's arrest for extradition to England. The attorney said that he would not object to a reasonable continuance to allow Factor to appear as a witness in the Banghart trial.

Factor has been ordered to England to stand trial on the charge of defrauding British investors of $7,000,000 in stock deals.

CHICAGO POLICE TO QUIZ LAMAR ON KIDNAP EFFORT

Rock Island, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Jack Lamar of Rock Island, who has been held in the Rock Island county jail since Feb. 24 for questioning in connection with the unsuccessful attempt to kidnap E. P. Adler, Davenport, Ia., publisher and banker, from the Morrison hotel in Chicago, will be detained through Saturday, said Police Magistrate John T. Bauer. It had been planned to release Lamar today unless more evidence was produced.

Lamar, charged with disorderly conduct by J. L. Winters, a department of justice agent, is held while Jack Lacy was questioned in the Cook county jail in Chicago as one of the would-be kidnapers.

Supt. Purvis of the Chicago branch of the division of investigation, United States department of justice, asked Francis J. Coyle, assistant state's attorney, today to have Lemar held until Saturday. Then Sergt. Kelly of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney's office will come from Chicago to talk to Lamar. The latter became involved in the investigation of the case when it was learned he was a friend of Fred Mayo of Birmingham, Ala., who killed himself in jail in Chicago after having confessed a part in the attempted kidnaping.

ANOTHER BOMBER CONFESSES; SIX NOW IN CUSTODY

CRIMINAL COURT.

Richard Nathaniel and Clarence Brant, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Additional evidence to strengthen the case against six alleged bombers who are now in custody was obtained yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney James Brown.

Alleged leaders in the bombings were Mrs. Sophie Svirsky, owner of a saloon at 669 West 18th street, and George Patris, secretary of the Restaurateurs of Illinois. Frank Currin and Harry Fitzel, two of the others, declared that Mrs. Svirsky and Patris hired them for bombings. Their statements were corroborated yesterday by a third prisoner, William [Bunny] Walters, 21 years old, 942 North Lawndale avenue, who had previously asserted his innocence. The sixth alleged member of the ring is John Eborich, 721 West 17th street, a hardware dealer who is said to have assisted in making the bombs.

To these last night was added John Poulos, owner of a restaurant at 3234 Southport avenue. His arrest, a confession by Walters that he performed one bombing for which he was paid only $5, and the seizure of Patris' records in his office at 6 North Clark street were listed as important steps by Mr. Brown.

Mrs. Svirsky was formally charged last night with being an accessory to bombing. During the day Judge Philip J. Finnegan set a hearing on writs of habeas corpus for h.. and Patris for 2 p. m. today.

In addition to the principals the police are holding two girls as witnesses. They are Miss Anna Pucik, 19 years old, 1808 South Halsted street, and Miss Fern Yates, 19 years old, 726 West 21st street, who are friends of Currin and Fitzel.

A bomb was exploded early today at the front door of Tony Panichi, 2136 De Kalb street, an unemployed tailor, causing damage of about $100. Panichi asserted he did not know the motive of the bombers.

INDIANA MOVES FOR OUSTER OF SHERIF HOLLEY

Draft Formal Charges in Dillinger Escape.

Indiana officials yesterday were reported to be drafting the necessary legal papers preparatory to a demand that Sherif Lillian Holley of Crown Point be removed from office for neglect of duty in permitting John Dillinger, murderer and bank robber, to escape from the Crown Point jail last Saturday morning.

Although they refused to be quoted, both Prosecutor Robert G. Estill of Lake county and Edward Barce, assistant attorney-general of Indiana, were said to be coöperating in the preparation of an information to be filed before Circuit Judge T. Joseph Sullivan of Lake county. The information, under the law, must be verified by a citizen and filed in the name of the state with the approval of either the prosecuting attorney or the attorney-general.

Evidences of Laxity.

The law provides that any county officer may be removed for neglect in the performance of duty. The ease with which Dillinger awed the jail guards with a wooden pistol and walked to freedom was held to be prima facie evidence of laxity in the jail but other evidence, indicating definite culpability of jail employes in connection with the escape, was hinted at.

It was reported that the investigation conducted by Estill and Barce has disclosed that the jail was manned largely by trusties, that certain deputies in the jail had past records, and that the diversity of duties assigned to various deputies produced confusion in the management of the jail under Mrs. Holley.

Deputy Sherif Ernest Blunk and Turnkey Sam Cahoon have already been charged with assisting in the escape and other arrests may follow, it was reported.

Philip Lutz Jr., Indiana attorney general, sent four additional investigators to Crown Point last night to aid in the state's investigation of the escape.

New Clews Every Hour.

"Every hour we get more information that leads us to believe that the delivery did not just happen, but was planned," Lutz was quoted as saying in Indianapolis. Lutz said he had sufficient information to discount the story of Deputy Blunk concerning the escape.

At Crown Point yesterday Mrs. Holley repeated her refusal to resign despite pressure from Democratic leaders in the county.

"I have finally turned fatalist," she sighed. "I tried so hard to make good, but I just couldn't make it. And I wanted to be the ideal woman sherif, too.

"Dillinger wasn't so tough. He just got the breaks. Blunk was a weakling. If Dillinger had confronted any one else he would never have got away.

"Just think. The automobile which Dillinger took had been repaired only ten minutes before he drove off in it. Something had been wrong with it and it had a habit of stopping after five or six miles. If he had taken it before it was repaired he would have got only five miles out of town."

Believe Dillinger Is Here.

It was learned yesterday that one of the guards locked up by Dillinger in his easy march to freedom was Matt Brown, 34 years old. Guard Brown, who was a county commissioner in Lake county thirty years ago, is said to be active for his age.

The Chicago police continued to believe yesterday that Dillinger is still in Chicago, or within a short distance of the city. It is their opinion that immediately on escaping he made a contact with his gangster friend, John Hamilton, the man who was with him when he stuck up the First National bank in East Chicago. In that robbery, the police have learned from underworld sources, Hamilton was shot in the right hand and the groin. His hand injury necessitated the amputation of a finger. He had already lost two, and thus he would have left only the thumb and little finger on the right hand.

U. S. Enters Search.

The theory of the investigators is that he was still hiding out near Chicago, and that Dillinger knew his hideout and rejoined him.

The federal authorities formally entered the search for the gunman when Melvin Purvis, head of the Chicago division of investigation of the department of justice, obtained from United States Commissioner E. K. Walker a warrant charging Dillinger and Herbert Youngblood, Negro murder suspect who escaped with him, with violation of the Dyer act, involving the transportation of a stolen automobile from one state to another. The move was admittedly merely a pretext upon which Purvis' agents could legally enter the search.

Police Plan Inquiry.

Capt. Timothy O'Neal, of the East Chicago police, president of the Fraternal Order of Policemen, yesterday went to Indianapolis and after a conference with Wayne Coy, secretary to Gov. McNutt, announced that permission had been granted his organization to make an independent investigation of the jail break. The investigation, the captain said, would be made by Attorney Martin Smith.

"We want to know," he asserted, "why there seems to be a disposition to shift all the blame onto one man, Cahoon."

Hilton O. Crouch, member of the Dillinger gang, yesterday began to serve a 20 year sentence at the state penitentiary at Michigan City. He confessed that he and Dillinger held up the Massachusetts Avenue State bank in Indianapolis last summer and obtained $31,000.

YOUTH KILLED BY TRAIN.

Pana, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—George R. Perkins, 21, of Walton, was killed last night at a crossing in Stewardson when his car was hit by a Nickle Plate freight train.

FINISH SELECTION OF JURY TO TRY PAL OF DILLINGER AT LIMA, O.

Lima, O., March 7.—(AP)—Harry Pierpont looked across a crowded counsel table tonight and saw three farmers, two toolmakers, two merchants, a real estate dealer, a beekeeper, two housewives, and a church janitor, his jury.

The ten men and two women who will hear charges that Pierpont murdered former Sherif Jess L. Sarber of Allen county last October in a raid on the county jail to liberate the greatly sought John Dillinger were sworn in at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

A special night session had been called when a special panel of sixty veniremen was exhausted late in the afternoon.

Judge E. E. Everett immediately gave minute instructions to the jurors as to their conduct and ordered them locked up in a hotel across the street from the courthouse. In the same hotel are the National Guard headquarters.

Pierpont kissed his mother good night when the judge sent the jury to bed, a deputy removed his leg chains and he walked back to the jail. His attorneys went over a little later to take measurements of the office in which the sherif was shot to death.

The new panel of 13 from which the last jurors were chosen was drawn in the courtroom immediately after the afternoon session and deputies hurried out to bring in the veniremen.

PRESIDENT ASKS RETURN TO CIVIL AIR MAIL FLYING

Seeks Safeguard Against Former Evils.

understandings intended to prevent free competitive bidding should be prevented, and such action should be a basis for cancelation of contracts.

"In order that the bidding shall be really competitive, I suggest that in determining the specifications for proper equipment only speed, useful load capacity and safety factors and safety devices should be considered.

"So that all companies desiring to qualify and bid may have an equal opportunity to prepare themselves for actual service I suggest that after the contract is awarded a period of not longer than six months shall be allowed the successful bidder to qualify under the terms of the law and the bid.

"It is my judgment that six months before expiration of the contracts made under competitive bidding the interstate commerce commission should pass upon the question of public convenience and necessity of air mail routes, and thereafter fix a maximum rate of air mail pay on the routes designated, subject, of course, to equipment specifications to be laid down.

Would Bar Interlocked Companies.

"I suggest that the proposed law prohibit the award of an air mail contract to any company having connections with subsidiaries, affiliates, associates, or holding companies, directly or indirectly, by stock ownership, interlocking directorates, interlocking officers, or otherwise, if said subsidiaries, affiliates, associates, or holding companies are engaged, directly or indirectly in the operation of competitive routes or in the manufacturing of aircraft, or other materials or accessories used generally in the aviation industry.

"No air mail contract should be sublet or sold to any other contracting company nor should a mail contractor be allowed to merge or consolidate with another company holding an air mail contract. Obviously also no contract should be made with any companies, old or new, any of whose officers were party to the obtaining of former contracts under circumstances which were clearly contrary to good faith and public policy.

"Such safeguards should be provided as will prevent the evil practices of excessive salaries, unearned bonuses and illegitimate personal expense accounts detrimental to the interests of legitimate stockholders and the public.

Flying Hours and Pay Fixed.

"Public safety calls for pilots of high character and great skill. The occupation is a hazardous one. Therefore, the law should provide for a method to fix maximum flying hours, minimum pay, and a system for retirement or annuity benefits.

"Enactment of legislation along the lines suggested will establish a sound, stable and permanent air mail policy. The knowledge that the interstate commerce commission, a judicial body, will hereafter regulate air transportation routes and air mail pay will remove uncertainty as to routes and mail pay.

"Such legislation will relieve air transport companies from paralyzing monopolistic control which has heretofore often influenced them to buy planes and other equipment from associates and affiliates.

"Real competition between the manufacturing companies will stimulate inventive genius, and should give to our people safer and better equipment both for commercial and military purposes."

Army Flyer Forced Down but Escapes Uninjured

Marion, O., March 7.—(AP)—Lieut. John L. McAllister, army flyer, was forced to land in a field a mile south of here late today when his motor stalled. Neither the pilot nor his plane was damaged. McAllister said he was flying at about 1,000 feet when the motor went dead. In landing his plane ran through a wire fence. He blamed carburetor trouble for his difficulty.

TESTS SHOW ARMY MAIL SERVICE IS SLOWER

Tests conducted by THE TRIBUNE before and after the army took over the flying of the air mail indicate a complete demoralization of this service.

In all instances the minimum and maximum time required by the army to carry the mail to and from the principal cities of the United States was greater by several hours than the time formerly required by commercial lines carrying air mail, and in many instances the army time was greater than ordinary train time.

Tests Show Variance.

Air mail letters sent from Chicago to New York and from New York to Chicago before the army took over the service required from 12½ to 20½ hours for delivery, while those mailed since then required 15 to 36½ hours. From Chicago to Salt Lake City the commercial time was 22½ to 25½ hours, the army time 24½ to 43½ hours. From Chicago to Seattle the commercial time was 16½ to 38 hours, and the army time was 54½ to 92½, one letter requiring almost four days. The commercial flying time between Chicago and Dallas, Tex., was 16½ to 33½ hours, while the army time was 17½ to 39½.

One letter was mailed to each of a dozen cities on Feb. 12 and correspondents in those cities noted the time of the arrival and returned the envelopes. On the 15th of February they sent three air mail letters back to THE TRIBUNE, mailing them at 9 a. m., at noon, and at 5 p. m.

Repeat Experiment.

This experiment was repeated after the army began flying the mail, the outgoing letters being mailed on Feb. 22 and the return letters on the 26th.

It happened that the week selected for the army tests was marked by unfavorable weather in some sections of the country, including a severe snowstorm in the east. But the records of the Chicago airport show that the two largest commercial lines completed 85 per cent of scheduled flights, both east and west, during this same period.

Letters mailed to Chicago from Seattle while the commercial planes were flying the mail arrived 30½ hours later, while the best time made under the army system was 54½ hours and the worst 87½ hours. There is no direct Chicago-Seattle army mail route but there is a Chicago-Salt Lake line and a Salt Lake-Seattle line.

SEE DIVORCE OF AIR LINES FROM MANUFACTURERS

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—A breaking up into units of the largest aviation companies in the United States was predicted tonight as a result of President Roosevelt's letter on the air mail situation. Officers of the former mail carriers, however, would not be quoted until they had had an opportunity to digest somewhat more fully the text of the communication.

It was pointed out, that the three principal air mail carriers who lost their contracts when the order of cancelation turned over the carriage of the mails to the army last month, were all affiliated with manufacturing companies.

United Air Lines is a subsidiary of United Aircraft and Transport corporation, other of whose subsidiaries make Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Engines, Boeing Airplanes, Hamilton Steel Propellers and other aircraft and parts. Transcontinental and Western Air incorporated is a subsidiary of North American Aviation, in turn a General Motors subsidiary which also controls General Aviation, manufacturer of airplanes and the Allison Engineering company, builder of Aircraft engines. Under the North American Aegis are also Eastern Air transport and Western Air Express. American Airways is controled by the Aviation corporation which, like the Stinson Aircraft corporation, is under the control of E. L. Cord.

Under the restrictions of the President's letter it was felt that all would have to divorce themselves from any airplane or aircraft engine companies should they desire to bid for mail carrying under the new set-up.

PLANE AVERAGES 190 MILES AN HOUR ON CHEYENNE HOP

One of the United Air Lines Boeing transport planes set a new record for the Cheyenne to Chicago hop on the coast to coast airway, last evening. The plane, a twin-motored, low wing ship, flew the 910 miles in 4 hours and 45 minutes at an average speed of 190 miles an hour. The plane was carrying ten passengers and air express. It was piloted between Cheyenne and Omaha by C. V. Pickup, and between Omaha and Chicago by Eddie Eshleman.

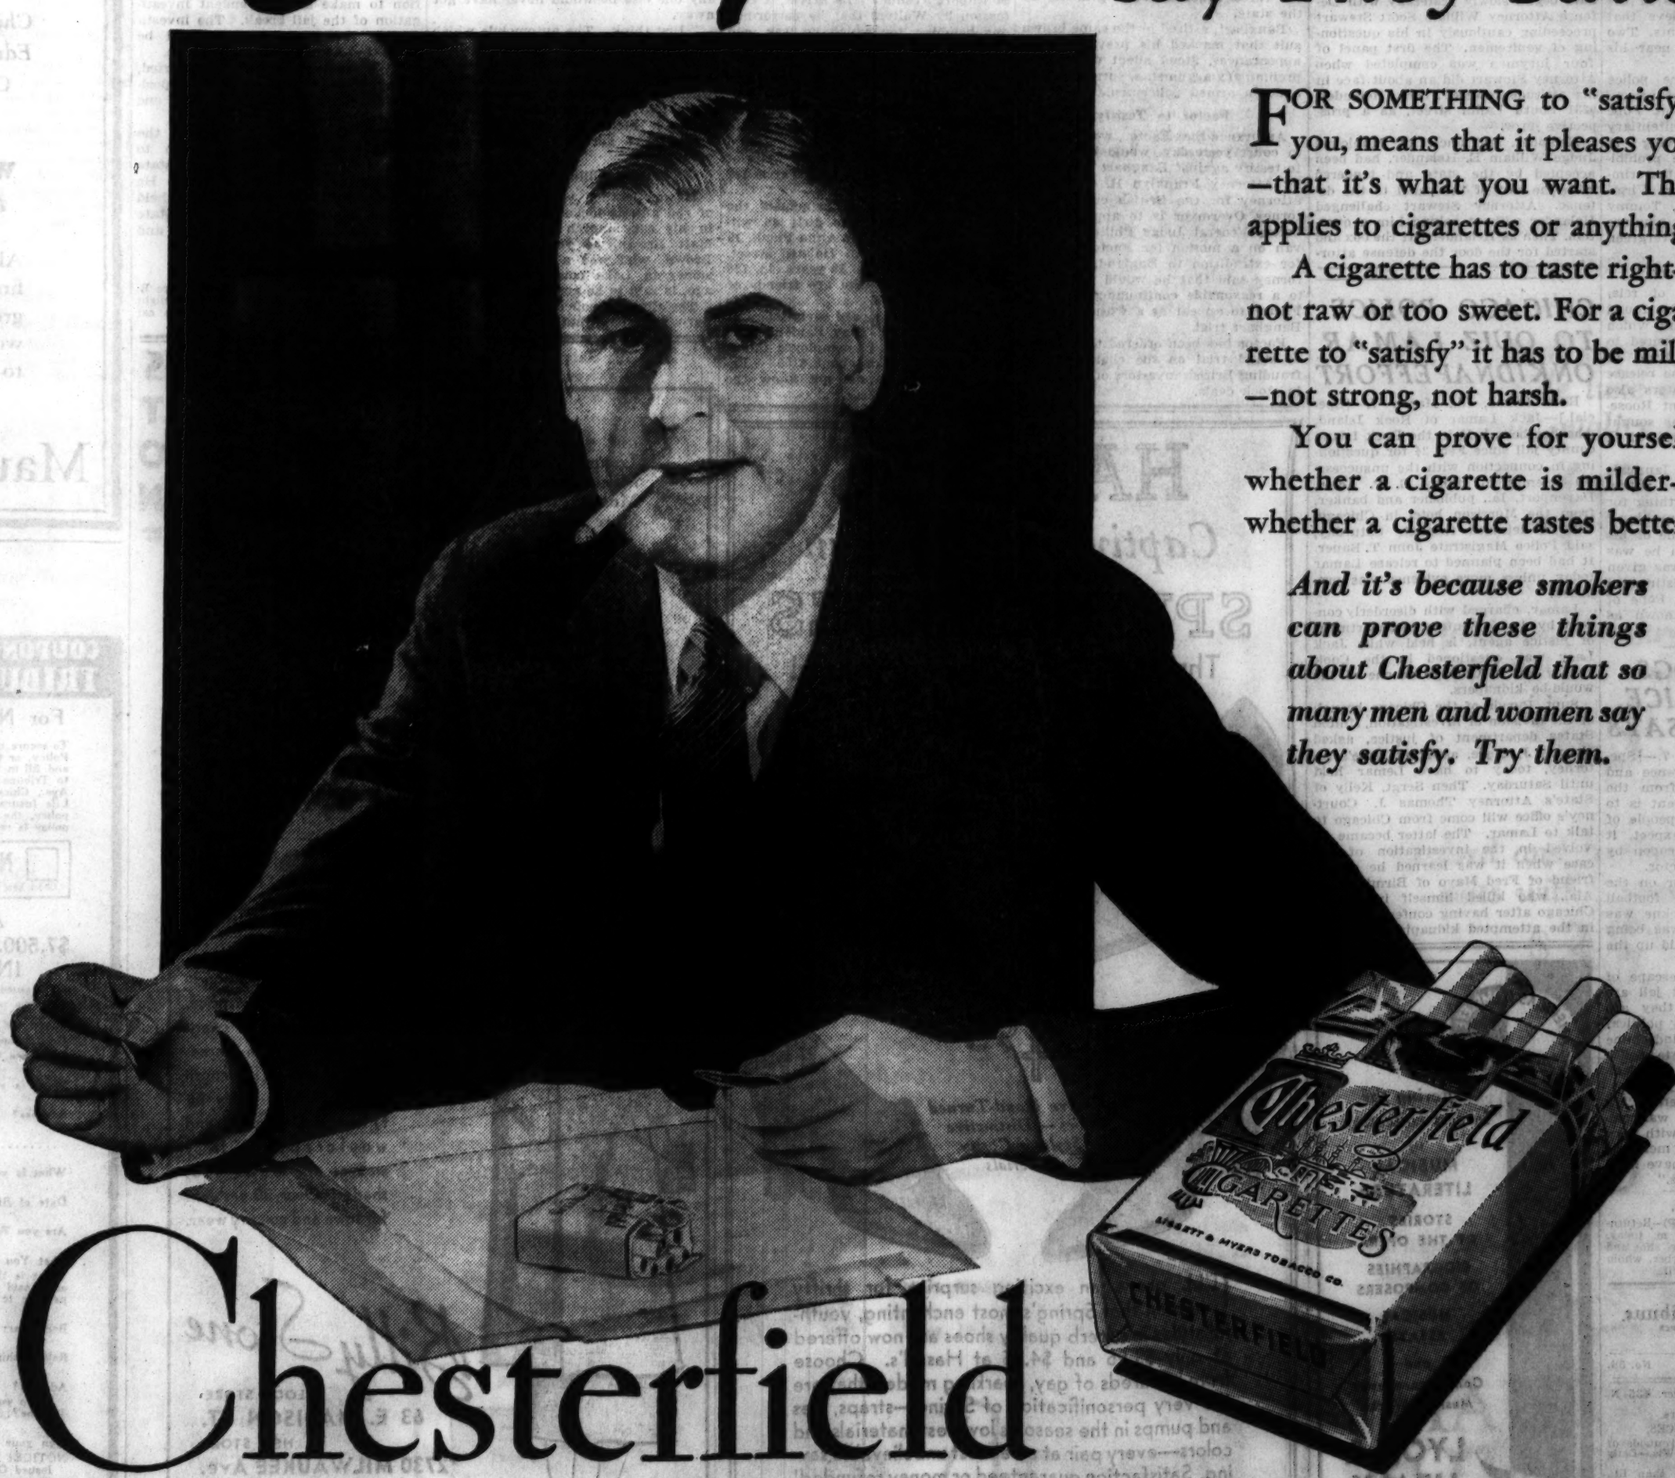
Why— Men and women say They Satisfy



FOR SOMETHING to "satisfy" you, means that it pleases you—that it's what you want. This applies to cigarettes or anything.

A cigarette has to taste right—not raw or too sweet. For a cigarette to "satisfy" it has to be mild—not strong, not harsh.

You can prove for yourself whether a cigarette is milder—whether a cigarette tastes better.

And it's because smokers can prove these things about Chesterfield that so many men and women say they satisfy. Try them.

WOODRING TURNS ON GEN. FOULOIS IN CONGRESS QUIZ

Says He Only Tried to Follow Laws.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—The unique situation of an assistant secretary of war and a general, commanding a major branch of the service, facing each other before a congressional committee "to see who is telling the truth," was presented today. It was staged before the house military affairs subcommittee.

Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war in charge of procurement, was the first witness called before the committee since it was empowered to place witnesses under oath. Mr. Woodring emphatically denied that he had changed specifications for airplanes to be obtained with $7,500,000 of PWA funds.

Turns on Two Generals.

Mr. Woodring reiterated he depended on Maj. Gen. Foulois, the chief of the air corps, for recommendations, which he followed "100 per cent." Shown the testimony of Gen. Foulois and Brig. Gen. H. Conger Pratt, assistant chief of the air corps, before the appropriations committee, Mr. Woodring told the committee that "for some unknown reason" both made statements "very derogatory to me."

The assistant secretary of war said he had changed the procurement method to provide for competitive bidding "in conformity with the law of congress," and to open the way for all aircraft builders to supply airplanes to the government.

"It was an emergency when the PWA money was granted to us," he said, "and I insisted that competitive bidding, instead of the old method of 'negotiated contracts,' be called for. I told that to Gen. MacArthur, chief of staf and to Gen. Foulois and his assistants.

Defends Buying Methods.

"I told them all that I would not approve the expenditure of $7,500,000 except by competitive bidding, but the air corps officers argued they could not get the planes they needed in that way.

"I think they were honest," Mr. Woodring continued, "and when the said lives depended upon the type of planes obtained, I agreed that they could purchase by competitive bidding only planes that had been tested and approved."

Mr. Woodring said he agreed only to approved planes when he was satisfied there would be competitive bidding.

Chairman Rogers of New Hampshire then asked if Gen. Foulois' statement that he had changed specifications was correct.

"Absolutely not," replied Mr. Woodring, "not in any single detail."

"I can't believe Gen. Foulois made that statement," Mr. Woodring said.

"Let's get Gen. Foulois down here and see," Representative Hill of Alabama and Representative James of Michigan asked at the same time.

At this moment a messenger delivered a memorandum to Mr. Woodring. It came from Gen. Foulois and denied that he accused Mr. Woodring of altering the specifications.

Committee Hears Foulois.

Gen. Foulois was called before the committee and admitted he had gone over the transcript of his statements. Mr. Rogers asked him to produce all radiograms and telegrams exchanged between Washington and Dayton, O., since Feb. 1.

Mr. Rogers read the concluding sentence of a mysterious message to Dayton, which advised officers there to make a "negative report if appropriate."

Gen. Foulois insisted that he knew nothing of such an order.

Robber Slugs Salesman in Basement in Oak Park

Martin Languth, 23 years old, was found unconscious last night in the basement of a used car salesroom at 52 West Madison street, Oak Park, where he was employed. At the Oak Park hospital Languth said he had gone into the basement to fire a furnace and that he was slugged there by a robber. The man took $1.80 and Languth's watch.

Seven Policewomen Complete 20 Years on Job

Recall Old Times

Seven gentle faced women, some with white hair, pored over a pile of yellowed clippings as they dined last night in the Terrace Gardens of the Morrison hotel.

"My, did we ever look like that?" exclaimed Mrs. Anna L. Sheridan, as she peered closer at a faded clipping showing a line of militant young women wearing shirt waists, dark skirts and sailor hats of the fashion of 1914, right arms raised ready for pistol fire. "That was in instruction school," she added, "where we learned to pack a gun."

"And then we learned the criminal code and the city ordinances and first aid," put in Mrs. Mabel Rockwell. Around the banquet table the others fingered the clippings, while time turned back twenty years to the day when Mayor Carter H. Harrison appointed Chicago's first twelve policewomen as a part of his campaign to purge the city of vice.

The seven women were the active survivors of the original twelve. One other is retired and four are dead. Those present last night were Mrs. Marion Whiteman, assigned to South Chicago station; Mrs. Theresa Johnson, First district; Mrs. Anna Loucks, corporation counsel's office; Mrs. Rockwell and Miss Julia Cunningham, crime prevention bureau; Miss Anna Finan, Town Hall station, and Mrs. Sheridan, Woman's court.

Fascist Chief Forbids Passing Buck to Il Duce

ROME, March 7.—(AP)—Passing the buck to Premier Mussolini when executing onerous tasks was severely frowned upon today in a circular issued to militia officers by Achille Starace, secretary of the Fascist party. Alluding to the customary reference to "orders from above," Starace warned the militiamen they had no right to involve Il Duce and must stand on their own feet when exercising their proper duties.

NEEDY FAMILIES ON COAST FIND RARE AMBERGRIS

San Francisco, Cal., March 7.—(AP)—Because a whale didn't feel so well, residents of Bolinas, a little town north of here, hoped today to receive a modest fortune. If they do, a survey showed, the money will go toward a wedding, doctors' bills, and a mortgage.

A chemist's report showed a sample of waxy substance found on the beach there was ambergris, expelled by sick whales and used as a base for expensive perfumes. Nearly a score of needy residents of Bolinas Bay had collected a great quantity of the substance.

Emory E. Smith, head of a chemical plant here, emphasized that while the sample proved genuine, all the material picked up might not be real ambergris.

The warning didn't stop many persons from flocking to Bolinas beach to search for the stuff. Ambergris at present sells for around $28 an ounce and the sample tested was about 70 per cent pure.

BYRD SHIP DESCRIBES A BRILLIANT DISPLAY OF ANTARCTIC LIGHTS

S. S. BEAR OF OAKLAND, northbound from Little America, March 7.—(AP)—[Via Mackay Radio.]—Enroute to New Zealand, 800 miles from Dunedin, this supply ship of the second Byrd antarctic expedition ran into a gale this morning.

Last night the first display of Aurora Australis was visible. This phenomenon appeared from the zenith to the southern horizon, with an occasional shaft running through the heavens to the northward.

A pallah green, ghostly in hue, predominated. The most brilliant displays were shot through with white. Lemon yellow was to be seen lighting up the whole celestial vista.

Appearing with alarming suddenness, arches, bands, and curtains swept rapidly across the zenith, interlacing with folds of an intervening curtain its way across the southern sky. Then luminous streamers started upward, disappearing as new forms, delicate in structure, met other folds.

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make it Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

from the LAXATIVE HABIT

Physicians Recommend Non-Irritating Flush

Do you know that most medicine-laxatives work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract?

Physicians warn against this unnatural method. First—because the intestinal muscles become sluggish, lazy. Second—because when taken regularly the drug soon loses its effect, compels you to take more and more.

Nature's Way—a Flush
(The Water Way)

Nature's way is far more simple. It is merely to flush out the wastes and poisons—without impairing the intestinal muscles in the least.

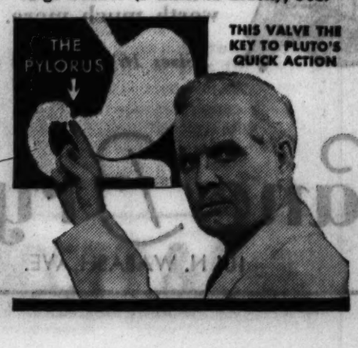
That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine-laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive action in less than one hour. And—it cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle—but speedy. That's because the proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—promptly opens the pylorus valve... permits the flush to enter the intestines and complete its work without anxious hours of waiting.

Pluto Water Ends Asthenia

If you feel achy, listless, only half-alive, that is nature's warning of Asthenia—a condition usually caused by the poisons of constipation. Pluto's famous ten-day treatment ends it promptly—makes you feel like a different person.

Get a bottle today from your nearest druggist. In two sizes: Splits 25c—large bottles (3 times as much), 50c.



THIS VALVE THE KEY TO PLUTO'S QUICK ACTION

The proper dosage is one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water. It is gentle, effective and practically tasteless.

MULLEN LOOMS AS BRYAN FOE IN SENATE RACE

Nebraska Leader Likely to Make Fight.

Lincoln, Neb., March 7.—[Special.]—Nebraska's Democratic political tangle unwound far enough today to reveal Arthur F. Mullen of Omaha in the triple rôle of resigning national committeeman, counsel for public works projects involving $15,000,000, and possible opponent of Gov. C. W. Bryan in the forthcoming race for United States senator.

Mullen resigned as committeeman yesterday, informing President Roosevelt his continuance in office in view of pending legislation against the practice of law before governmental agencies by men of influence "might be construed as indicative of opposition to you."

Battled for Roosevelt.

Although Mullen followed two other national committeemen in resignation, J. Bruce Kremer of Montana and Robert H. Jackson of New Hampshire, the Nebraskan's case was not an exact parallel. Mullen was floor manager for Roosevelt at the Chicago convention in 1932 and his astute strategy was credited by some for the expeditious nomination of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Mullen delayed announcement of his resignation several weeks after the President announced opposition to prominent persons in politics practicing law before government agencies.

But Mullen had opposition at home. The extent to which Mr. Mullen's resignation can be attributed to that opposition will not soon be determined, but Gov. Bryan can easily be pictured as smiling in secret satisfaction though suppressing vocal expressions of joy which might sound discord at a time when the Democratic party requires complete unity.

Bryan Goes Sniping.

The governor contented himself Wednesday with praising the President's "anti-lobbying campaign," following his policy of never firing a direct broadside, but resorting to constant sniping at Mr. Mullen's forces.

Mullen is Washington representative of the Loup river power project involving $7,300,000 and the Platte valley project requiring $7,500,000. Both have been approved by PWA officials at Washington and are held up pending study at the capital of three "conditions" attached by Bryan to the water rights agreements.

The first two of the provisions for which Bryan contends are merely that sale of current outside the state be allowed only after local needs are supplied, and that there be no discrimination in prices to persons or municipalities. But the third provides prohibition of fees or commissions for propaganda being included in construction costs.

Opposes Mullen's Aids.

Not only has Bryan tried to keep Mullen's fee for "propaganda" at the minimum, but he has attempted to prevent appointment as engineer for the projects of "any one recommended by the attorney for the projects." John Latenser Jr. of Omaha, engineer member of the state PWA advisory board, might naturally be appointed engineer for the projects, and Latenser, a "Roosevelt Republican," was appointed to his present position after recommendation by Mullen.

Public Works Administrator Ickes and Bryan entered into a confusing controversy March 1, when Ickes, asked whether Bryan had been helpful in expediting Nebraska projects, said: "We haven't seen any evidence of coöperation with Gov. Bryan," and added that Mullen had been "open and above board" in activities as representative for the Nebraska projects.

Wins Ickes' Praise.

Ickes added Mullen had been frank at the outset about his representation of the projects and said: "We can't complain in a situation like that, although we have said several times it is questionable whether any one needs an attorney to get proper consideration from the public works administration."

Bryan's reply the next day was: "I assume this story supposed to come from Washington was sent out only for publicity purposes in Nebraska and I don't believe it originated in Washington or was authorized or seen there by any federal officials."

The governor has already announced his intention of running for Democratic nomination as senator. J. J. Thomas, chairman of the Nebraska Democratic central committee, and who announced Mullen's resignation as committeeman, was asked if Mullen intended to run for the senate and hinted Mullen had not discarded such a possibility. "That's anybody's guess," said Thomas.

Mullen Doherty Aid.

Washington, March 7.—(AP)—Representative McFadden [Rep., Pa.] told the house today that despite denials by Henry L. Doherty, utilities magnate, and Arthur Mullen of Nebraska that the latter was employed to represent the former's interests, he had a letter from the federal trade commission showing Mullen had been employed by Doherty interests.

U. S. Treasury Is Robbed; But Loot Is Only Gold Bricks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—The United States treasury building, citadel of the federal finances, was "looted" last night of ten fake gold bars having a bogus value of $30,000 and $75 besides in real gold coin.

By special order of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. the old gray stone treasury was under heavy guard tonight as secret service agents hunted clews that would help them solve the first robbery in the history of the nation's treasury.

Removed from Showcase.

The stolen bars were removed, presumably last night, from a showcase on the main floor of the treasury building, where they are displayed to tourists. Although cast in the semblance of real gold bars and ingots, the stolen "gold" is actually base metal coated with gold and is valueless. Included in the booty, however, were eight real gold coins worth $75 under the old gold standard.

Stunned by a robbery which occurred within 20 feet of the vaults holding the treasury's cash, Secretary Morgenthau, after inspecting the scene of the crime late this afternoon, ordered special treasury guards stationed on all floors of the building from now on. Meanwhile secret service agents were endeavoring to find the thief who today has, not $30,000 in gold bullion, but merely several pounds of scrap metal covered with gold paint.

Intact at Closing Time.

Colored messengers stationed near the showcase which was rifled told secret service agents today that the collection of imitation gold bars was intact at closing time last night, and it was not until shortly after noon today that Walter Weisman, another treasury messenger, noticed that the case had been looted.

Inspection revealed that the thief had removed ten screws from the top of the showcase, stolen the 10 fake bars and 8 real coins, and then replaced the top and three of the screws holding it. The ten bars and ingots, making a bundle big enough to fill a handbag, were then carried out of the building without detection.

STATE HOUSING BILLS PASSED BY SENATE, 35 TO 5

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—The Ickes-Adamowski housing bills were passed by the senate late today, 35 to 5, granting public corporations the right to borrow funds from the federal government for slum clearance and reconstruction. The bills have already gone through the house and now will be placed on Gov. Horner's desk.

Emigrants Oust Tolstoi for Aiding Russia Against Japs

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, March 7.—(AP)—Because he opposed a proposal that Russian emigrants should support Japan if it fought the soviets, Count Ilya Tolstoi, grandson of the noted writer, was expelled from an emigrants' meeting last night.

MONTREAL SINKS IN DEBT; RULE BY PROVINCE SOUGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 7.—Members of the Montreal board of trade today adopted a resolution asking the provincial government to appoint a commission to govern the city of Montreal until such time as the finances get into better shape.

More than twenty organizations have joined the movement for commission government of the city and removal of power from elected aldermen, who, it is alleged, have pandered to the unemployed and spent too much. City elections are due next month.

The city has announced that estimated expenditures for the fiscal year beginning May 1 are $6,731,291 above the estimated revenues. It is claimed expenses cannot be cut and that no more tax revenue is possible. At present 45,000 families are on the dole list in Montreal.

Mexico Jails Priest for Criticizing Federal Laws

JUAREZ, Mexico, March 7.—(AP)—The Rev. Father Salvador Uranga was arrested and jailed today on a charge of violating a section of the federal constitution which provides priests shall not criticize federal laws, in this case a proposed co-educational system for public schools. Two employés of the mission over which the priest presides were jailed when they attempted to prevent his arrest.

Roosevelt Busy on Book Telling of First Year

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt reported himself as feeling quite gay today after finishing work on a book to be published next month. Mr. Roosevelt said the title was up to the publishers. The 300 page book was described as mostly a compilation of the President's official declarations during the first year of his administration.

WOLF APPEALS TO U. S. COURT FOR FREEDOM

Fred W. Wolf, Chicago inventor, appealed to the federal courts yesterday in an effort to effect his release from the state hospital at Elgin. Attorney Daniel Anderson, representing Wolf, filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward in Chicago and the judge ordered Charles F. Read, superintendent of the Elgin hospital, to show cause Saturday morning why the writ should not be issued.

The petition, said Wolf, is sane, and is being held at the hospital in violation of his constitutional rights. Wolf, who is 52 years old, was described as an inventor holding basic patents for electric refrigeration.

The petition charged that Wolf's wife, Jessie, and her daughter, Ann W. Lottus, have misrepresented facts as to his actions and sanity for the purpose of confining him to the hospital for the rest of his life.

Judge Frank W. Shepherd in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva refused a similar petition last Wednesday. Judge Shepherd said he was convinced by medical testimony offered that Wolf is still insane.

MISSION INMATE SUCCUMBS.

Henry Hogan, 53 years old, casual, who had lived in the Chicago Good News Mission at 33 South Desplaines street, died yesterday in the county hospital of an overdose of narcotics taken with suicidal intent.

THE TEACHERS MUST BE PAID!

THE state of Illinois MUST find a way to pay its school teachers. Governor Horner and the law makers at Springfield are to be commended on the fight they are making to see that this is done . . . and done quickly. It is the duty of every citizen and tax payer to support them in their efforts to solve this problem, but it is also the duty of every tax payer and citizen to see that the problem is handled properly . . . not in the easiest or laziest way.

The easiest way, always, for government to pay anything is, of course, to load it on the man who owns an automobile.

The state legislature now proposes to divert two-thirds of a cent of the cities' share and one-third of a cent of the counties' share of gasoline tax from the road building and maintenance fund into the school funds.

Nothing could be more unfair.

Paying of our school teachers is obviously EVERYBODY'S job. Are we to say to these unpaid teachers, "Let's see what the people who drive automobiles can do about this . . . if they can't help you, you're out of luck!" Isn't the predicament of the teachers sufficiently important to challenge the interest and the effort of everybody . . . whether he owns an automobile or not?

The whole theory of the new deal, according to The President, is to "do the greatest amount of good possible for the greatest possible number."

How about the 125,000 people in Illinois who will be entirely or partially cut off from their means of support if these road building funds are diverted from the uses for which they were intended?

Is it necessary to throw one man out of a job in order to help another?

Is the intelligence of our state so insolvent that we can find no way of paying Peter without robbing Paul?

EDITOR JAILED FOR GUARDING ASSEMBLY CRITIC

Defies Kentucky Session; Refuses Name.

Frankfort, Ky., March 7.—[Special.]—County Judge L. Boone Hamilton of Franklin county late this afternoon freed Vance Armentrout, associate editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who had been thrown into jail by the lobby investigating committee of the Kentucky house of representatives.

The legislators took the summary and, according to Judge Hamilton, illegal action after Armentrout refused to tell them the name of the author of a letter, published in his paper, which criticized the legislature.

Held guilty of contempt of the house, after a conference of five committee members, he was immediately ordered to prison and was marched to the jail in custody of the house sergeant at arms, C. W. Longmire.

Immediately an application for a writ of habeas corpus in his behalf was made before Judge Hamilton by Attorney D. L. Hazelrigg. In less than an hour Armentrout was released, although the committee had commanded he remain in custody until March 15.

Judge Cites Statutes.

Judge Hamilton asserted that, as the editor had been adjudged in contempt without any form or trial and without being permitted to have counsel, the committee had not complied with statute 1995 of the Kentucky statutes, which outlines the proceedings under which persons may be punished for contempt of either the house or the senate.

"The committee acted without any semblance of legal right," asserted Attorney Hazelrigg. "I have read the house resolution under which it was acting. The committe was instructed to investigate lobbying. The letter which was published in the Courier-Journal had nothing to do with lobbying."

This letter was printed in the issue of Monday, in the "Point of View" column [corresponding to the Voice of the People department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE]. It was entitled "The Psalm of Politics" and was critical of the house rules committee and the speaker of the house, W. E. Rogers Sr. It has been made known that the author is a member of the state legislature.

Recalling that two years ago the legislature appropriated $150,000 for a complete audit of all state departments, "with the understanding the audit would be ready for presentation at the opening of the 1934 session," the writer pointed out that not until Feb. 27, the day when the rules committee took complete charge of legislation, was this report brought out.

Alleged Control.

The rules committee, the author also asserted, was controled by the state administration, headed by Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

"Was there a black sheep in the woodpile?" the letter writer demanded.

"The powerful rules committee takes charge of us and everything we do. They have us by the tail and will go that way with us for the rest of the session."

The lobby investigating committee summoned Armentrout under subpena to Frankfort to testify. He told the members that he was in charge of the paper, owned by Robert Worth Bingham, present ambassador to Great Britain. Chairman Hugh Bullitt and Committeeman Rodes K. Myers then asserted the article charged Speaker Rogers with being "controled." Therefore, they said, they should know the name of the writer because of its bearing on lobbying.

Quote from Letter.

They quoted from the article:

"Who tells the speaker what bills to be killed? Who tells him to recognize certain members on the floor and to disregard others? Regular procedure is not being followed. Some one behind the scenes is pulling the strings."

Editor Armentrout refused to admit the necessity or even the ethics of disclosing the name of the writer.

"I wish I could conscientiously give you the name," he said. "I cannot do it in justice to persons who write confidential letters to the paper."

"In refusing to divulge the name you are setting up the corporation of the Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times as greater than the commonwealth of Kentucky," said Chairman Bullitt. "We ask you again to give us that name."

Five times the question was asked and five times Armentrout said "No." The five committeemen, Bullitt, Myers, G. S. Milam, Robert A. Persky, and Carroll L. Cropper then went into executive session. Representatives Tyler Munford and Clarence Miller, committee members, were absent. The five emerged with the order to imprison Armentrout.

William R. Attkisson, assistant attorney general, appeared before Judge Hamilton, who is a former member of the legislature, while Attorney Hazelrigg was arguing for the writ of habeas corpus, but made no objection to the editor's release.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Big Saving! No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Marquis Dead at 87

[Acme Photo.]

J. C. HAMILTON-GORDON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—John Campbell Gordon, first marquess and seventh earl of Aberdeen and Temair, and head of one of the oldest Scottish clans, died at his home at Tarland, Aberdeenshire, today. He was 86.

The marquess, one of the last links with Gladstonian liberalism, passed his life in the atmosphere of courts and responsible social duties. He was governor general of Canada from 1893 to 1898, and was twice lord lieutenant of Ireland. His death came after an illness of less than 24 hours.

The marquess is succeeded by his eldest son, the earl of Haddo. The marquessate was created in 1916. The Aberdeen earldom dates back to the 17th century.

FATHER OF GIRL WILL HANG 3 IN MISSISSIPPI

He's to Spring Trap for Rapists of Daughter.

Jackson, Miss., March 7.—[Special.]—By a vote of 19 to 16 the Mississippi senate today passed a bill which will enable the father of a Holly Springs, Miss., high school girl to spring the trap to hang three Negroes who raped her. The Negroes are under sentence to die March 16 at Hernando, Miss.

Debate on the bill, which authorizes the sheriff of any county in which a sentence of death is to be executed in a capital case to appoint a resident citizen of the state to execute the sentence, was brief on the floor of the senate. Opponents of the bill declared that the law casts a stigma on the state.

Saved Three from Mob.

Advocates of the bill argued that the father, C. W. Collins, Holly Springs merchant, had prevented a mob from lynching the Negroes on the promise he would be allowed to hang them. The father had written an open letter at the time a mob threatened the prisoners in the De Soto county jail, begging its members not to lynch the rapists, because he had been told he would be allowed to execute them.

This letter, it was said, halted mob violence. Subsequently the sheriff of DeSoto county sought a legal opinion from the attorney general on his promise to Collins. The attorney general held the sheriff could not delegate his duties. That prompted the drafting of the bill.

The bill was hurried through the senate. It was reported upon favorably by the senate committe on county affairs in the morning and passed during the afternoon.

Those Under Sentence.

The doomed men are Isaac Howard, 25 years old; Ernest McGee, 23, and John Jones, 23, all of Memphis, Tenn. They confessed to attacking Collins' daughter Dec. 27. Upon their arrest a few days later, between 400 and 500 National Guardsmen were mobilized by the governor to guard the prisoners against mob violence at Hernando.

The prisoners were indicted, tried, convicted and sentenced to hang, all within three hours, on Feb. 12.

TWO MEN KILLED AS POLICE AUTO HITS STREET CAR

Machine Swerves at High Speed.

Two men were killed late last night when the automobile in which they were riding collided at high speed with a southbound Cicero avenue street car at Berulice avenue.

RALPH CHENEY.

The victims were Police Sergeant Ralph Cheney, 44 years old, 4155 North Mansfield avenue, attached to the motorcycle division, and Albert Kellerman, 55 years old, 5430 Pensacola avenue, a mechanic employed by the police department.

With Kellerman at the wheel, they were going north in Cicero avenue when their automobile swerved and crashed into the car. Death was instantaneous for both.

Cheney, then assigned to the Shakespeare avenue station, won a TRIBUNE $100 hero award in February, 1925, for shooting and killing Russell Clark, a bandit, in an encounter at Grand and Keeler avenues.

Boy Killed in Freak Accident.

A young playmate of Martin Nemerovski, 3 years old, 3703 Arthington street, unwittingly caused his death yesterday in a freak motor accident. Martin and two companions were playing near an electric truck parked in front of 3752 Arthington street when one of the boys climbed into the empty cab and stuck an ice pick through the floor boards, accidentally establishing a contact.

The truck had been left in reverse gear so it leaped backward when the motor started. Plunging across the sidewalk it crushed Martin. He died shortly afterward at the Garfield Park hospital. Barney Meyer, 7309 Harrison street, Forest Park, driver of the truck, which is owned by the Bowman Dairy company, rushed out of a building, where he was making a milk delivery and found Martin dying. The boy's young companions had fled.

These deaths and one other increased the 1934 Cook county motor toll to 233. The other victim was:

Florence Lloyd, 7 years old, 2965 Cottage Grove avenue, colored. Died in the county hospital of injuries incurred Tuesday when she was struck near her home by the automobile of a hit and run driver.

Escapes as Train Hits Auto.

O. C. Schneider, 35 years old of Westchester, a saloonkeeper, narrowly escaped death last night when his automobile was struck by an Aurora and Elgin passenger train in Hillside. He was knocked from the car and only cut on a finger as the vehicle was swept along the railroad right of way on the front of the train. The automobile was carried 100 feet, then it hurled off to the side of the tracks where it caught fire and was destroyed.

Edward Rupert, 70 years old, an architect living at the Elks lodge, 174 West Washington street, was seriously injured last night when he was struck by an automobile at Stony Island avenue and 75th street.

WINS JURY TRIAL IN EVANSTON ON 5 TRAFFIC CHARGES

Robert K. Jackson, 29 years old, 5836 Kenmore avenue, asked and was granted a jury trial yesterday when he was arraigned before Judge James M. Corcoran of Evanston on five charges—leaving the scene of an accident, speeding, reckless driving, passing a red light and driving while intoxicated.

He was arrested Feb. 24 after a collision in which his automobile was involved. The police found a bottle of whisky in the car.

The Evanston police force has been conducting a campaign against intoxicated drivers and has taken six into custody since Jan. 1. The policy of the accident prevention bureau of the department is to prosecute them, regardless of the action taken by other persons in accidents caused by such drivers. Last year there were 56 Evanston arrests for drunken driving and nine convictions.

SNOW DELAYING TRAINS, HE SUES EASTERN RAILWAY

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—Meet Mr. Friedus of Long Beach. Ordinarily he waits for trains for nothing.

But when railroads tie to him and keep him standing on cold platforms during blizzards he charges $500 an hour.

Friedus—first name Israel, address Long Beach, attorney Brother Ralph—is suing the Long Island railroad for $1,000 for loss of health, loss of time, pain, suffering, and discomfiture caused by exposure.

On the eventful night of Feb. 27 Mr. Friedus hit Pennsylvania station in time for the 5:05. He asked at the information desk and was told the train was running on schedule.

So, being a believing and trustful man, he got aboard. At 5:45 the train reached Lynbrook, where Friedus and every one else were ordered off.

Another train would be along in five minutes, they were told.

"Ile No. 2," says Mr. Friedus today.

Five trains came along, but none went anywhere. By and by came a train which did go to Long Beach.

SHOOT AND SEIZE BANDIT SUSPECT.

Edward Brown, a Negro, 25 years old, 2908 South State street, was shot in the head and slightly wounded yesterday as he was captured by a police squad at 22d and Federal streets. Twenty milk wagon drivers identified him as a robber.

DR. WYNEKOOP'S LAWYERS WILL ASK NEW TRIAL

Rheta's Slayer Reads Her Bible in Cell.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Stunned by the 25 year penalty imposed upon her Tuesday night by a jury, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, convicted slayer of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, renewed her declaration of innocence yesterday and turned for consolation to her Bible in the county jail.

The once notable physician, 63 years old and an invalid, read the Psalms of David all morning in her cell and towards noon complained querulously at the failure of her relatives and lawyers to visit her. The only morning visitors were Warden David Moneypenny and Matron Mary Kennedy.

"I was terribly shocked," Dr. Wynekoop told the warden. "Shocked and weakened by this blow. I don't want any visitors except my family. I am entirely innocent of this crime. I want to tell my family that."

Relatives Arrive in Afternoon.

At 2:30 p. m. her relatives arrived—her son, Walker Wynekoop; her daughter, Dr. Catherine; her sister, Mrs. Mabel Fairclo of Sycamore; Mrs. Fairclo's husband, and another sister, Mrs. Harvey E. Wood of Joliet. They were ushered immediately to her cell.

Her chief counsel, W. W. Smith, arrived twenty minutes later, wearing a worried look. He said he would be ready to argue for a new trial before Judge Harry B. Miller on March 24 and, if overruled, would appeal to the State Supreme court.

"The speed with which the verdict came in showed the jury gave no time to deliberation," Smith said, alluding to the jury's action in voting a conviction on the second ballot, ten minutes after being locked up, and deciding on the punishment an hour later.

"It stunned us all," Smith conceded. "Such a young jury, too. They must have had their minds made up against her for days before the case closed. Nothing we said made much difference, I suppose."

Medical Men Discuss Case.

One perplexing question in the Wynekoop case was cleared up by tht evidence, medical observers of the trial maintained. The question was how Dr. Wynekoop, an experienced physician with numerous subtle poisons at hand, could be so clumsy as to give Rheta only enough chloroform to anesthetize her, then blunder by shooting her in the back and covering the body with a blanket.

"The significant point in the evidence was the large quantity of chloroform found in Rheta's body," one physician explained. "From that evidence alone, it is easy to conjecture what happened.

"Chloroform, like many other drugs, is effective only when given in precise quantities. An overdose is just as ineffective as an underdose. It is evident that Dr. Wynekoop got Rheta on the operating table with the intent of killing her with chloroform, alone.

Rheta Given an Overdose.

"The girl evidently got suspicious at the first few whiffs and began to fight against it. Then Dr. Wynekoop became alarmed and gave her an overdose, accounting for the large quantity later found in the body and the burns discovered on Rheta's mouth.

"But the overdose produced an effect opposite to that which Dr. Wynekoop had intended. Rheta's consciousness began to return. It was then, apparently, in a moment of panic, that Dr. Wynekoop ran for the pistol, turned Rheta on her side, and fired the shot which would and did prevent Rheta from coming back to tell the world her mother-in-law had tried to kill her.

"Covering the body with the blanket was just a mechanical, half involuntary gesture to which Dr. Wynekoop had been trained for years."

BURNED BY OVEN FLAMES.

Mrs. Augusta Firth, 40 years old, 851 Windsor avenue, was burned about the face and taken to St. Francis hospital, Evanston, yesterday after flames spouted from an oven as she opened the door in a tavern at 1775 Howard street, where she is employed.

PLIGHT OF CHICAGO'S TEACHERS HEARD BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Even under normal conditions when taxes are collected currently, a house subcommittee heard today, Chicago's school system is dependent for financial aid on the bankers of the city.

Continuing his plea for legislation authorizing government loans to school districts, Robert C. Keenan, of the Illinois State Teachers' association, declared before the Prall banking and currency subcommittee that for years the banks of Chicago have been accepting tax anticipation warrants as collateral for loans to the school district.

"In normal times," he stated, "the banks were anxious to make loans on tax anticipation warrants, even at 4 per cent."

Taxes applicable to school expenses are always collected some time after they become due, Mr. Keenan explained, and the banks have always advanced the school system the funds necessary to carry on during the collection of taxes.

Repersentative James Simpson Jr. [Rep., Ill.], a member of the subcommittee, advised the committee that an effort is now being made to work out a plan under which the Chicago school district will be able to operate on a pay as you go basis without having to depend on the banks to tide it over each year.

Mr. Keenan asserted that the cost of education in Chicago is relatively very low, and added that the city has probably made the most drastic school economies of any large city in the country.

The tax anticipation warants proposed to be used by the RFC as security for school district advances, according to Mr. Keenan, are being accepted by the thousands by large Chicago business interests which use them in the payment of their own taxes.

a large amount for bolstering the state's credit and a small amount for the teachers," said Representative John M. Peffers [Rep., Aurora].

When the roll call was about three-quarters completed and only 18 votes had been mustered for reconsideration of the action on Schnackenberg's bill, Adamowski was called to the speaker's rostrum. After a whispered consultation with Speaker Roe he returned to his seat.

"Mr. Speaker," said Adamowski, "without making any explanation other than I am personally against it, I will withdraw my motion."

The withdrawal removed a parliamentary obstacle and the bill was sent to the senate, where it was advanced to second reading on the motion of Senator Ward.

PTA CONFERENCE SUPPORTS LIQUOR TAX FOR SCHOOLS

A telegram asking Gov. Horner to support the Schnackenberg bill which provides for the diversion of state liquor revenue to the school fund, was dispatched yesterday by the conference of district one, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers associations, meeting in the Stevens hotel.

The Schnackenberg bill, which was opposed by the governor, was passed by the house in Springfield Tuesday. Mrs. Herbert R. Siddall presided as chairman of the conference.

Members of the Illinois Highway Users' conference announced yesterday that they would oppose the bills now before the legislature intended to divert funds from the state gasoline taxes for school purposes. The proposal to divert gasoline taxes was made by Gov. Horner as an alternative to the Schnackenberg bill.

SENATE PASSES BILL FOR SALE OF BEER OVER BARS

House Votes "Imitation" Whisky Rules.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Troubles mounted for Gov. Horner today. In addition to denying him the sort of school legislation he wants the house passed the Powers "imitation" whisky bill and the senate the Devine bill which would allow the unrestricted sale of malt beverages over bars.

This completed legislative approval on the Devine bill. It goes now to the governor for signature and since he issued a statement strongly condemning its provisions when it passed the house two weeks ago a veto is expected. In that case a motion to pass the bill over the veto would follow and that would bring a battle royal.

Powers Bill Goes to Senate.

The Powers bill will face the senate hurdles next week. Distillers are expected to do all they can to stop it, for they insist that if they are forced to label as "imitation" all whisky which does not contain 75 per cent of liquor aged four years in oak—the essence of the measure—they will have to close up shop in Illinois.

Gov. Horner fought the Powers bill when Representative William W. Powers [Dem., Chicago] sought to have it included in the state liquor control law in January. He regarded it as unfair to Illinois manufacturers and farmers and as necessitating large importations of foreign liquors.

So the action of the house in passing the same measure today to the tune of 84 to 9 certainly will not be welcomed in the executive office. It was expected that the word will be sent down to administration senators next week asking them to kill the bill.

Seen as Return of Saloon.

Mr. Horner opposed the bill sponsored by Representative John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon] because he considered its free and open, unrestricted sale of beer over bars, without the purchase of food, as moving hand in glove with the old time saloon. The theory of the state control law, as finally enacted, was that it would abolish the more unsavory aspects of that battered old American institution.

Some of the senators who voted against the bill today—and saw it pass 34 to 6—expressed their conviction that if beer flows over bars without regulation, whisky and other strong drinks will soon flow and the old time saloon will be back with a will plus a few modern adornments.

That was the argument of Senator Louis O. Williams [Dem., Clinton], who wanted the bill recalled from third to second reading so that an amendment sent up by the governor could be adopted. This would have limited the height of bars—called "lunch counters" in the bill—to three feet six inches.

Called Silly Theory.

"That's another silly theory," exclaimed James O. Monroe [Dem., Collinsville], who handled the Devine bill in the senate. "Move the motion [to recall the bill] be tabled."

Before the motion could be put several members aired their views on politics in general, the liquor law in particular, and rounded it off with a few reference to "hypocrisy" and kindred popular words of former days.

But finally Monroe's motion prevailed, 28 to 5 and then upon roll call, the Devine beer climbed steadily to victory.

The house passage of the Powers bill was even more tame and less attended by debate. It does not carry an emergency clause and would consequently become effective July 1 if finally passed. But the Devine bill has received a two-third vote in each house and would go into effect as soon as enacted.

NEW YORK FAMILIES EVACUATE TENEMENTS ON LA GUARDIA ORDER

New York, March 7.—(AP)—Tenement fire tragedies that reaped 15 lives in two weeks today caused the administration of Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia to move many families from condemned firetraps, an unprecedented step in the city's history.

Coöperating in the evacuation of the tenements, after the mayor directed they be emptied without waste of time, were the tenement house commission, the police department, the department of public welfare and CWA workers.

Meanwhile Langdon W. Post, youthful Fusion tenement commissioner, was in Washington seeking to expedite release of the $25,000,000 earmarked by the Public Works administration for erection of model dwellings for the city's poor.

The families were moved today to nearby buildings, regarded by authorities as free from danger and suitable for comfortable living.

CWA workers, carrying furniture from the tenements, found many conditions they described as deplorable. Hallways were littered with ashes and garbage.

LEVI Z. LEITER'S GRANDSON WEDS BRITISH ACTRESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—The earl of Suffolk, grandson of the late Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago, was quietly married today at St. Luke's church, Chelsea, to Mimi Ford Piggott, better known on the English stage as Mimi Crawford. Only 30 persons were present. The bride was given away by her uncle, Lord Chalmers. In an effort to avoid publicity the couple entered the church by a back door. The bride wore a long yellow dress trimmed with sable and a yellow picture hat. The couple left tonight on a wedding trip through western England.

Test Natural Gas Found on Farm in Lake County

Chemists of the Public Service company of Northern Illinois were engaged yesterday in testing samples of natural gas taken from a deposit found Tuesday on the farm of James Doyle, south of Rondout in Lake county, to determine its heat content. A crew drilling an artesian well on the farm encountered a gas and oil deposit at a depth of 80 feet. The Doyle farm adjoins that of Charles True where natural gas was found at a depth of 158 feet three years ago. The deposit on the True farm was capped to supply light and heat for the farm.

ASK AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION FOR TAX REVISION

Newton C. Farr Outlines Commission Plan.

BY AL CHASE.

Gov. Horner will be asked to call a special session of the legislature for the purpose of submitting to a referendum an amendment to the constitution revising the state revenue system. This was announced last night by Newton C. Farr, a member of the governor's commission to amend the constitution, at a meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board. The commission has already approved the draft of the amendment, Mr. Farr said.

"A special session of the legislature is essential if we're to make progress in solving our tax problems," Mr. Farr said. "The proposed amendment contains a provision for a limitation of taxes on property of 1 per cent of its full fair cash value, exclusive of the charges for the payment of the principal and interest on the public debt.

Limits Bond Issues.

"There also is provided an overall limitation as to the amount of bonds that can be issued. This is being based on a maximum of 12½ per cent of the full value of property for the next five years and 10 per cent thereafter.

"There's also a provision under which new tax laws must be adopted by a two-thirds vote of the legislature which gives protection to Cook county with its less than majority representation in both houses."

15 Members on Commission.

The governor's commission to amend the constitution is composed of five state senators, five members of the house and five citizens. It is headed by F. F. Lewis. Chicago citizen members are: Mr. Farr, Fred W. Sargent, William F. Stelzer and C. V. Gregory.

Mr. Farr, who is chairman of the Chicago Recovery administration, outlined the work that it has accomplished.

"Further reductions must be made in the cost of our governments and particularly in our debt charges," he said. "We have made substantial headway in reducing the interest rate of some of our obligations. All of these will help in bringing the taxes within the ability of the taxpayer to pay."

WAUKEGAN TAX RATE FOR 1933 IS CUT 7 CENTS

Waukegan taxpayers had their 1933 tax rate lowered by 7 cents yesterday when City Clerk J. P. Wyllie certified to County Clerk Lew A. Hendee of Lake county that the city needs a rate of only 10 cents for the bond and interest fund instead of the 17 cent rate previously asked.

The reduction of 7 cents cuts the total 1933 tax rate for Waukegan from $7.25 to $7.18 for each $100 of assessed valuation. It also brings the 1933 rate to 2 cents below the 1932 rate.

6,000 PROPERTY OWNERS PAY '32 TAX BILLS IN DAY

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1932, were $364,784, making a total of $110,119,538 collected since enforcement of the Korner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collection of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1932.	1930.
March 7	$ 13,098	$ 23,520
Uncollected	15,044,168	40,359,296
	1931.	1931.
March 7	$ 22,800	$ 70,772
Uncollected	63,899,315	60,636,075

The day's collection of 1932 real estate taxes was $164,634. The 1932 personal property tax collections totaled $52,954. The 1931 personal property tax collections totaled $873.

Approximately 6,000 property owners yesterday trooped into the county collector's office on the main floor of the county building to pay $358,551 in current and delinquent real estate and personal property taxes.

The 1932 real estate and personalty taxes are now in collection. Bills are being mailed out daily. The penalty date for the payment of the real estate taxes has been fixed at April 15 by County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. The penalty date for the payment of personal property taxes is May. 1.

In a hearing yesterday before County Judge Jarecki additional witnesses for the Chicago Real Estate board testified that small homes and flat buildings were discriminated against in the making of the 1931 realty assessment. The real estate board is seeking a 15 per cent reduction in the 1931 assessments against 438,000 small properties.

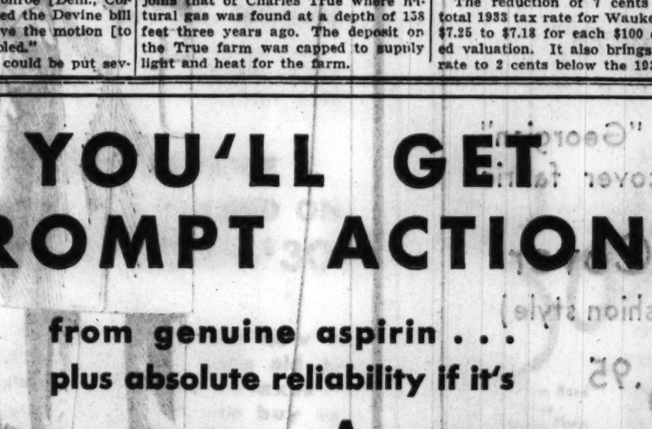
SQUIBB'S ASPIRIN
LOOK FOR SQUIBB CONTROL NUMBER
Each new lot bears its own serial number—actual evidence of 63 safety tests, made during manufacture. Squibb control is your guarantee of the reliability, purity and safety of Squibb's Aspirin.


EASY TO OPEN—One hand is all this new box requires. No broken nails, cut fingers or spilled tablets.
GENUINE aspirin is quick in its effect. But before aspirin can become thoroughly effective, it must pass through the stomach and enter the intestine. Squibb's Aspirin can be relied upon to give prompt relief. It disintegrates instantly when it reaches the stomach. It does not crumble away in the box, or leave particles in the mouth, because each tablet is firmly and uniformly compressed.
Hundreds of brands of aspirin are sold in America. If you want to be certain of the purity and safety of the aspirin you buy, ask for Squibb's Aspirin by name. It is a name you can trust. The control number on every box and bottle of Squibb's Aspirin is proof of the care with which its quality and uniformity have been safeguarded.

SPAIN DECLARES 'STATE OF ALARM' TO HALT STRIKES

Fear a General Walkout; Builders Quit.

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, March 7.—Faced with a major strike and expecting several others that might lead to revolutionary violence, the government for the second time in three months proclaimed a "state of alarm" in all Spain tonight. This near relative of martial law succeeds the milder "state of prevention" under which Spain has been governed since the December anarchist revolt.

Rafael Salazar Alonso, 38 year old minister of interior, a noted foe of Marxism, who has held his job since last Saturday, said that all government prerogatives under the state of alarm, such as press censorship, and prohibition of meetings would not be enforced immediately but would be held as a club to deal with a veritable epidemic of social conflicts.

Soldiers to Get Pay Raise.

Alonso declared that "If a Socialist revolt should occur the government is ready to repress it decisively and without hesitation." By repression Alonso apparently implied the use of 6,000 armed men at his disposal, including civil guards, assault police, and other units. These men incidentally will be put in a humor to do the government's bidding tomorrow when a bill raising their salaries will be pushed through the cortes, under gag rule if necessary.

Premier Alejandro Lerroux this afternoon made no effort to disguise his uneasiness:

"I find the social situation very delicate and therefore I prefer not to say anything. It is not a moment to talk. It is a moment to be on the alert."

Thirty thousand construction workers in Madrid went on strike this morning following a folded arms demonstration yesterday. These men, who walked out because their employers refused to agree to a new system of 44 hours' work for 48 hours' pay will likely be followed Friday by 15,000 metal workers. The latter are said to have discussed the possibility of their demonstration being changed Monday into an actual revolutionary movement.

Talk of General Strike.

Another serious threat is the printers' strike, which so far is confined to the monarchist paper, A. B. C., but which will spread to all Madrid papers unless an agreement is reached by mixed commissions of workers tomorrow.

Café waiters and garment workers threaten to strike for more money. There is considerable talk of a general strike, although nothing concrete has developed yet in that direction.

The situation in the provinces is no better. There are textile workers' strikes at Manresa and also a milk strike at Santander and a general strike in the small port of Almeria. Bombs exploded today in Barcelona and Segovia causing considerable damage. In a village near Ciudad Real farm workers seized several farms.

To Get Treasury Post

[Florence Hendershot Photo.]

Prof. Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago, whose appointment as special assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was announced yesterday, is known on the south side campus as a "middle-of-the-road" economist. He is considered neither radical nor conservative and is an advocate of increased world trade.

Prof. Viner, who is now in London, is expected to take up his new duties about April 1. At about the same time another Chicagoan may receive a promotion to a higher financial post. H. M. Stronck is being strongly urged, according to Washington dispatches, as a director of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation to succeed E. G. Bennett, who recently resigned. Mr. Stronck, who is now in Tucson because of illness in his family, has been serving as Bennett's secretary.

Prof. Viner was born in Canada in 1892 and received a bachelor's degree at McGill university. He came to the United States to become an instructor on the midway in 1916. During the war he served as a special expert for the U. S. Tariff commission and the U. S. Shipping board. He received a Ph. D. degree at Harvard in 1932 and was naturalized two years later. He has published two books and many pamphlets on economics. Recently he has been on a leave of absence to lecture at the Institute of Higher Studies at Geneva, Switzerland.

SENATE APPROVES THOMAS T. HOYNE FOR GLENN POST

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—The senate today voted confirmation of Thomas Temple Hoyne to replace Leslie L. Glenn as controler of customs at Chicago.

Hoyne, a brother of former State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, is known as a protégé of Senator William H. Dieterich [Dem., Ill.]. Glenn is a brother of Otis F. Glenn, former Republican senator from Illinois.

The post of controler at Chicago is one of those which was recommended to be abolished under the Hoover plan for reorganization of the executive departments. It is considered a political sinecure, and the report is that President Roosevelt will shortly follow Mr. Hoover's lead and do away with it.

The senate also confirmed today the appointment of Robert H. Jackson of Jamestown, N. Y., to succeed E. Barrett Prettyman, who was recently ousted from his job as general counsel for the internal revenue bureau by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Stark County Sets High Liquor Fee to Keep Dry

Kewanee, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Stark county board of supervisors today took action to keep the county dry. They set a $2,500 license fee, regarded as prohibitive, for sale of alcoholic liquors over 14 per cent alcohol by volume. A beer license costs $75.

LAWYERS BATTLE OVER A LAWYER'S RACKET EVIDENCE

Testimony of Kaplan Aid Raises Storm at Trial.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Jurors in the racket conspiracy trial watched a battle royal of lawyers yesterday, with a lawyer in the witness chair and prosecutors and defense attorneys bickering bitterly over his testimony.

The conspiracy indictment, on trial before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court, charges numerous acts of violence and sabotage in the cleaning and dyeing, laundry and carbonated beverage industries, with allegedly illegal collusion between trade association heads and labor leaders in calling strikes against independent concerns which cut prices and refused to join the trade associations.

Most of the evidence offered by the prosecution yesterday was aimed at Attorney Morris I. Kaplan, one of the eighteen defendants, who among other positions in the industries affected held the post of secretary of the Chicago Linen Supply association.

Kaplan's Aid on Stand.

The lawyer witness who aroused the courtroom storm was Attorney John H. Chatz, an employé in the office of Attorney Kaplan. Before Chatz testified Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber won a contest outside the hearing of the jury to have him called as a court's witness. This enabled the prosecutors to cross-examine him. They represented to Judge Finnegan that because of Chatz's position in Kaplan's office they could not vouch for his testimony.

Chatz was questioned about three checks for $1,000 each, drawn in his favor in the summer and fall of 1932 from the treasury of the Linen Supply association. The checks showed that after Chatz had endorsed them, they were cashed by Miss Ethel Kaplan, a sister of Attorney Kaplan and also an employé in his office.

Diversion of Money Charged.

The checks were some of a large number introduced in evidence on Monday and Tuesday in connection with an accounting of funds of the supply association. The prosecutors contend that some of the payments listed on these accounts went to dummies, and that Kaplan later diverted the money involved to gangsters, particularly to Murray Humphreys, indicted in the present case but a fugitive.

As regards the payments to Chatz, the prosecutors contend that he turned the money back to Kaplan as soon as his checks were cashed. Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Dodd Healy was unsuccessful, however, in drawing any such admission from the witness.

Chatz said that he used the money to pay debts and for his living expenses. He stuck to that contention through a long questioning, during which virtually every question was met by defense objections. On several occasions representatives of the prosecution and the defense were on their feet at the same time, both trying to present an argument on some objection to the court.

Chatz Proves Forgetful.

Prosecutor Healy showed his anger when Chatz declared that he did not remember many of the minor details of the transactions concerning which he was questioned. He had said that Miss Kaplan cashed the checks for him because he had no bank account of his own, and that he kept most of the cash, for a time, in an envelope locked in his desk. The prosecutor demanded why, with an income of $3,000 in three months, he had not been able to open his own account.

"With banks closing all around at that time, I should open an account?" retorted Chatz. "I was stuck in two of them then."

Chatz also injected into his heated discussion with Healy the assertion that aside from the three checks, he got only $900 from Kaplan during 1932, making his total income from that source $3,900 for the year.

The prosecution did get one admission from him which it considered valuable to its case. This was that he had signed the name of David A. Witt, another attorney sharing offices with Kaplan, to a room card at the Bismarck hotel on March 24, 1932. The room was No. 1026.

On Tuesday Policeman Joseph Healy, assigned to the state's attorney's office, testified that on March 23 he listened on a tap of Kaplan's telephone wire and heard a man named Knott, alleged by the prosecution to have been George L. Knott, labor union official, who is a defendant, instruct Kaplan to engage such a room for a conference.

Yesterday another wire tapper, Policeman George T. Finn, testified that on March 24 a man who gave the name of "Mr. Hurley" but whose voice he recognized as that of Humphreys, called Kaplan and the following conversation ensued:

"KAPLAN—Do you want the amount of that bill?

"HUMPHREYS—Yes.

"KAPLAN—Ten twenty-six."

A third member of the wire tapping detail, Policeman James McInerney, then testified that a short time after Finn had heard that conversation he [McInerney] met Humphreys in the lobby of the Bismarck hotel. McInerney testified that he searched the gangster for weapons, asked him what he was doing there, and was told that he had entered to make a telephone call and was leaving immediately.

TRIBUNE GIVES HELP TO 4,000 IN FILING INCOME TAX RETURNS

For the eighth consecutive year THE TRIBUNE, through the facilities of its Public Service Office, is assisting income tax payers in the preparation and filing of their returns. Three deputy collectors of internal revenue are stationed each day in the main Public Service Office at 1 South Dearborn street and one deputy is stationed in the new Public Service Office on the first floor of Tribune Tower.

Since this year's service began on Jan. 25 about 4,000 taxpayers have been assisted with their returns in THE TRIBUNE offices and 2,500 have filed returns there. Checks and money orders are accepted, but cash payments must be made on the fifth floor of the United States courthouse.

Defense Closes Evidence in Stone Officials' Trial

Attorneys for five former officials of H. O. Stone & Co. who are being tried before a jury in Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan's court on charges of using the mails to defraud, rested their case yesterday with the testimony of W. Scott Carroll, former controler of the concern. Today's session will be occupied with closing arguments and the case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow.

Read How Amazing Mineral Concentrate Richest in Newer Form of "FOOD IODINE" Is Building Up Thousands of Nervous, Skinny, Rundown Folks Where All Else Fails

"It will be a week this noon since I began using Kelp-a-Malt, and I have gained 5 pounds and feel much better."—W. H. . . . "Gained 6 pounds the first package. Am very much pleased."—D. E. G. . . . "Had stomach trouble for years. When I take Kelp-a-Malt I have a hearty appetite for everything and suffer no distress. Kelp-a-Malt has banished constipation, which I have had all my life."—W. D. G. . . . "Gained 8 pounds with one package of Kelp-a-Malt and feel 100% better."—Mrs. W. J. S.

Just a few of the thousands of actual testimonials that are flooding in from all over the country telling us how this newer form of food iodine is building firm flesh, strengthening the nerves, enriching the blood—nourishing vital glands and making weak, pale, careworn, under-weight man and women look and feel years younger.

Scientists have recently discovered that the blood, liver and vital glands of the body contain definite quantities of iodine which heretofore has been difficult to obtain.

Modern foodstuffs, even fresh vegetables and similarly so-called "good" foods have recently been discovered to be lacking not only in food iodine, but in all the other essential organic minerals without which strength and health are impossible.

Supplies Newer Form of Food Iodine

Kelp-a-Malt, only recently discovered, contains practically every mineral essential to normal well being. But most important of all, it is the richest known source of the newer form of food iodine—natural iodine, not made from iodides or other chemicals, which certain men prove toxic, but the same iodine that is present in small quantities in spinach and lettuce. It is the lack of this iodine which experts in nutrition say is our foremost national health problem. Kelp-a-Malt is a sea vegetable concentrate taken from the Pacific Ocean and made available in palatable, pleasant-to-take tablet form. Six Kelp-a-Malt tablets provide more food iodine than 486 pounds of spinach, 1,600 pounds of beef, 1,387 pounds of lettuce. Three Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper than a pound of spinach, 7½ pounds of fresh tomatoes—more calcium than 6 eggs, more phosphorus than a pound and a half of carrots—sulphur, sodium, potassium and other essential minerals.

Only when you get an adequate amount of these minerals can your food do you any good—can you nourish glands, add weight, strengthen your nerves, increase your vigor, vitality and endurance.

Try Kelp-a-Malt today. Contains no yeast—doesn't cause bloating. Two weeks are required to effect a change in the mineralization of the body. At the end of this time, if you have not gained at least 8 pounds, do not look better, feel better and have more endurance than ever before, the trial is free. 100 jumbo-size tablets, which are 4 to 5 times larger than ordinary-size tablets, costs but little. Get Kelp-a-Malt today.

DIRKSEN FIGHTS CUBAN MOLASSES FOR U. S. LIQUORS

Demands Protection of Grain Farmers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Legislation to quota the importation of foreign blackstrap molasses to prevent its competition with corn and other grains in the manufacture of American alcohol and liquor was demanded today by Representative Everett Dirksen [Rep. Ill.].

Recent action by the federal alcohol board and the AAA to allow the use of blackstrap for producing liquor and the strong prospect of similar action in the immediate future, according to Mr. Dirksen, make it imperative that the congress take action in the interest of the American grain farmer to halt or curtail the flow of cheap foreign molasses into this country.

Amendment Ready.

To this end, he stated, he will offer an amendment to the prospective administration sugar bill under which Cuban imports of blackstrap molasses will be quoted along with Cuban imports of sugar.

Although the distillers' code and marketing agreement approved by the AAA and administered by the federal alcohol control board stipulates that American distillers must use only domestic cereal grain in the production of liquor and alcohol, Mr. Dirksen explained, the belief that there is an acute shortage of alcoholic beverages in this country has already led the FACA to permit the use of huge quantities of Cuban molasses.

On Jan. 15, he recalled, the agricultural adjustment administration, acting on the recommendation of the FACA, issued a blanket temporary permit allowing the use of blackstrap molasses in the manufacture of whisky and spirits in the United States. This permit, which was in effect for only 45 days, expired on March 1 he stated, but indications now are that similar permits are soon to be issued continuing the permission for another period.

Compensating Tax.

The AAA has never levied a compensating tax against blackstrap, which competes heavily with grains in the production of alcohol and spirits. Distillers using grains in the manufacture of their product are bound under the AAA distillers' marketing agreement not only to pay the federal processing tax, but, in addition, an amount sufficient to bring the total price paid for grain up to the so-called parity price as determined by the secretary of agriculture.

Whenever a distiller turns to the use of blackstrap instead of grain in the production of spirits, under the terms of the agreement, he must pay the government an amount equal to the processing tax which would have to be paid if grain were used.

Representative Dirksen pointed out that, despite the depression and prohibition, imports of blackstrap into this country increased from 31,000,000 gallons in 1909 to 205 million gallons in 1932. Such a flow of imported molasses, produced cheaply in foreign countries, presents a serious threat to the market which the American grain farmer finds for his product at the nation's newly opened distilleries, he declared.

Increase Cuba's Quota.

Under the terms of the administration sugar bill now apparently pigeonholed in congressional committees, Mr. Dirksen pointed out, the Cuban sugar quota is to be increased by 325,000 tons. This increased Cuban sugar production, he calculated, will result in the new production of about 16 million gallons of blackstrap, as the molasses is a by-product of the sugar refineries.

With a 20 per cent preferential rate in favor of Cuba, the tariff on imports of blackstrap from the island is negligible, according to Representative Dirksen, and by far the greatest portion of our imports of molasses is Cuban in origin. A quota on the island's shipments to this country, he believes, will effectively regulate the flow of blackstrap so as to protect the American grain producers' market.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Get Ready for Chicks

March 7, 1934.

THE poultry yard on THE TRIBUNE'S experimental farm here in the Fox river valley is beginning to show the kind of activity which indicates that spring is at hand. Rawlings, who has charge of the sheep and poultry, has been busy [when not occupied with all the bleating, newly born lambs in the sheepfold] getting the chicken houses ready for the prospective chicks and the setting hens.

There will be quite a number of Barred Rock chicks in the chicken house which will have to grow up under the care of a "foster mother" instead of real live clucking hen, because a brooder has been set up to take care of these chicks. However, a number of real hens will be set to raise families in the poultry yard.

The turkeys are the renegades among the poultry. The Barred Rock hens calmly settle down on a clutch of eggs in the chicken house and proceed to hatch them. But the turkey hens hear the "call of the wild" and sneak away to build nests away from the chicken yard. They may go over in the woods, build a nest and lay their eggs. [That's what several of them did last year.] Right now Rawlings is trying to figure on how to outguess them when it comes time for the turkey hens to set up housekeeping. It's rather hard to keep track of turkey families when they are scattered all over the place.

The two baby lambs which are being fed cow's milk from a bottle received an increase in their "dividend" today. Instead of one ounce of milk four times a day, they now are receiving two ounces every three hours. This is great stuff for the pets of the sheepfold, but it makes a lot of work for the women on the place because they have to warm the milk, wash the bottles and nipples and fill the bottles before the lambs get their meals. Then the job has to be repeated from morning until late at night. The lambs receiving all this attention are growing in fine style, however. Within a few days they'll have to go on a bigger milk ration.

To date 14 pairs of twin lambs and three single lambs have been born here on the farm. This makes a score of 31 [one loss—a lamb born dead]. Rawlings had another hectic night last night. At 2:30 a. m. a pair of twin lambs was born, at 5 a. m. one single, at 9 a. m. twins, 10 a. m. one pair of twins, and 6 p. m. one pair of twins.

Clarence Thurow, manager of the farm, continues to receive a lot of mail concerning experiments which are beginning to get under way out here. He's receiving letters about various kinds of feeds for stock, planting methods designed to get more produce from a cultivated acre, as well as inquiries about when visitors may call. Today the mail brought a letter from Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America.

"The experimental farm can be of great service to the farmers of the central west, for you can do many things that the regular experiment stations have not seen fit to do, because they are limited," Dinsmore wrote.

Brookfield Zoo Is Given Pair of Black Leopards

A pair of black leopards captured in the jungles of the Malay peninsula by Frank Buck of "bring 'em back alive" fame have been presented to the Chicago Zoological park in Brookfield. Black leopards, also known as black panthers, are the most ferocious of the cat family, according to Mr. Buck. The leopards arrived last night over the Pennsylvania railroad and were taken to the park. Mr. Buck is expected to visit the zoo next week.

NORTH WESTERN SETTLES DISPUTE WITH UNION MEN

The strike conference held between officials of the Chicago and North Western railroad company and representatives of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen since Feb. 22, was concluded yesterday afternoon. In a statement issued jointly by Fred W. Sargent, president of the railroad company, and William Bishop, vice president of the railroad employes' organization, it was asserted that "satisfactory settlement" had been reached.

The conference was called after a strike ballot was mailed out to the labor union members Feb. 2. More than 500 disputes involving wages, reinstatement of trainmen, and claims under schedule, rules and seniority laws, were arbitrated. The union officials represented all employes of the railroad except conductors, engineers and telegraphers, who are not involved.

The conference was conducted in Mr. Sargent's office but the proceedings were secret, as was the result of the vote on the strike ballot. In the statement issued last evening it was related that an agreement had been reached with reference to future handling of matters between the union men and the railroad officials, "which should provide for amicable settlement of any differences that may arise from time to time."

AAA CALLS TWO MILK DEALERS TO HEARING MONDAY

Face Loss of Licenses in Test Case.

Officials of the Agricultural Adjustment administration in Washington yesterday issued a summons for two small Chicago milk dealers to appear before AAA representatives here Monday and answer a charge of violating the provisions of the federal milk marketing agreement. The hearing is regarded as a test of the efforts to control the Chicago milk market through the licenses issued by Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture, who is head of the AAA.

The summons was served upon Lloyd B. Shissler of Lombard and the People's Dairy company of Cicero. They are charged with failure to report to the AAA their daily purchases and sales of milk. They also are charged with failure to make payments to help defray the expenses of market services. It is further charged that they entered into contracts with producers to purchase milk from farmers at lower prices and under different terms than those established for the Chicago area by the AAA.

Will Defy Examiners.

These charges were made a month ago and the defendants ordered to file answers with the AAA legal department in Washington. This was done, but the farm administration deemed the answers insufficient and the hearing here was ordered as a result.

Elmer D. Hays of the AAA licensing and enforcement section will preside at the hearing, to be held at 10 a. m. Monday, in a room at 610 South Canal street. The case for the government will be conducted by W. Carroll Hunter and Julian de Bruyn Kops Jr. Under the licensing agreement the AAA may revoke licenses of violators and impose a fine, the maximum being $1,000 a day for each day's violation.

Last evening Attorney Joseph C. Kanak, representing the Cicero Milk company and Shissler, announced that both his clients deny all the allegations of the citations. He added that they also will defy their examiners on the grounds that the licensing pact is unconstitutional.

"My clients are engaged in intrastate commerce, therefore interstate license regulations cannot apply to them," he said. "The license provides penalties, but denies the right of trial by court and provides no appeal. Furthermore it orders the milk distributors to violate contracts entered into prior to enactment of the licenses.

"We plan a court appeal if the hearing results in our conviction by Mr. Wallace's department. We are certain of some kind of court action if the hearing goes against us, because the secretary of agriculture has no right to collect fines. In order to collect any fine his representatives may levy, he will have to go to court. In court we would receive a different type of trial than the sort we probably will get before Wallace's men."

FALL KILLS CWA WORKER.

Patrick Sullivan, 54 years old, 3419 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, a CWA worker, was instantly killed yesterday when he fell 45 feet from a tree which he was pruning at 43d street and Oak Park avenue, Stickney.

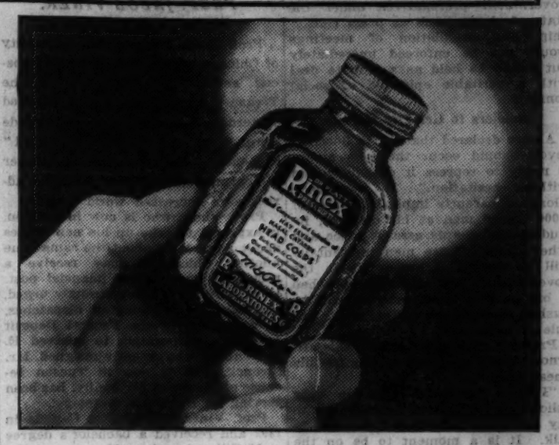
STRIKE DOWN THAT COLD... IN 5 HOURS



Fight it 8 Ways at Once with Doctor's Prescription

Head all clogged up. Nose congested. Sniffling, sneezing, wheezing. Mind dull, depressed. Just a common cold, but how miserable it can make you feel!

Don't give in to it. It is not necessary to endure it another day. Fight it! Not with half-way measures, which reach merely one, two or three factors. Painstaking research conducted by Doctor M. G. Platt shows that there are eight elements in the average cold. For quick, effective relief, one must fight a cold in eight different ways!

From these findings Doctor Platt developed his eight-action Rinex Prescription. Doctor Platt's discovery overlooks no symptom. When you take Rinex, see how much better you feel in 30 minutes!

Here are the Doctor's own words: "A cold should be fought in eight different ways. Rinex actually does this. (1) Quickly clears the head, making breathing easy. (2) It tends to prevent or allay spasms of the bronchial tubes. (3) It reduces attendant fever. (4) It promptly and safely relieves headaches and other associated pains and discomforts. (5) It safely soothes the nerves, without the use of narcotics. (6) It stimulates gently, relieving that dull-minded, depressed feeling. (7) It reduces acidity, which is frequently a contributing cause. (8) It provides means for adding to the calcium content of the blood, often deficient in cold conditions. A cold is in the system, and that is why, to control it, you must reach it internally."

A RINEX TREATMENT

One glass water, two Rinex capsules, 1 Rinex tablet. That is all. Notice how much better you feel in 30 minutes!

So Easy to Take

Please do not endure that cold another minute. With a glass of water, wash down two tasteless Rinex capsules and one Rinex tablet. . . Sneezing and wheezing stop. Running nose clears up like magic. Itching eyes feel free, your head clears. You get back to your real self.

Do not be afraid to take Rinex freely. It is perfectly safe and not habit-forming. It brings blessed freedom to sufferers of head colds, nasal catarrh and asthmatic paroxysms.

Each day brings grateful letters to Doctor Platt, from folks who have quickly overwhelmed colds with Rinex. Because of this strong, conclusive proof, the makers of Rinex actually guarantee blessed relief in 5 hours! If you, yourself, do not master your cold in 5 hours—your druggist is authorized to give you back every penny you paid for it.

Important Notice

When you ask your druggist for Rinex, see that you receive Dr. Platt's Rinex Prescription. All druggists know it. More than 10,000 druggists recommend it to all their customers. If your druggist offers you a substitute, he is not worthy of your confidence. You want quick relief, and therefore you will insist on Rinex. In the liberal size bottle containing both capsules and tablets, it is $1. Try Rinex immediately, and see how much better you feel in 30 minutes.

YOUR GUARANTEE

If Rinex does not master your cold in 5 hours, your druggist is authorized to give you back every penny you paid for it.

TRADE TREASURE SOUTH OF MEXICO AWAITS FINDERS

Central America Perfect Industrial Complement.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, March 1—[By Mail.]—From Mexico south the influence of an older, more pastoral Indian inheritance is found, mixed with gentle Spanish blood, producing a more conservative, paternalistic society. The wings of the Mexican revolution have brushed it and there are signs of an Indo-American radical youth movement, but on the whole things are moving along much as they have moved for a hundred years.

"Are your Indians changing any?" a Costa Rican coffee planter was asked.

"No, thank God," was the reply.

The old captain generalcy of Guatemala, once ruled by Spain from Granada, and forbidden to trade with any other nation, now constitutes five republics, in a territory 600 miles long, from 75 to 250 miles wide, of the richest and most varied types of tropical agriculture, easily accessible to the United States from the Atlantic or the Pacific, forming a potential storehouse of products that cannot be produced in the north and a potential market for surplus manufacturers.

Perfect Industrial Complement.

Central America is the perfect complement for an industrial nation. It sends out bananas, coffee, cocoa, mahogany logs, and takes in textiles, foodstuffs, machinery, vehicles, iron and steel manufactures, animal food products, medicinal soap, chemicals, lard, wheat, flour, cigarets, cotton cloth, mineral oils and autos.

In normal years American exports to this territory are about $30,500,000 in value. In 1932 the decrease was 35 per cent. Last year there was a slight improvement. The improved coffee prices this year indicate a still better trade. This is the economic weakness of a one or two crop country, which, with all its wealth of soil and long, sure seasons does not produce enough to feed itself.

The United States holds from 60 to 80 per cent of this trade, but competition is increasing from Japan, Great Britain, France, and Germany. Japan supplies cheaper goods. Germany gives longer credit. The British are always willing to wait for cargo. The United States might increase its share of the trade, according to resident business men, if exporters would give close study to these markets and improve credit facilities.

Super Salesmen Unwanted Here.

"If a planter wants a machine," said one merchant, "the Germans give him what he wants. The Americans try to sell him something else which they call better. Super salesmanship does not go here. If you call on a merchant you do not talk business at once, perhaps not at all during the first call."

Tariff is not a great obstacle here, as in Mexico and Canada. Each country is protecting a few home industries, but they are not in a strong bargaining position. Candles, beer, shoes, leather, furniture, receive some fostering at government expense. The trade is either a high class trade or a trade in goods for the poor, for there is no middle class developing as in Mexico and the workers do not yet care enough for the cars, radios, and other luxuries they see to work hard enough to get them. The Indians do not like to work in the lowlands, and so West Indian Negroes are imported for this by the fruit companies and other large concerns.

Money Spent Abroad.

Much of the money that comes in for coffee and bananas is spent abroad, and the people see little of it. The result of cheap labor is a service which destroys the worker as a market. Central American industry is founded on this system. Society remains stratified.

New York bankers, who in 1929 were forcing loans on the governments of these republics, now are inclined to let the Central Americans alone. If they cannot pay, they say, let them go without. There is no use in exporting to people who cannot pay.

Sound, productive loans, however, applied to industry instead of to politics, a matter which calls for a thorough knowledge of conditions in each state, might help to bring even the old loans back to a paying basis, stimulate and diversify industry. Rubber might be developed here instead of in far off Sumatra and the Malay peninsula. Irrigation works are needed in some of the plateaus, and there are many plants to be tested. Some day, it is predicted, the plants of the tropics will furnish the fuel to run engines of the north, including automobiles. Then there will be a greater rivalry than ever among the industrial nations for control of the tropics.

Why Mayans Went North.

Ox carts with wooden wheels cut from hard wood and wooden plows still prevail in Central America, along with wasteful methods of production. It was this, according to historians, which drove the ancient Mayans further and further north as their grass lands gave out under surface cultivation.

Costa Rica, the most progressive of the republics, with the greatest number of individual land owners, still devotes its major efforts to coffee, while importing maize, rice, and beans. Cattle raising is a possibility on a big scale in the uplands of Honduras. All the staple crops of the temperate zone can be produced in these sections. The hot fever ridden ports of Central American fiction are only the fringe of a land of immense undeveloped resources, some of it still unexplored, part of its eastern shores as wild as on the night that Columbus saw the flare of Indian torches on a strange new shore.

This is still a virgin tourist land. They dream of the day when the Pan-American highway will reach down the center of these valleys and uplands from Washington to Buenos Aires. Then Central America will be revealed as the rainbow land, the land of golden dawns and velvet nights, flowing with milk and honey.

Nicaragua Land of Unrest.

Nicaragua, four times the size of Holland, smaller than Illinois, the old route across the isthmus to California in gold rush days, scene of a century old feud between the liberal and conservative clans, seethes with social unrest. One day they say Sandino is up at the capital dining with the president. His followers have laid down their arms and taken up farming. All is lovely.

The next day Sandino is murdered. The feud begins again. That is the uncertainty of life and politics here. All up and down the Indo-American country the torch is lit again. Sandino is the martyr of the people. He is placed on a pedestal with Bolivar and George Washington. Mexico leads the way, with flags at half mast. There is an undercurrent of feeling against the United States and its interventionist policy, now dead but not forgotten. Nicaragua may have profited by the presence of the marines, but no people likes its benefactors.

Guatamala, land of gardens, wheat farms, sheep ranches, great uncut forests, with its Indian capital and great lakes, is the traditional friend of the United States. Its eastern shores are only two days away from the American naval base in Cuba. Great feudal land owners control it, but the inscrutable Indians will make its destiny. Guatamala City, 5,000 feet above the sea, connected by rail with Mexico, is its chief urban center. Here at least is a tourist paradise in the dawning. Great mountains and waterfalls, lakes and high blue gardens, buried cities whispering of dead gods and ancient greatness. Something wiped it all out and now they are starting over again.

BRITISH SYNDICATE WINS $5,500,000 JOB ON TURKISH FERRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—The Turkish government today granted a concession amounting to about $5,500,000 to a British syndicate of Col. A. J. Barry and partners, and Sir Lindsay Parkinson and partners, for construction of a double deck ferry service over the Bosporus, uniting the road and rail services of Europe and Asia Minor. This is the first concession granted under the Turkish five year plan to a British group, and is on a long term basis. Payments are to be made by notes of the Turkish State bank, payable in 4, 8 and 12 years, and in the meantime bearing 16 per cent interest.

AUSTRIAN GROUP IN CITY TO SEEK TRADE INCREASE

Making Tour of American Industral Centers.

As a part of a month's tour of large cities of the United States, an Austrian trade delegation recently appointed by Chancellor Dolfuss arrived in Chicago yesterday for a three day visit.

This activity is a direct result of the appeal made by George H. Earle, minister to Vienna, who, after a tour of Austria, urged that the government select a commission of business men to go to the United States and discuss with government officials and business organizations here the possibilities of increasing business between the two countries.

The group already has been in Washington, New York, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, and Detroit, and, leaving here on Friday, will go to St. Louis. They were received by President Roosevelt in Washington and conferred with officials of the departments of state and conference. They plan to go to the capital again before sailing for Europe, this time for conferences on the results of their trip.

The leader of the delegation is Dr. Otto Boehler, a steel manufacturer, 80 per cent of whose product is exported. He also is president of the manufacturers' association of Vienna. Other members are R. Granichstadten, vice president of the Federation of Export Merchants of Austria and a member of the board of the Federation of Austrian Merchants, and J. Geggenhofer, president of the American section of the Federation of Export Merchants.

Displays Samples of Goods.

The secretary is Count F. G. Seefried, a technical expert and chief secretary of the General Association for Foreign Trade. A fifth member of the group is Chairman Boehler's daughter, Miss Susanne Boehler, who has brought with her samples of the products of the applied arts in Austria in the form of jewelry novelties, fabric flowers, lace collars and similar wares which she is displaying at the Palmer house.

The delegates frankly are seeking the American buyer rather than the salesman. The balance of trade between the two countries is decidedly on the American side. In direct business the ratio is about 3 to 1 in favor of the United States, according to the delegation. And they say that indirect importation of American goods into Austria brings the ratio up to about 5 to 1.

Economic War Still On.

"The great war was over 15 years ago," read a statement authorized by the delegation, "but there still persists the same spirit of economical war that ruined world trade. Only understanding and friendly coöperation can bring about a change and establish the basis for a new era of prosperity."

Members of the group feel that recent violence in Vienna was "most regrettable" and ascribed it to changes in the national life, particularly in working conditions, following the breakdown of the old monarchy.

BRITISH VIOLINIST WINS LOVE BALM FROM U. S. NEGRO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—A divorce court jury here today gave a verdict of $12,500 damages against Clarence Nathaniel Johnstone, American Negro vaudeville actor, in favor of Albert Sandler, British violinist. The latter's wife admitted committing adultery with Johnstone.

A divorce was granted Sandler. There was no defense except on the question of damages. Johnstone and Mrs. Sandler sat together during the proceedings. Sir Boyd Merriman, president of the court, in charging the jury on the damage, said:

"You are to consider what sort of wife the petitioner has lost. Is she the sort of woman who is ready to throw herself at the head of any man, whether he is black or white?"

HELD FOR EXAMINATION.

Morse Spooner, 29 years old, 3850 Irving Park boulevard, was held for examination at the psychopathic hospital yesterday, after appearing before Municipal Judge Gibson E. Gorman on a charge of beating his 4 month old daughter, Winifred, and his wife, Clara.

JAPANESE WANT TRADE, NOT WAR, PRINCE ASSERTS

Declares His Nation and U. S. Are Dependent.

Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, former president of the Japanese house of peers and a nephew of the last of the shoguns, hereditary military rulers, yesterday scoffed at the "so-called danger of war" between his country and the United States. He spoke at a luncheon of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Palmer house.

He denied that commercial rivalry would cause a war, declaring the two countries are mutually dependent economically and that nothing should be permitted to interfere with existing reciprocally beneficial trade relations. He analyzed Japan's foreign trade to support his declaration.

Gives Trade Figures.

The prince is a short, rotund figure of benign appearance. He read his address without glasses despite his more than 70 years. His English is fluent, with an Oxford intonation. Beside him sat his son, Iyemasa Tokugawa, Japanese minister to Canada, and his comely granddaughter, Miss Toyo Tokugawa.

Japan is the greatest producer of silk in the world and at the same time one of the largest importers of raw cotton, the prince said. Out of 380,000,000 yen [a yen at the present rate of exchange is about 30 cents] exported from Japan, 360,000,000 yen was credited to this country. In the same year Japan imported in raw cotton from this country 320,000,000 yen out of total imports of 440,000,000 yen.

Motor Car Sales Heavy.

"We bought in that year about 14,000,000 yen worth of motor cars and parts thereof, and of that amount no less than 13,000,000 yen was paid to the United States," he said. "For your timber we paid 20,000,000 yen out of a total of 35,000,000 yen.

"Let us take Japan's trade as a whole. In 1932 the total amount of our exports to your country was 445,000,000 yen. In that year there was no other country in the world which bought from us more than 192,000,000 yen. And even Europe as a whole did not buy any more than 125,000,000 yen.

"The total amount of imports from your country in the same year was 509,000,000 yen. The next largest seller, Australia, received from us only 134,000,000 yen. Our import from Europe was 225,000,000 yen, or half of what America alone sold to us."

Open Door in Manchuria.

The prince scouted reports of the cessation of the "open door" in Manchuria. Importation of American commodities, principally iron, steel, petroleum, machinery, and motor cars, gained 58 per cent in the first year of the new administration as against a 300 per cent gain in the first six months of 1933 over the entire year of 1932, he said.

"We must not forget," the prince concluded, "that these close trade relations between us stand on a basis of the most friendly sentiment, which has always characterized the intercourse between the two countries since the opening of Japan in the middle of the last century. You may take from me an assurance that it is the ardent wish of the majority of the Japanese people that these happy relations should never be disturbed and the Pacific ocean should always be true to its name."

In the evening the prince, his son, and his granddaughter were guests at a dinner given by Charles H. Chandler as president of the Japan-America society in the Drake hotel. Forty Chicagoans interested in the far east heard the prince plead for continuance of friendly relations between Japan and the United States. He and his party will leave Chicago this morning for the west to continue their tour of the country.

BRITAIN AND JAPAN NEAR OPEN SPLIT IN COTTON TRADE ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—Negotiations between British and Japanese cotton manufacturers for an agreement to share the world market and end cut-throat competition seem definitly to have broken down. The British and Japanese representatives met today and agreed that it was impossible to come to an agreement. They will meet again tomorrow, but the only hope seems to be to find some way to avoid a trade war, which it is feared would ruin the industries of both countries.

The dispute is over the British demand that an agreement be reached covering all the world markets. The Japanese are willing to agree only to a plan covering Great Britain and the British colonies.

The British representatives tonight conferred with Sir Horace Wilson, chief economic adviser to the British government, and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade. It is known that the British government, anticipating the breakdown, has a plan for retaliation against Japan. The plan is to exclude not only Japanese cotton, but silk and rayon from the markets controlled by Great Britain.

STAVISKY PROBE REVEALS "PLOT" FOR COUP D'ETAT

Ex-Police Chief Accuses Former Minister.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 7.—Charges that Eugene Frot, minister of interior in the ill fated cabinet of Edouard Daladier, was plotting a coup d'etat when the government fell last month were supported by Jean Chiappe, ousted prefect of Paris police, when he testified today before the parliamentary commission which is fighting the Place de la Concorde battle over again in an attempt to find out who was to blame.

Chiappe told the parliamentarians that on the eve of the riots Frot was attempting to mobilize a private army of dissident Socialists, communists and former Royalists. According to Chiappe, Frot attempted to persuade Raymond Patenotre, wealthy American born under secretary of national economy, to advance money for arms but Patenotre refused.

Tried to Enlist Fascists.

An attempt was also claimed by Chiappe to have been made by the former minister of interior to enlist Col. De la Roque and his large Fascist organization of war veterans, but the Fascist leader refused.

The prefect said he told Daladier of Frot's intentions and that the premier said he had already heard something along the same line. He promised to consult his colleagues about the matter. But apparently the only thing he did was fire Chiappe.

Chiappe in his testimony emphasized "the absolute republican loyalism of the police, a hearty, disciplined, courageous organization devoted to the maintenance of existing order" and insisted repeatedly that nothing could have induced him to lead the police against the war veterans. He said he had threatened to resign unless a proposed manifestation of the veterans, which would have caused trouble, was called off.

"Could Have Avoided Bloodshed."

When Deputy Henry Haye asked him, "Do you believe if you were still heading the prefecture of police on the night of Feb. 6 there would have been no bloodshed?" Chiappe answered: "I have a record. For seven years I applied humanitarian methods, which were recognized as efficacious. I profoundly believe that if I were present France would have had no dead to mourn."

Chiappe's charges had no sooner been made public tonight than Frot came back with an indignant denial. He called them "nothing more than a detective novel." To this Chiappe snapped back with a brief statement that he stuck by every word he had said.

Surprisingly enough, Camille Chautemps, Daladier's colleague and predecessor, supported Chiappe's testimony.

At the conclusion of the hearing the commission decided to confront Daladier and Frot with Chiappe at Friday's hearing.

DAICHES' BOOKS EXAMINED FOR MURDER MOTIVE

With apparently no more success than has attended their earlier efforts, police and state's attorney's investigators yesterday continued to examine the financial affairs of Eli Daiches, head of an advertising agency, in an effort to solve the mystery which hides the motive for his murder. Auditors were examining books of the agency yesterday to determine how Daiches' affairs were involved in the agency finances.

STOP GETTING UP NIGHTS

Lax the Bladder With Juniper Oil, Buchu, Etc.

Drive out the impurities and excess acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Juniper oil is pleasant to take in the form of BUKETS, the bladder laxative, also containing Buchu leaves, etc. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 35c box from any drug store. After four days if not relieved of "getting up nights" go back and get your money. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep.

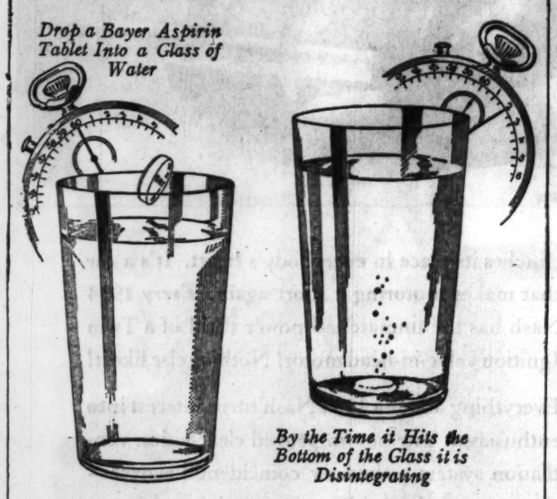
If You Use ASPIRIN

They Show Why Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN is Rated the Fastest Safe Relief From Pain

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

A Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablet Starts To Disintegrate and Go To Work



What Happens in These Glasses Happens in Your Stomach

Quicker Relief Now From Pain

There is now a quicker way to ease pain. A way that often brings relief from even a severe headache or neuritis in a few minutes. Millions are now employing it—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence, to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glasses, above, tell the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Fewer lost hours from headache, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And safe relief—for Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, though, see that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

DOES NOT HARM THE HEART

Through our sky reporter's eyes!

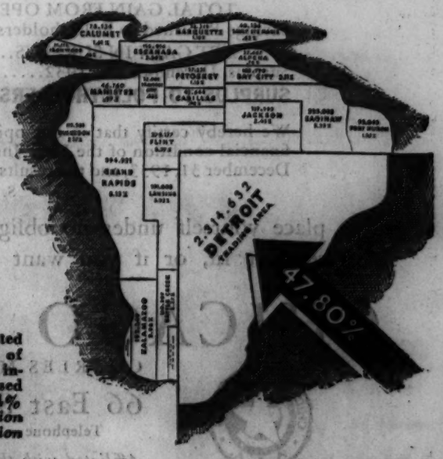
THE 2,300,000 people in the Detroit trading area lift eyes occasionally to glance at The Detroit News airplane as it goes about its business sailing above the fourth greatest market in America. They all know it well, for it has flown 175,000 miles, darting away to where news is breaking . . . making a bee-line to some outlying spot on an errand of immediate importance . . . or soaring high over Detroit studying the city and its environs below, surveying, photographing, a scout and a messenger in the service of The Detroit News. Far beyond the faintest echoes of industry, a voice reaches the sky reporter clearly: "WWJ speaking!"—the voice of The Detroit News broadcasting station, the first station in this country to broadcast daily.

And down there in the great industrial plants, in the towering office buildings and out through the rich and populous suburbs — out as far as even his eye can see — he knows that the same power that sent him aloft, the same power whose voice fills the sky, is taking form in the printed word, to be read by 280,000 Detroiters. For in the Detroit trading area The News has 42,000 more Sunday and 33,000 more week-day circulation than the next paper. 76% of the city circulation is home-delivered. The News goes to 71% of the better than average purchasing power homes. The Detroit News IS THUS AN ACTUAL AND VITAL PART OF DETROIT VIEWED FROM ANY ANGLE!

Nearly a million letters are received by the editors of The News annually. It publishes 529,127 individual want ads in a year. The influence of The Detroit News upon the people of the Detroit trading area is so evident to those who do business in Detroit that, in the year 1933, as in previous years, The Detroit News was the overwhelming first choice of each of the five largest retail advertisers in Detroit. These five largest department stores used 132% more space in The Detroit News than in the second paper — 32% more in The News than in the other two papers combined. The Detroit News carried as much total advertising as both other papers combined.

With Detroit demonstrating the most amazing rebound from the period of depression of any major American city, The Detroit News presents a real opportunity for any one seeking to do business in this area.

The great leadership of The News is the result of natural demand. It is a newspaper edited by Detroiters for the people of Detroit.



Here in the Detroit trading area is concentrated 47.80% of Michigan's total population; 57% of Michigan's wage earners; 65% of Michigan's income tax returns; and 59% of Michigan's assessed valuation. The Detroit News has better than 84% of its Sunday and 94% of its week-day circulation concentrated in this area — the largest circulation of any Detroit newspaper!

YOUNGER INSULL FIGHTS TAXES ON FAMILY INCOME

Takes Witness Stand to Oppose Increase.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Samuel Insull Jr., son of the fugitive utilities baron, took the witness stand before the United States board of tax appeals today in an effort to fight off a new attempt by the federal government to assess additional income taxes against his father, mother, and himself.

Before young Insull was called to the stand, Allin H. Pierce, counsel for the government in the Insull tax cases, informed Charles P. Smith, who presided, that the government had decided it should actually increase the deficiency taxes it is endeavoring to collect from the Insulls because of certain stock deals.

The government is already seeking to collect $198,656 in additional taxes from Samuel Insull Sr., $26,872 from Samuel Jr., and $17,280 from Margaret A. Insull.

Predicts Tax Increase.

Attorney Pierce declared in presenting the government's case that the bureau of internal revenue probably will increase the amount of back taxes assessed against all of the Insulls because of certain stock transactions which they put through in forming the Insull Utilities Investment, Inc., in 1929.

In setting up this company, a family holding company, the Insulls all turned over securities they held and received back stock and options in the new corporation. Previously the government has held this exchange of securities tax exempt, but in new motions filed today by Pierce the government now asks the right to tax any gain which the Insulls received as a result of swapping stocks.

Further research in Insull's documents now impounded in Chicago will be necessary to build up the government's new claim and to determine the exact amount of the additional tax to be assessed, Pierce said. He asked permission from the board of tax appeals for two weeks in which to complete this work.

Claims Levy Exemption.

The government's new claim was hotly contested by Laurence Graves, counsel for the Insulls, who called young Samuel Insull to the witness stand in an effort to show that the stock trades resulting in the creation of Insull Utilities Investment were of a tax-exempt nature.

During the course of his testimony young Insull declared that the family holding company of Insull Utilities Investment was formed to keep the family interests in three Chicago utilities and Midwest Utilities from falling into the hands of bankers upon the death of members of the family.

GREECE MAKES THIRD MEDICAL INSPECTION OF INSULL SR. TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, March 7.—A third medical examination to determine, perhaps finally, whether Samuel Insull is able to travel beyond the Greek frontier will be carried out at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, two hours after the order requiring him to leave expires. For two months now the fugitive Chicago utilities promoter has not been outside his door, as far as is known.

The examination will be conducted by Profs. Vladimir Bensis and Spyros Livieratos, the specialists who made a previous examination with the same purpose nearly six weeks ago. Then they found that Insull was able to travel if care was taken. John Moundjourides, minister of interior, in a letter Monday told the 74 year old man to get out of Greece within 48 hours or else be deported to the United States. Insull received the notice and a laissez passer yesterday morning, when the order became effective.

Government procrastination was the object of attacks today by two party organs representing factions which support the government coalition. The most important, Hestia, alluded to graft, asserting that opinion is growing in Greece and abroad that Insull saved more of his fortune than he is willing to admit and that his stay is attributable to "means more convincing than those an honester and poorer foreigner could employ."

EX-QUEEN MEETS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW FOR FIRST TIME

PARIS, March 7.—(AP)—The illness of the count of Covadonga—who once was the prince of the Asturias and heir to the Spanish throne — today brought together his mother, former Queen Victoria, and his wife, for whom he renounced his royal rights.

The meeting, the first between the two women since the marriage last June of the count and the daughter of a Cuban merchant, took place in a hotel room beside the bed where the young man lay ill with grippe.

The former queen, accompanied by two daughters, spent some time in the room. The count, who is nursed by his wife, was reported on the road to recovery.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN 60.

Mrs. Mary Olson, 60 years old, 424 South Peoria street, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries she suffered three months ago in a fall at her home.

THREE CONVICTS SHOT WHEN THEY ATTEMPT TO FLEE TEXAS PRISON

Huntsville, Tex., March 7.—(AP)—Three convicts were shot down and two others forced to surrender, frustrating an attempted break from the Texas penitentiary early today in which authorities believe the love affairs of Bonnie Parker, cigar smoking gunwoman, figured.

The effort to scale the walls ended in a blaze of buckshot from the guns of alert guards.

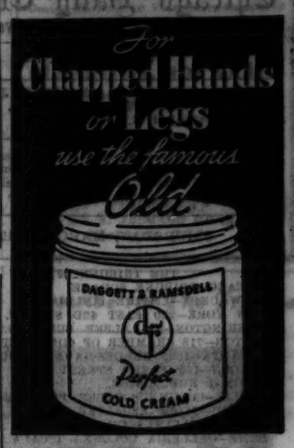
Those wounded in the escape attempt were Charles Frazier, serving two 99 year sentences for robbery with firearms; Pete Finch, 10 years for burglary, and Edward McArthur, 10 years, burglary. Physicians said Frazier might die.

ALLMAN PLANS NEW DRIVE FOR AUTO TAG FEES

Motorists without city and state licenses will face another period of wholesale arrests Tuesday unless they show renewed interest in paying fees now more than two months overdue. Police Commissioner Allman gave this warning yesterday after a marked slowing up of license applications.

The secretary of state's Chicago office at 120 South Ashland avenue is equipped to handle 10,000 applications daily, but is averaging only about 4,000 at present.

At the city collector's office, where a million dollar business was done in the week of the first police drive on delinquents, collections yesterday were only $26,700. Daily receipts during the last week have averaged $40,000. This indicates approximately 3,000 applications daily. Despite the recent decrease, however, collections total approximately $600,000 more than at this time last year. Receipts to date amount to $3,345,188.



NORMAN DAVIS OFF TO SWEDEN ON KREUGER DEAL

LONDON, March 7.—(AP)—Norman Davis, United States ambassador-at-large, left for Stockholm today, ending a six-day "unofficial" visit to London.

"There is nothing for me to say now regarding disarmament as I have been here purely in an unofficial capacity," said the American disarmament expert. "I expect to clean up my work in Stockholm in two or three weeks and then I may return to London. I don't know now whether I will return directly to America or stay in Europe. It all depends on the developments in the disarmament situation whether I am needed at this time."

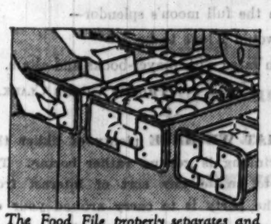
In Stockholm, Davis will devote himself to his assignment as chairman of the international committee of creditors reorganizing the Ivar Kreuger interests.

Relief Cheater Guilty; Promises Restitution

Michael Castro, 46 years old, 1018 South Central Park avenue, was placed on probation for six months yesterday after he was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses from the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Castro promised Judge Frederick W. Elliot in the South State Street court he would return $88, the value of grocery orders he received fraudulently from the commission.

KELVINATOR

THE REFRIGERATOR WITH "a Place for Everything"



The Food File properly separates and preserves fresh vegetables, dairy foods and left-overs.

Pastries are made more delicious and more easily with Kelvinator's refrigerated Pastry Set.

THE new Kelvinator which is really "4 refrigerators in 1," truly gives you "a place for everything." Properly spaced shelves take care of general items. The Frost Chest preserves meat, game or fish indefinitely.

And then there is the Food File, Kelvinator's unique contribution to orderliness and economy. Three chrome-fronted compartments that are a joy to the housewife. There's the Crisper for vegetables and table greens, the Dairy Section for butter, eggs and cheese, and the Thrift Trays whose covered compartments take care of usable left-overs.

We can't go into detail about the refrigerated Pastry Set, the crockery water jug, the automatic interior lighting, the folding shelf that admits extra-tall bottles, and the unequalled ice capacity, nor the refined beauty of the cabinets. We would much rather you would see the Kelvinator. Why not come in to-morrow and let us show you these beautiful new Kelvinators? (K-4962-4)

PAUL GARRETT ANNOUNCES THE RETURN OF

Virginia Dare

—AMERICA'S MOST DISTINGUISHED WINE!

PRIOR to 1920, Virginia Dare was the largest selling bottled wine in the United States . . .

It contributed to the gaiety and hospitality of millions of American homes . . .

It was considered, by connoisseurs, America's outstanding contribution to the fine wines of the world . . .

And today, Virginia Dare is back! It's back—and it is offered to you, by Mr. Paul Garrett, with the same guarantee it bore in the old days: "If Virginia Dare does not fully live up to your expectations the full purchase price will be refunded!"

To those of a new generation, that guarantee will bring assurance. To those who knew Virginia Dare before, the fact that it is still the product of Garrett & Company is all the assurance necessary.

For this company is America's pioneer wine-grower—pioneer in point of time (it was established in 1835) and in its policy of trail-blazing, rather than imitating. It is proud of its name and reputation—and you can be sure that any wine in a bottle bearing the Garrett label is pure wine, wholesome wine, and good wine.

Virginia Dare in your home

You'll find Virginia Dare incomparable among the dessert wines of all the world. But unlike so many dessert wines, it does not cloy. Its fruitiness is refreshing, and its clean, delightful aftertaste is an invitation to fill the glass again.

Try Virginia Dare as soon as you can get a bottle. Climax tonight's dinner with it. Or serve it this afternoon or evening with cakes or similar accompaniment. The whole family will enjoy it.

$1.25 THE BOTTLE

*NOTE: If your dealer has not received his supply of Virginia Dare, phone one of these wholesalers, and they will tell you where to get it.

THE PRESIDENT ON CRITICISM.

No public man in our political history has had a greater gift for ingratiating utterance than President Roosevelt, and to the spirit and general intention of his address to the NRA code administration there will be a cordial response from the public regardless of opinion or affiliation. Agreement upon the measures advanced by the administration for the accomplishment of recovery and for those hoped for betterments of human relations and economic conditions he prophesies is, of course, another matter, and it is this inevitable consideration that gives a special relevancy to the President's remarks on criticism. The distinction between constructive and nonconstructive criticism has always been urged by those who are in authority to discredit dissent. But if a patient is convinced that the treatment prescribed for him is doing him more harm than good he is likely to feel that stopping it is the most constructive criticism that could be applied. He will hardly hold with the President that such a critic "contributes nothing." Certainly that did not seem to be the view of the critics in Mr. Roosevelt's party in the unceasing and sometimes savage criticism to which Mr. Roosevelt's predecessor was subjected in circumstances as difficult and critical as those with which Mr. Roosevelt is dealing.

When an administration embarks upon a program confessedly revolutionary, including many measures unprecedented and admittedly experimental, it can hardly in common sense expect to be free from objection which is founded on the conviction that the first essential is to prevent or remove measures that are erroneous and injurious. This objection is or may be as patriotic and necessary as the proposal of alternatives. In fact, the alternative is relief from injurious treatment. It is as patriotic and as constructive to preserve what is good in the principles and practices of the present and past as to devise new measures. The protagonists of the New Deal have, in the opinion of its critics, too little regard for it and proceed upon the assumption that any objection to their devices offers no alternative save the continuation of the misfortunes of the last four years. With this sweeping and reckless conclusion the critics of the new measures do not agree and we do not think this dissent is lacking in patriotism or constructive alternatives. There is no such issue, as the President would seem to have us assume, between a stubborn or malevolent resistance to competent reforms and an inspired constructive effort to abolish the errors of the past and build a more perfect society. There may be error or even wrong motives to be found in the body of dissent with which his program or parts of it is confronted, but free discussion and criticism are the life of free government and an essential of progress upon terms acceptable to a free people. Criticism of the New Deal is not lacking in alternatives even when, upon one device of the program or another, it proposes only a negative for a negative and in many cases releases forces which an erroneous measure is crippling.

Certainly the NRA by the President's own admission has been the better for criticism, even such as has not aspired to an alternative but would have private enterprise released from its experimentation. Other measures and objectives of the administration are perhaps even more deserving of the criticism and objection of Americans not yet ready to abandon their heritage or not convinced that the various proposals of the administration are likely to bring about the betterments in American conditions which their proponents predict.

CRIMINAL CONTROL IN INDIANA.

A dispatch from Indianapolis gives some of the political background against which the Dillinger fiasco stands out with a new significance. It is a picture of ruthless spoils politics and unscrupulous personal ambition in which Dillinger is an appropriate detail. The demoralization of the government of Indiana, brought about with the aid of a complacent legislature, in order to entrench the governor in power, has been disclosed piecemeal to the outside public, but the astounding facts culminating in the Crown Point escape have advertised to the nation a condition which the people of Indiana will have to deal with on a comprehensive scale.

A political régime which has shown favoritism to deadly criminals is not to be rehabilitated by the recapture of Dillinger, if he is recaptured, or by his honest trial, conviction, and punishment—much less by the discharge of a few petty jobholders. The misgovernment for which McNutt and his political backing are responsible is not limited to the incompetence and corruption revealed by the Michigan City and Crown Point affairs. It certainly has the widest ramifications in state affairs and it can only be treated by radical surgery. It has shown that crime controls the government of the state in those functions in which crime is interested and such an alliance reveals an official conscience which will put no check on the appetite for graft and spoils.

The Dillinger case should be profitable to Indiana at least in illustrating the full meaning of an unscrupulous régime. That régime will have to be abolished before Indiana can recover its self-respect or hope to restore honest and competent public administration. The Democratic party of the state has been captured by the worst elements and cannot be trusted with government. Its reputable membership has been unable to prevent this misfortune to the party and to the state and for the credit of both will have to accept the alternative which it is to be hoped Republican leadership will now present responsibly and effectively.

Gov. McNutt and his régime began to destroy responsible administration from the moment they had been given power and they will have to be thrown out as soon as possible. The party they control and dishonor cannot expect the confidence of the reputable people of Indiana. The Republican administration which the McNutt régime displaced had serious blemishes, especially during the era of dry bigotry, but McNutt and his aids have far outdistanced it and it may be hoped that Republican leadership, chastened by defeat and confronted by the deplorable consequences of McNutt's administration, will return to the responsibilities of government with a determination to restore the state's affairs to a reputable condition.

SENATOR LONG AND THE NEW DEAL.

Not all is New Dealing in Washington. The boys are still in the back room where the smoke is thick and the cards are well thumbed. The people of Louisiana who want to get rid of Senators Long and Overton, Long's governor, Allen, and all of Huey's works are having many interesting experiences with the old deal in the United States senate. These experiences would repay a specialized study. The findings might have some bearing on the prospects of the planned society. They would deal with its political instrumentalities.

Long is accused of gross frauds perpetrated to nominate Senator Overton and control the state. The unsatisfactory investigations thus far conducted have avoided about everything avoidable, but nevertheless have reached conclusions stated in the report made by Senator Connally, chairman of the special committee, that frauds were committed. One avoidance was in failure to find any responsibility for them. The people of Louisiana know who was responsible. Long was.

The charges against the senator were given the senate last April. They were properly referable to the committee on privileges and elections. They were sent, upon Long's insistence, to the judiciary committee, of which he is a member, to determine whether the people were privileged to present their petition and whether the senate had a right to receive it. Ten months later the chairman of the judiciary committee discovered that the matter belonged to the committee on privileges and elections and it was restored to that jurisdiction, but without an answer to the questions of privilege and right. The fact that the judiciary committee does not answer the questions is now used by the committee on privileges and elections as a justification for its refusal to permit open hearings, in which the petitioners, accusers of Long, may be represented by counsel of their own choosing.

Senator Connally's special committee has found that fraud and corruption prevailed in the state primaries, but two other committees have put the necessitous inquiry into responsibility in a bag. The senators in control of the situation obviously are trying to wear down the spirit of Long's opponents, tire them out, exhaust their patience and determination, and make their cause costly to them, if not in the end hopeless.

When Long undertook to abuse the administration it was made known that the department of justice was interested in his income taxes. As a nuisance to the administration he at once became moderately abated, but as a nuisance to the better people of his own state he is protected by the shuffling and shifting of the senators.

It is directly to the point when the Louisiana petitioners remind the senate that it is investigating the conduct of private citizens and is ignoring charges of fraud and corruption within the citadel of government. The New Deal makes much of ethical standards. It will need them, but it will not maintain them by tolerating or protecting political frauds.

Editorial of the Day

PASSING THE BUCK.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

With the not inconsiderable stake of $131,000 involved to justify their interest, Rockford taxpayers, school officials, and school employés will watch attempts in the state legislature to pass legislation to aid harassed downstate school districts.

That sum is the amount owed Rockford's board of education from the state distributive school fund and in back tuitions of pupils who attended the city high school from nonhigh school districts of Winnebago county.

Bills passed to date for relief of the Chicago and Cook county situations do little more than authorize school authorities to borrow money from the government and to allow an increase in local school tax rates. This, of course, is throwing the burden back onto the local communities.

It seems likely now that little aid can be expected from the legislature, particularly in face of the fact that elections are not far distant and legislators are notoriously chary of new tax bills at such a time. The fact that the state actually owes some ten million dollars to downstate school districts is not apt to change the situation. Funds from liquor revenues, from diversion of gasoline tax or sales tax funds, or even through a state income tax, which have been proposed by school officials, will not be voted. Legislators are shying away from these proposals.

No bill has yet passed the legislature which would increase school revenue by a penny either in Cook county or downstate, nor is there any likelihood that any such bills will be passed. It had been estimated that the liquor tax would have provided at least $6,000,000 in additional income for all state schools. But no such measure has been introduced.

The only relief which seems possible now is the lifting of the local tax rate limitations, which will have only the effect of allowing local tax spending units more latitude in shifting the available supply of tax revenue around from one to another. It will again be a case in every community of robbing Peter to pay Paul with funds insufficient to go around.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THEY CHANGE 'EM WHILE YOU SLEEP

"If you please, officer," said the Chicago man who had been out of town for several weeks, "I've been away a short time and I suppose the city council has been changing the names of the streets, haven't they?"

"Every few minutes," replied the policeman.

"All right, how do I go to get to the north end of Lincoln park?"

"Walk right along here on Nebuchadnezzar road, turn right when you get to Chmielnicki drive, then go north to Boucher de Crevecoeur de Perthes avenue, and there you take the Khvoshohinskaya-Zaionchkovskay bus."

"It's no use, officer," said the returning traveler, "I could never ride on that bus; I can't even pronounce it. Maybe I'd better go to the stockyards. How do I do that?"

"You'd best grab a street car over there on Manoel de Nescimento road and get off at Li Hung Chang parkway and walk over to Zlatovrotski roadski——"

"Nix!" said the traveler sadly, "I can't do any of 'em. Guess I'll just walk over to Michigan boulevard——"

"And that you will not," interrupted the policeman; "there is no much animule. You mean Mustafa Rescid Pasha terrace."

"Great Heavens!" gasped the returned one. "Has it come to that? Well, all right. How do I get over there?"

"You walk right along on this street——"

"Adams street."

"It is not," said the policeman. "It was once, but since last night it's Surajah Dowlah drive. Well, you cross Count Clemens Wenzel Lothar Matternich boulevard and keep on until you reach Omah Khayyam driveway and——"

"Stop, officer!" interrupted the traveler. "I can stand no more. Let me get back to the station. I want to go to some nice little town down in the country where I can walk on Main street."

"Take a taxi over there on Zsitvatörök road——" said the policeman, but the man did not hear him. He had gone crazy and was climbing a telephone pole and screaming like a wildcat.

THE REBEL.

I am tired of streets and pavements;
I long for the open highways,
For the flinty roads through the mountains,
For the paths that thread the forest,
That hug the mighty rivers—
There would I freely rove,
Who am tired of streets and pavements.

I am weary of marts and traffic,
Of the heartless game of money,
Of the strife of petty mortals.
I would live where men are fewer:
With the honest beasts as neighbors,
The days would treat me kindly.
On the godly wastes of the desert—
There would I freely breathe,
Who am weary of marts and traffic.

I am sated with prayer-books and altars;
I crave the prayer of the night wind
That breathes through the mountain fastness;
I long for the gleam of the dawning
On high, gold-shining places;
For the incense of forest grasses,
Odorous of the autumn;
For the calm, sweet peace of October
Beneath the full moon's splendor—
There would I love to be,
Who am sated with prayer-books and altars.

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

NOW THAT WE HAVE plenty of likker this thing of drinking is getting rather boring. The only way to create any sort of interest from others in the party is to carry around your old silver hip flask loaded with nice pure buttermilk.

MR. ROOSEVELT SAYS it is perfectly right to criticize the New Deal provided we have a better plan to propose. And at just that moment I was making up my mind that I didn't like Brahms' Symphony No 3 in F Major, Opus 90. But before I go on record, according to the President, I've got to write a better symphony in F major than Mr. Brahms wrote. I don't know one note from another, but I'm doing my best. Gosh! Suppose when it's done I'll find out I wrote the darned thing in C Sharp instead of F Major? They're all the same to me. But I'll do the best I can. I do want to say that Brahms' Symphony in F Major gives me a pain in the neck. But, of course, I can't do it until I've written a better symphony in F Major. And I'll do it or bust!

THESE WINTER NIGHTS.

These winter nights we plan a farm,
Drawn from a picture book,
With windmill tall and rustic charm
And cows beside a brook.

A path of sea shells to the door
And lilacs in the spring,
With soft fur rugs upon the floor—
We've thought of everything.

But if 'twere ours, dear, white and gay,
Complete from beam to beam,
I'm sure we'd sell and move away—
We only like to dream.

JUDY SHEA.

OVER IN EUROPE they have to have revolutions in order to give a zest to existence. But over here if we can have a good juicy murder trial now and then we're perfectly nice and happy.

NERVOUS PEOPLE AND DRUGS.

THE specialists in insanity are beginning to write about the harmful effects on the mind of bromides and the related synthetic, sleep producing remedies, the barbiturates. The increasing use of a method for testing the blood for the amount of bromides it contains is adding to the information on the subject.

A study of the use of drugs has shown that the people do more prescribing than the physician. Of every hundred pounds of drugs sold for human use far less than fifty pounds is prescribed by physicians. Far more than that is bought by the people themselves and taken on their own responsibility.

There is no way of knowing, but there is strong reason for suspecting that the so-called drugless healing cults now use more drugs than are used by people who take medicines their physicians prescribe.

The free use of drugs by the people, without regard to the advice of physicians, applies particularly to bromides and the sleep producing barbaturics, this group ranking third to aspirin for aches and to the purgative-laxative group. Drunks take bromides to sober up with and then take more liquor to get drunk again. All sorts of nervous people take bromides. Poor sleepers take bromides by the pound. The drug being considered harmless, people take it without much thought of any after effects.

Physicians see cases of mental disturbance for which bromide is being taken and sometimes suspect that the drug is causing part if not most of the symptoms. Until the bromide blood test came into use they could not go much further than suspect. Now a laboratory can throw positive light on the case.

Dr. M. Levin reported to a meeting of medical attendants at insane hospitals a number of cases of delirium caused by taking bromides. One of the cases had hallucinations as well as delirium. For the time these people were mentally incompetent.

Among the symptoms of semi-insanity due to barbiturates and bromides are radical changes in personality, muscle incoördination, tendency to fall, poor control over bladder and bowels, and interference with special senses such as smell (complaining of nonexistent odors), sight (seeing animals, seeing colors that are not present and numbers of things not in evidence), hearing (hearing imaginary sounds). Some cases are paranoid as well as have delirium and hallucinations.

If a laboratory blood test cannot be made one way of proving or disproving the suspicion is to withdraw all bromides and barbiturates. In about six weeks after withdrawal the delirium and hallucinations (seeing and hearing things) caused by the drugs will have disappeared. About that length of time is required to get the drug out of the nerve cells and to get them back on keel. It was suspected for a while that the withdrawal of bromides from a person who has been accustomed to them causes cell hunger or withdrawal symptoms, as is the case with opium and alcohol addiction. This opinion is not accepted now.

In the discussion of Dr. Levin's communication every physician participating except one had had experiences similar to those of Dr. Levin.

WEAK AT 91 YEARS.

I. D. B. writes: I am 91½ years old. A year ago my strength gave out almost completely and I have been confined to my room since, not even dressed, although I sit up most of the time during the day. My appetite is good and I rest well nights. I suffer no pain and, so far as I know, all organs function normally, but I do not get my strength back, although much stronger than I was. Do you think it possible for me to recover and get about again? If so, what foods should I eat?

2. I was interested in your recent article on iron. Is the albumen in egg harmful to the system?

REPLY.

1. You are doing wonderfully well and are to be congratulated. You cannot expect much comeback in strength, but discuss with your physician whether glycin and ephedrin have any possibilities in your case.

2. Egg albumen is an excellent food, but at your age little of it is needed.

REMEDY FOR CHILBLAINS.

E. M. E. sends the following chilblain remedy: One ounce oil of amber, one ounce oil of spike, one ounce oil of tar, two ounces oil of turpentine. Mix well and apply as needed.

NOT INHERITABLE.

R. B. writes: I have been going out steadily with a fellow and we intend to get married in six months. He told me that two years ago he had had spinal meningitis. He lost a brother from the same disease. Is this disease dangerous? Will we be able to have children without fear of the disease in the blood?

REPLY.

Spinal meningitis is a very dangerous disease, as you know. However, it is not inheritable. There is no danger now to you, nor will there be any to possible children, nor to the public.

SETTLING ESTATE.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and his two sisters are heirs under the will of his mother. A family friend was named as executor, but did not wish to act and asked my husband to take care of the property since he is the only heir living in this state. The will has been filed but not probated. 1. Is it proper for my husband to collect rents, pay taxes, etc.? 2. Is there a time limit after the will is filed when it must be probated? 3. What is the cost of probating a will in Illinois? 4. Should the expense of probating be paid out of income accruing on the property? 5. Can the property be sold before the will is probated? 6. Can any of the money from rents be divided between the heirs before the will is probated, or must it all be paid over to the court? F. L. T.

1. The powers of the executor depend entirely on the wording of the will. If the wording is such that the title is now in the heirs, then the authority to handle the property should come from them.

2. No, in the sense that in some cases probate can be entirely dispensed with.

3. Depends on facts that are not before us.

4. It should be paid out of the available cash. We see no importance between the distinction of principal or income for this purpose.

5. Since creditors are allowed a year in which to file their claims, a title would not be clear until the expiration of such year, but a guaranty policy might be secured on the basis of a surety bond.

6. If the personal property is sufficient to pay the debts, then we see no objection to distribution of the rent. If you have had no more experience in such transactions than is indicated by your letter, it would seem that you should employ an attorney for the probate proceedings.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TERMS OF WILL.

Dwight, Ill., March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some years ago my mother died and left me what property she had, a cottage, five lots [not improved] and outbuildings. This is left in trust and I understand cannot be sold. 1. Can I, if I so choose, make a will and dispose of same as I see fit? The cottage is not occupied, but I have all the property that mother possessed, a piano, my own, some furniture which I stored for a nurse in Chicago. Now when I demand payment of same for 20 months I was told my sister had bought same. 2. What can be done about this? E. J.

1. If your mother's will makes specific provisions as to what is to become of the property after your death, then this would control rather than any will you might make.

2. If your sister has bought the goods from the person who was the owner, then your sister would seem to be the new owner.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON—The congestion of air traffic at Croydon airport is likely to grow much more acute this year with the great development of inland air lines. Several new concerns propose operating air lines from London to Southampton and Plymouth and to Birmingham, the midlands and Scotland.

All these new ventures, as well as some already established, intend to use Croydon. This influx of new business will result in fresh regulations governing the arrival of air liners, especially in bad weather. It will throw an extra strain on the officers in the control tower. It will mean that passengers on inland routes bound for London will often find themselves compelled to continue their journey by road or rail from airports outside the fog belt and the controled zone.

For air traffic from cities like Glasgow, Edinburgh, Newcastle, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester and Birmingham, it is necessary to take passengers to the south side of the Thames. No airport on the north side could be found within 20 miles of London.

The ideal aircraft for these routes is a two-engined machine carrying 10 to 15 passengers which can cruise at 200 miles an hour, with economical fuel consumption. Such a plane would bring the big manufacturing cities within an hour of London. Birmingham would, for instance, be only half an hour away and Glasgow and Edinburgh only a matter of a two-hours' flight.

If an airport were constructed on the north side of London it would mean that an airplane could land its passengers within fifteen minutes' automobile journey from the heart of the city. The saving of mileage in landing on the north side of London when flying from the north is equivalent to adding 30 miles an hour to the cruising speed of the aircraft. Such an airport would have the added advantage of being outside the fog belt and clear of the controled zone around Croydon. It would avoid any crossing of London, a thing always discouraged when there are so many air liners about.

With the arrival of the new inland services, many manufacturers, for instance in Birmingham, will leave home in the morning, fly to their London offices, attend to the morning business, fly back to their factories to keep any necessary appointments, and fly back to London for lunch. If airports are available on the northern side of London, manufacturers will just fly to work each morning in their own planes in the same manner as they drive now in their automobiles.

THE GOVERNMENT AS EMPLOYER.

Chicago, March 5.—The President in his address today said: "Every examination I make, and all the information I receive, lead me to the inescapable conclusion that we must now consider immediate coöperation to secure increase in wages and shortening of hours." A most laudable utterance. Yet as the above words were being uttered an order was promulgated by the President's postmaster, Farley, giving an enforced vacation without pay to postoffice employés and making a rule that no vacations would be granted postoffice employés if it became necessary to hire a substitute. This does not look like increasing the purchasing power of the postoffice employés. In line with the President's appeal for an increase in wages it might be not amiss to bring to notice that, to set the ball rolling, the 15 per cent cut given the federal employés last March to maintain the credit of the United States should be restored. Example is better than precept.

CAPT. JOHN J. FLINN.

WE STRENUOUSLY OPPOSED THE GAG.

Hammond, Ind., March 5.—A few days ago I noted in the current papers that the radio is prohibited from broadcasting news items until after they are published in the press.

Is this a plot of the press to hamper freedom of speech? It would seem so. News is not news until the papers have published it hours after it was really news.

Please explain this in contrast with your dire fears as to loss of freedom of speech and the press. Is it possible you would like to limit the mere and trivial right to freedom of speech? Is it freedom of speech to hamper the radio so as to save the sale of newspapers.?

FROM ELMWOOD PARK.

Elmwood Park, Ill., Feb. 26.—We wish to take this opportunity to extend to you our most sincere thanks for the splendid coöperation extended by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to the taxpayers of Elmwood Park in their fight for lower taxation. You can rest assured that we are heartily in accord with THE TRIBUNE'S Chicago platform. Although not residents, we are of the great Chicagoland which THE TRIBUNE so amply covers.

Mr. William Irvin of the Metropolitan section of your paper has been of great assistance in uncovering the deplorable conditions that exist in our village and the taxpayers certainly appreciate his efforts.

THE PORTRAYAL OF DEATH.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—I wonder if a crusade against the pagan picture of death could be started? Death, which is always pictured as a skeleton with scythe and hour glass, has no promise whatever. We believe that death is the beginning of life; would like to see it pictured as luminous and radiant, with a smile upon its lips, not a grinning skull It's no wonder that our children learn early to fear death when they should be taught that death is only a transition and not a skeleton. ANNE J. RODGERS.

EXTRACTS FROM THE RECORD.

Lake Bluff, Ill., March 2.—I just received by mail today, under a free postal frank, a copy of a speech from our congressman. This, of course, is nothing more than campaign literature and intended to have us believe that our congressman actually made this speech from the floor of the house, a contribution to his ability as an active representative. After consulting the Congressional Record it appears that instead of this speech being made orally it was not even read by its author from the floor of the house, but merely inserted in the records to deceive his constituents at home.

It is my understanding that this is a common practice among the silent and dumb congressmen we keep sending down to Washington to represent us, and if our congressmen do not have the ability to make a three minute speech before this august body of men they should be forbidden to perpetrate such campaign tricks on the public.

The most amusing thing about the entire matter is that they select such subjects as "lower taxes" and "how to overcome the depression" when they have just answered "yea" to a bill calling for a mere $950,000,000.

HARRY E. DRUMMOND.

REGARDING THE ST. LAWRENCE TREATY.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—You err in saying Chicago is limited to only 1,500 c. f. s. diversion.

If foreign trade is dead, then you are correct; we don't need the St. Lawrence. Why, then, are you sending out agents to write up the extraordinary trade opportunities which await us all over the world?

It is also erroneous to say that the United States would be compelled to use only Canadian material and labor in completing the last small link of 25 miles of the more than 2,000 miles of the mighty St. Lawrence, on which some 400 millions have already been expended.

You are a great, progressive, patriotic publication. Why not open your columns to those who favor the St. Lawrence and let the people have both viewpoints so they can judge as to what is correct? You allowed Prof. Moulton and Judge O'Connor 1,500 words each to oppose the St. Lawrence. Why not give the advocates the same space if, as you contend, those advocating it have no leg to stand on? That would quickly determine the controversy. SIDNEY STORY.

BABY CLOTHES.

Goshen, Ind., Feb. 19.—In the Rotogravure section of THE TRIBUNE of Feb. 18 I note two baby pictures and a communication from the German consul general in Chicago in which he declares the one to be a "false baby picture" of Chancellor Adolf Hitler and the other an "authentic photograph" before he had attained the age of one year.

Fashions in infant attire change with the years as much as do adult styles. Some forty-odd years ago, when Herr Hitler was a babe of less than a year, the tots were not wearing the abbreviated dresses, socks, etc., shown in the "authentic photograph." I would not want to vouch for the authenticity of the falsification, but would wager my last dollar that the photograph submitted by the Berlin foreign office was taken some time within the last ten or fifteen years.

DANDRUFF

A Sure Way to End It.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get some plain, ordinary liquid Arvon from any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents (35c). Apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rubbing it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

GERMAN-POLISH PACT SIGNED TO STOP TRADE WAR

Ends 8½ Years of Bitter Tariff Levies.

WARSAW, Poland, March 7.—(AP)—Poland expects at least a 30 per cent increase in commercial trade when a German-Polish peace protocol, signed today, becomes effective March 15.

The agreement terminating eight and a half years of friction over customs measures and counter measures, was not a regular trade treaty, but merely an arrangement for canceling discriminatory measures against imports from either country.

Col. Joseph Beck, Polish foreign minister, signed the protocol, the forerunner of a trade treaty to be signed later. By the measure a long step apparently was achieved in the program of Chancellor Hitler of Germany to "live in peace with Poland."

Let in Polish Iron.

Under the agreement Germany will cease applying a maximum tariff schedule toward Poland, will admit 42,000 tons annually of Polish ironware, 2,400 tons of steel and a fixed quota of scrap iron. Transit into Germany of Polish live stock and farm products will be permitted. In return Poland will drop maximum tariffs on imports from Germany and will allow fixed quotas on a variety of German commodities.

An agreement has been reached between Polish and German shipping lines that 50 per cent of the freights from German to Polish ports shall be carried by Polish bottoms if the freights reach 100,000 tons per annum. The particular interests of the free city of Danzig are specially safeguarded.

The new agreement is expected to gave a powerful fillip to German-Polish trade, which dwindled from 750,000,000 marks (about $292,500,000) in 1924 to 110,000,000 marks ($42,900,000) in 1933.

Still Points of Dispute.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 7.—German business men hail with satisfaction the trade pact with Poland which was signed at Warsaw today. They are confident German exporters will regain the greater part of their lost trade, especially at the expense of England and Czechoslovakia. Henceforth, German firms will also be able to compete for contracts for Polish works.

However, semi-official "information" stresses that today's agreement still is far removed from a trade treaty. Several serious problems remain to be solved. Poland's demands that Germany permit Polish seasonal farm hands to enter Germany, and that Germany grant an import quota for Polish coal, cannot be acceded to at present, since Germany has 4,000,000 jobless, the "information" declares.

On the other hand, in accordance with international law, a trade treaty must give German firms the right to establish branches in Poland and also give Germans the right to reside in Poland.

Bullitt to Be 'Flying Envoy'; Takes U. S. Plane to Moscow

MOSCOW, March 7.—(AP)—It William C. Bullitt carries out his present intentions he probably will become known as Moscow's first foreign "flying ambassador."

It was revealed today the first American ambassador to the soviet had taken a suggestion of Michael Kalinin, president of the U. S. S. R., literally and brought a regulation army plane with him in which he hopes to see much of this country.

When they first met nearly three months ago Kalinin said, "I hope you will see a lot of our country," responding to Bullitt's expressed wish to travel extensively here.

Suggests a Plane.

"I would like to," the ambassador answered, "but you must remember you have not so much a country as a continent."

"Then why don't you bring in a plane?" came back the president.

Part of the official embassy baggage, it was learned shortly after Bullitt's arrival today, is a small United States army observation plane, which is now in Hamburg awaiting shipment to Moscow.

Officially it will be a part of the equipment of the military attaché of the American embassy here and will be in direct charge of Lieut. Thomas D. White, former commandant of Bolling Field, Va., who is assistant military attaché at the embassy.

Bullitt himself is not a pilot and on any trips he may make he will be piloted by White.

Sees No War Threat.

Upon his arrival the ambassador, who was here recently to arange for housing the embassy, expressed belief that there would be no war in the orient and that the United States should increase its purchases from Russia if she expects to get many commercial orders from the soviet.

The state department, he revealed, has been studying the question of greater American purchases of soviet goods and said it held great possibilities "without competing with more production."

Russian purchases abroad have been declining since completion of the first five year plan and the soviet is now in a much stronger position to bargain.

Twenty-three attachés and secretaries, John Wiley, embassy counselor, and a white Skye terrier were in Bullitt's party.

Officials of the foreign office greeted him at the station and the ambassador was driven to the embassy, a magnificent residence once the property of a sugar magnate.

NOTABLES SPEAK AT N. Y. MASS MEETING; FLAY HITLER REGIME

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—A mass meeting in Madison Square Garden tonight, after a mock trial in which Hitlerism was denounced, rendered judgment that the Nazi government stood convicted before the world of a crime against civilization.

The verdict was read by United States Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.]. This document recited what it termed wrongs committed by the Hitler régime against mankind.

"We declare," read this indictment, which was transformed into a judgment, "that the Hitler government is compelling the German people to turn back from civilization to an antiquated and barbarous despotism which menaces the progress of mankind toward peace and freedom, and is a present threat against civilized life throughout the world."

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Mayor F. H. La Guardia and others testified on behalf of American public opinion. Samuel Seabury summed up the case for civilization.

CRAWFORD AVE. NAME CHANGE IS DELAYED BY CITY

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that although the Appellate court recently ordered dissolved an injunction which restrained the city from immediately changing the name of Crawford avenue to Pulaski road, there will be no further action taken until a group of business men who opposed the change in the courts have an opportunity to appeal the Appellate court finding to the state Supreme court. The mayor added that the city has no money to change the street signs.

GERMAN PASTORS MAP DRIVE FOR A FREE CHURCH

BERLIN, March 7.—(AP)—The creation of a movement looking toward the complete independence of the church and state was discussed today in a meeting of 300 opponents of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller.

Members of the Pastors' Emergency federation—the opposition force in the bitter Protestant argument over leadership, Bishop Mueller's "dictatorial" methods, and teachings—and laymen assembled to worship in the church of their leader, the Rev. Martin Niemoeller.

Pastor Ulbrecht in a sermon told them that "joy in the Lord and not church political organizations or manipulations is the backbone of the Protestant church." In a prayer he asked divine aid for deliberations of a "free synod," as the assemblage constituted itself during a subsequent meeting in the parish house.

Shanghai Launches Drive for New Deal for Coolies

SHANGHAI, March 7.—(AP)—Authorities of the Shanghai foreign quarter today began a drive to clean up the Jinrikisha "racket." Shanghai has 40,000 coolies who make their living, such as it is, pulling the little two-wheel carts. The authorities, in beginning their cleanup campaign, said Jinrikisha fleet owners were growing rich on human misery.

Nazis Sentence Two Reds to Die, Three to Prison

DORTMUND, Germany, March 7.—(AP)—Two communists were sentenced to death today and three others to fifteen years' imprisonment for slaying a Nazi storm trooper here last June.

FIRE AT CUBAN CABINET LEADER; SITUATION TENSE

State Secretary Escapes Machine Gun Bullets.

HAVANA, March 7.—(AP)—An attempt on the life of Secretary of State Cosme de la Torriente today increased the tension of a situation which even the most conservative observers called extremely precarious because of strikes and rumors of revolt.

While machine guns bristled atop the presidential palace, unidentified persons he called communists fired at the veteran Torriente with a submachine gun as he was leaving his downtown home.

"This is the doing of communists," said the minister, toward whom, like other cabinet members, some of the public unrest resulting from adverse economic conditions has reflected.

The strike situation remained in the status quo, but this problem was considered the most serious of several confronting President Carlos Mendieta. Seven men remained under arrest, charged with conspiring against the government.

Mendieta has moved to meet the crisis by assuming wide powers, suspending ten important personal guarantees in the provisional constitution, and signing the "law of national defense."

He ordered the immediate deportation of all alien agitators. Under the suspension of guarantees enemies of the administration can be jailed ten days without charge. Some predicted a wide cabinet split as a result.

The defense law provides for the creation of special courts to "impose sentences of not less than six months or more than two years, or fines of $500 to $5,000 or both, "for those convicted of such crimes as inciting to rebellion, breaking laws governing strikes, spreading propaganda, and storing arms and ammunition.

FIND 2 PLANETS IN MARS, JUPITER ASTEROID GROUP

ALGIERS, March 7.—(AP)—The discovery of two small planets was announced by the Algiers observatory today.

It was said they are like two previously reported on Jan. 9 by the same observatory, belonging to a group of asteroids circulating between Mars and Jupiter.

The two satellites—which have been designated 1934 BA and 1934 CL—were found on photographs taken through a telescope Jan. 18 and Feb. 10. They have been classified by the international astronomical office at Berlin as of the 14th magnitude.

CRAZED VETERAN BATTLES POLICE IN 2 HOUR SIEGE

100 Shots Fired; 2 Girl Captives Injured.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 7.—[Special.]—A crazed Spanish war veteran who had enticed two girls into a house stood off fifty police in a bloody gun fight lasting for nearly two hours today.

When the man, Walter Bevin, 65, was finally captured as a burst of gun fire dropped him in the doorway one of the girls was found to have a bullet wound in the knee and both were suffering from tear gas, thrown into the house by police.

100 Shots in Battle.

More than 100 shots were exchanged as 500 men, women, and children watched. One bystander was injured by a stray bullet and three policemen and one fireman suffered from tear gas.

The girls, Stasin Haraburdma and Hedwig Glinska, were seen to go with Bevin in the house about 1 p. m. A passerby notified police. When they appeared at the door Bevin started shooting.

The girls who are 15, said Bevin had lured them into the house on the pretext they would be given money for housecleaning. They said at first Bevin had not harmed them but admitted later that he had attacked each of them. Police believe they escaped death only because Bevin believed them dead when they were overcome with the gas in the second floor bedroom.

Finally Shot Down.

Bevin, loading and reloading a .38 caliber army pistol, battled against surrender until he was driven to the street door by tear gas shells fired from special rifles. He is believed to be in a dying condition in the Memorial hospital, Roxborough, of gunshot wounds in the chest.

Inspection of the house disclosed a cigar box with 18 more pistol bullets, and a large cardboard box containing hundreds of steel jacketed bullets.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Something Wrong

MOSES BORN, CHAIRMAN OF TAILORING FIRM, DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Moses Born, chairman of the board of the tailoring firm bearing his name, died yesterday of a heart attack in Pasadena, Cal., where he was spending the winter. He was 83 years old.

MOSES BORN.

Mr. Born was born in Wollenberg, Germany, and emigrated to America at the age of 16. He came to Chicago in 1876 and engaged in the retail tailoring business at 45 South Clark street. A year later he founded a firm under the name of M. Born & Co.

Active in charitable enterprises, Mr. Born served for a time as trustee of the Michael Reese hospital and as a director of the Jewish Charities of Chicago. He was a former president of the Standard club and the first president of the Lake Shore Country club. He lived in Glencoe.

Mr. Born is survived by two daughters and two sons, Mrs. Adelaide B. Rosenbaum, Mrs. Florence B. Foreman, and Alfred R. and Edgar R. Born. His wife, Mrs. Isabella Born, died last May. The body will be brought to Chicago.

MRS. SCHOOLMAN, SOCIAL SERVICE LEADER, IS DEAD

Mrs. Bessie Koenigsberg Schoolman, for many years a leader in community service work, died yesterday in her home at 2301 Diversey parkway. She was 64 years old. Mrs. Schoolman was co-founder with Mary McDowell of the University of Chicago settlement house. She was the founder of the Institute Women's club, an organizer of the Jewish Educational alliance, and a past president of the Northwest branch of Chicago Hadassah. Mrs. Schoolman is survived by her husband and three children, Dr. Edward N., psychologist and lecturer; Ralph, dramatic and radio performer, and Eleanor, a social worker.

MRS. FLORSHEIM LEAVES $600,000 TO HER HUSBAND

The will of Mrs. Lillian W. Florsheim, who died last week in her home at 1540 Lake Shore drive, was filed for probate yesterday with George B. Weiss, assistant to the probate judge. The will disposed of an estate of $600,000 to Mrs. Florsheim's husband, Louis, a director of the Florsheim Shoe company. Of the estate $520,000 is in personal property and the remainder in real estate. Mrs. Florsheim was 53 years old.

COMMONS BEATS LABOR'S FIGHT ON SHIPPING MERGER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—By an overwhelming majority, the North Atlantic shipping bill, empowering the treasury to advance sums not exceeding $47,500,000 for completion of the Cunard liner "No. 534" and to build a sister ship or ships, passed second reading in the house of commons tonight. A feature of the debate was the surprising opposition from Laborites, who have been the loudest in clamoring for government assistance in resumption of work on the giant vessel to relieve unemployment in the shipyards. Morgan Jones, in behalf of the Labor opposition, moved an amendment for rejection of the bill. He complained that it contained no provisions for ultimate nationalization of the shipping industry and proposed to advance money to private interests unaccompanied by any gaurantees as to repayment.

Even among Laborites the amendment found little favor. It was defeated by 194 votes to 30.

STRIVE IN VAIN TO NAB FIGHTING U.S. CONGRESSMAN

Warant Bobs Around Capital.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—A warant for the arrest of Representative Francis Shoemaker, fist swinging ex-convict congressman from Minnesota, was bobbing about somewhere in the capital tonight, but for one reason or another was never served.

Some said the Minnesotan, wanted for socking a taxi driver in the eye, deliberately eluded service of the warant by retiring to the immunity of his congressional office on the "hill." Others blamed the local police force for failing to serve the papers on Mr. Shoemaker, intimating that the power of congressional influence made the police department cautious, if not timid.

In any event, if District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett has his way, the irritable congressman eventually will have to appear in court and stand trial on charges of assaulting Charles Newman, the cab driver who swore out the warant for his arrest.

Mr. Garnett and Mr. Shoemaker engaged in a hot tilt of their own today.

Congressman Shoemaker, it was reported, announced that he would swear out a warant for the cab driver on charges of perjury. Mr. Garnett suggested that he wait until after the assault trial and see whether there really had been perjury.

"There ain't going to be any trial," shouted the two fisted Farmer-Laborite.

"O, yes, there is," responded the district attorney with equal heat.

SEIZE AUTO THIEF AS HE WORKS ON STOLEN MACHINE

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 30; recovered, 35; stripped, 4 [from police records for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight Tuesday].

A police squad from the detective bureau automobile detail led by Sergt. William Taub yesterday seized an automobile thief in a garage at 2948 West Van Buren street, while he was changing the motor numbers of a stolen automobile. As the squad entered the thief was preparing to stamp a new number on the motor with a grinding wheel and a set of dies.

The prisoner is Joseph LaBow, 2908 Flournoy street. After his seizure the squad waited in the garage for twenty-four hours hoping to capture other members of a gang with whom he is believed to be associated, but no one appeared. The automobile which LaBow was working on had been stolen Monday from in front of 2822 Fillmore street. The car belonged to Andrew Rizzo, 4841 St. Paul avenue.

ELECTION FRAUD CASES ASSIGNED TO JUDGE KNOCH

County Judge Jarecki yesterday assigned Judge Win G. Knoch of Wheaton, who is sitting in County court here, to hear the thirty election fraud cases now pending in the County court. Most of the cases are outgrowths of the investigation made by election commissioners' representatives after evidence of the frauds was uncovered during the Samuel Heller-Erwin Hasten Municipal court recount. Attorney John F. Cashen Jr., who has been assigned as special prosecutor of the vote fraud cases, announced that he is sending out notices to all defendants to appear before Judge Knoch and have dates set for their trials.

3 AIR EXPERTS TO PROBE CRASH WHICH KILLED 4

U. S. Urging to Plumb Weather Angle.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Three air line inspectors from the department of commerce were ordered today to investigate immediately the crash of an air liner which killed four men near Petersburg, Ill., last night.

Meanwhile, Eugene Vidal, air line chief of the department of commerce, and Maj. R. W. Schroeder, head of the department's air line inspectors, dispatched letters of sympathy to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on the death of Hugh Sexton, TRIBUNE aviation editor who died in the accident.

Not Special Investigation.

The three inspectors who were ordered to investigate the crash were R. M. Jacobs of Chicago, W. O. Sargent of Kansas City, and O. D. Murphy of Cleveland. They were instructed to proceed immediately to the scene of the accident and to send a full report to the department of commerce as soon as possible.

The investigation, officials explained, is not a special one. Every accident on scheduled air lines is investigated and reported on by the department's inspectors to determine its cause.

One of the most important questions to be answered by the inquiry will be whether the air line company could have foreseen bad weather before the plane took off. There is a stringent department of commerce ruling against air liners taking off in bad or threatening weather.

Sexton's Body in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., March 7.—[Special.]—The body of Hugh Sexton, aviation editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was brought to the home of his mother, Mrs. Lottie Sexton, here today from Petersburg, Ill., where he was killed when a transport plane in which he was a passenger crashed during a snowstorm last evening.

Funeral services will be held at Clayton, a suburb, Friday morning. The rites will be held at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Samuel P. McChesney, Hildale drive, at 10 a. m. The Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Smylie of the Central Presbyterian church, will officiate at the services which will be private.

Earlier in the day a coroner's jury at Petersburg, investigating the crash in which the pilot of the ship and two other passengers also were killed, held that it was an unavoidable accident. Testimony of several witnesses indicated that the plane ran into a heavy snow storm immediately after leaving St. Louis and was forced down when ice formed on the wings and tail.

Officials of the air line—American airways—said that the plane apparently fell from a height of 500 feet while the pilot was attempting a forced landing in a field near Petersburg.

Retired Tribune Employe, Gerry R. Walker, 91, Dies

Gerry R. Walker, a proof reader for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE until his retirement 20 years ago, died yesterday at the home of his son, R. A. Walker, 121 South Elmwood drive, Aurora. He was 91 years old. Mr. Walker was a member of G. A. R. post, No. 20. Besides his son, Mr. Walker is survived by a sister, Mrs. Helen Schneider of Los Angeles, and two grandchildren, Ralph Schneider of Los Angeles, and Eleanor Walker of Aurora.

$32,550 IN GOLD STOLEN; CEMENT LEFT IN ITS PLACE

Metal Vanishes on Trip from Africa to London.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—A sensational gold robbery in transit between Bulawayo, Rhodesia, South Africa, and London was discovered today when boxes carried by the Union Castle liner, Balmoral Castle, were opened at the London branch of the Standard Bank of South Africa.

The gold was part of a shipment worth $10,000,000 consigned by the Standard bank branch at Bulawayo. The missing bars weighed 930 ounces and were worth $32,550. The boxes in which the gold should have been found were filled with cement and sand, worth 10 cents and weighing exactly the same as the hijacked gold. Their outward appearance was the same as that of other boxes of gold in the cargo.

Steamship representatives said the substitution could not have taken place on the ship. They claimed it must have occurred either on the train from Bulawayo to Cape Town, or from Southampton to London. On both trips, however, the boxes were heavily guarded. The ship arrived Monday at Southampton.

The case was turned over to Scotland Yard by bank officials. Cape Town police were also notified to launch an investigation at that end.

The gold was boxed and weighed at the South African mines, after which it was guarded continuously until it was placed on the ship. On its trip from the mines to the ship it was locked up, as is customary, by means of intricate devices whose operation was known only to trusted employés.

On the ship the gold was locked in the strong room. Ship's officers said the room was not opened until the liner reached England. Police and dock officials watched the entire unloading process.

BRITAIN FORBIDS BOOK REVEALING CABINET SECRETS

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 7.—A biography of George Lansbury, leader of the Labor party, written by his son, Edgar, and published yesterday under the title, "My Father," was withdrawn from circulation today at the request of the government because it reveals cabinet secrets of the last Labor government. Mr. Lansbury was commissioner of works in that cabinet.

Neither the king nor the prime minister had been consulted nor given permission for the disclosures. Mr. Lansbury, who is still in a hospital recovering from a fracture of the hip, helped his son in writing the book by furnishing material.

The book is said to show discord in Prime Minister MacDonald's Labor government in 1930 and 1931 over unemployment insurance payments which precipitated the economic crisis that caused the government's downfall. Lansbury was the leader of the cabinet faction which insisted on meeting the emergency by increasing taxation of the wealthy. The leaders of the other faction were MacDonald, Philip Snowden, and J. H. Thomas, who joined the Conservatives in forming the present government when the Socialist cabinet was split so hopelessly it had to resign.

Good Morning!

My cross word puzzles have taught me that a cam is an eccentric rotating piece. Mr. William Powell is the eccentric rotator of this production's slight plot—driving before him all with whom he comes in contact.

As Sherwood Nash he is a crooked and likable gentleman—the sort commonly known, I believe, as a promoter. One of his schemes is just folding up as the film opens—and it immediately behooves him and his Man Friday [Frank McHugh] to think up another . . .

Fortune flings in Sherwood's path a clever and beauteous young fashion artist. [Bette Davis.] Her drawings inspire him with the idea of pirating exclusive Parisian styles and selling them to cut price merchants . . .

He makes connections with one Harry, driver for an exclusive importer. Harry collects his employer's wares from the boat and backs his truck into Nash's alley. The imports are hastily donned by models and photographed by McHugh . . .

Harry's perfidy is discovered and he is fired. The importer and his rivals band together against this common danger and threaten suit. But is Nash downhearted? No!

You shall see how these same enraged costumers send him to Paris and how, once there, he confounds the French dressmakers—slickly beating the great Baroque at his own game . . .

So much for the plot. It serves as background for some stunning fashion displays and ensemble effects. The Fan number, done to the tune of "Spin a Little Dream," is a graceful and beautiful exhibition. It, by the way, is the only formal musical number. In this respect "Fashion Frolics of 1934" is unlike "42d Street," "Gold Diggers of 1933" and "Footlight Parade," which were lavish with their song and dance ensembles.

The piece is actionful, smartly acted, dialoged and directed. Costumes and settings are stunning.

Personally, I prefer William Powell in dramas with meat on them. But this souffle provides him with new opportunity to prove his versatility, so—more power to him!

See you tomorrow!

Hess Recital High Point in Music Season

BY EDWARD MOORE.

A pianist of high distinction, Myra Hess, gave a recital last night at the Blackstone theater and the concert converted itself into one of the enthusiastic successes of the season.

There are several reasons why it might not have been the success it was, but perhaps Miss Hess has set a new manner of recital giving. First, it was a midweek event. Second, it was in a theater which has been having undeserved but long periods of darkness during recent seasons.

For the third you will have to read Miss Hess' program and learn thereby that she has taken her position of leadership not by playing ear-tickling tunes but by playing some rather severe music a bit better than most other pianists do. Her program was a variant on the old-fashioned three B's, some Bach, the Italian Concerto; some Brahms, the Sonata in F minor, opus 5, and some more Bach, the Fifth French Suite.

This is a program that only the brave would care to contemplate. But Miss Hess drew a crowd, held it, and caused it to applaud mightily. Perhaps the first secret of her success is the healthiness of her playing. Perhaps another is that her performance reveals a serene, poised, but energetic and eloquent personality.

With no affectations or fusiness or mannerisms she seats herself before the keyboard and plays Bach and Brahms with an ease that makes them sound a good deal simpler than they are, and also with an understanding that carries its own conviction to her hearers.

And so this recital became one of the high points of the musical season.

Shows His Talent at Orphan Asylum Party

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

By that motherly smile you know she likes it whether it's "Sweet Adeline" or "The Last Roundup." The picture was made the other day when young Thermon Hicks was strumming his guitar for Mrs. Stanley Wiley, the mother of Peggy and Virginia Wiley, at the party the board of trustees of the Chicago Orphan asylum had the other day at the home, 4911 Lake Park avenue. Thermon is one of the little orphans for whom the asylum, supported by many of the city's old and representative families, has found a new mother and father.

Black Horse Juniors Will Ride at Show

Latin School Boys to Have Part in Exhibition.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SEVENTEEN young equestrians in sweat shirts and overseas caps, known as the Black Horse Troop Junior Reserves, will make their seniors look to their laurels a week from next Saturday night in the big tanbark ring of the Chicago Riding club.

Students at the Boys' Latin school who have been learning horsemanship from Capt. M. L. Stockton, the army instructor on duty with the Black Horse troop, the last winter, they have asked to compete with the grownup troop in its annual exhibition drills on the 17th. The occasion will offer in addition to the drills a double header polo bill.

Teddy Nicholson, George Kiefer, "Sonny" Maxwell, Bruce Macfarlane, Niles Chubb, Brent Stark, Edward Peterson, Robert Cudahy, Peter Bachmann, and Andrew Berkey are among the junior reserves. The others are Jack Kramer, Dexter Corley, Morris Vehon, "Jimo" Wood, Fred Gartz, Billy Sidley, and William Garney.

The drills are scheduled to come between the second and third periods of the second polo game which will be played by the Riding Club "Cyclones" and a team from the 122d field artillery. In the first game the Culver Black Horse troop will meet the Chicago troop.

Other features will be a drill by the troop's mounted band and jumping and mounted saber contests. Both of these competitions will decide the permanent troop championships.

Montecito Home to Be Wedding Scene.

All the Elting clan naturally are interested in the wedding of their kinswoman, Mrs. Joseph W. Donner [Carroll Elting], and Lord Tennyson, but there are two other Chicagoans who are feeling a great interest, too, for reasons of sentiment. They are Mr. and Mrs. John I. Shaw; their wedding reception on Aug. 20, 1931, was held in the same lovely house in Montecito, Santa Barbara, where the Donner-Tennyson wedding is to take place, the residence of Mrs. Shaw's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King, which Mrs. Donner and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elting, are occupying this winter.

Barbara King and John I. Shaw were married in the Church of All Saints-by-the-Sea and the reception that followed was on the terrace at La Passe, the Kings' residence in Cold Spring road. The house, of the Normandy type, with whitewashed bricks and red shutters, and a gay terrace, hedged with boxwood and Shasta daisies, and partially covered by a bright awning, was a perfect setting for the late afternoon reception, and although we haven't heard whether the Donner-Tennyson wed-

A GIRL named Grace Rucker, rereading Strickland's "Lives of the Queens of England," which was published in London in 1854, encountered the following paragraph, with its up to date slang phrase, in volume III., dealing with the life of Elizabeth:

Slang—Organizations—Reprimand.

"This summer Elizabeth honoured Leicester with her first visit to his new manor in Kenilworth in the course of her progress through the midland counties. When she entered the city of Coventry the mayor and corporation, who had met and welcomed her, presented her with a purse supposed to be worth twenty marks containing a hundred pounds in gold angels. The queen, on receiving it, said to the lords, 'It is a good gift. I have but few such, for it is a hundred pounds in gold.' The mayor boldly rejoined, 'If it like your grace it is a great deal more.' 'What is that?' asked the queen. The mayor answered, 'It is the faithful hearts of all your true loving subjects.' 'We thank you, Mr. Mayor,' said the queen; 'that is a great deal more, indeed.' She invited the mayor and corporation to visit her at Kenilworth on the following Tuesday, which they did, and were admitted to kiss her hand. She gave them thirty bucks and knighted the recorder."

A COURTEOUS little note in the mail from El Paso, Tex., asks if we know of those who would be interested in the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche and adds forethoughtedly that the reason for wanting to know is wholly academic. The note is signed by the impressive name "F. von Falkenberg" of the "Nietzschean society" of El Paso. This sent us to the classified directory to see if there was such an organization in Chicago. There isn't, but we found a lot of others that were pretty surprising.

Beginning with the "A's" there is the All Belgians Are Equal club, followed by the Argyle Pinochle club. Next to catch our eye was the Bakers' Courtesy club. The Butterick Reading club was surprising, too, as it sounds like reading patterns. Well, and why not? The Cavalier Athletic club again seemed wrong, but we didn't even stop to speculate about Ceska Besedy, passing right on to Macaroni and Noodle Manufacturers' club. The You and I club looked too chummy for a printed list. The Volga Bridge and Chess club. Don't they know that "boat" follows Volga, not "bridge?" Even "Z" is represented twice—with the Zachariah Chandler club and the Zonta International club. . . . The definition a little Oak Park boy gave of club comes to mind: "A club is an organization to keep people out of."

MRS. J. BEACH CLOW boarded a southbound bus the other day at Schiller street, opened her pocketbook and discovered she had no silver. She offered a $5 bill to the driver, but he was unable to change it. He waved her toward a seat.

"A break for you, lady," he said. "This is the time you ride free."

That was several weeks ago. The other morning Mrs. Clow again boarded the bus at the same place, opened her purse and discovered she had no change. She tendered a $5 bill.

"No change?" inquired the driver.

"No, I'm sorry," she told him.

The bus ground to a sudden stop and the driver opened the door.

"You can't get away with that a second time, madam," he informed her. "Get out right here." And young Mrs. Clow, who had caught the same bus with the same driver as on the other occasion when she was without silver, stepped hastily out.

New Costume Jewelry Wins Style Success

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Costume jewelry collectors will gasp at the new things that have been unpacked . . . huge clips, larger than anything you have ever planted in the center of your chest, or the same stunning affairs anchored on each shoulder.

Some one insistently stresses rosy red coral, and some one else does magic things with turquoise beads. They are irresistible. Try the coral accents with all your navy blue clothes . . . lovely, old-fashioned bracelets strung on rubber made to make them fit securely around the wrist and then fastened with clasps of round coral discs set in dusky gold, or the same arrangements with clasps of simulated hand wrought gold design.

Matching clips are breath taking . . . long, slender triangles of gleaming gold with coral beads in a pattern of berries and leaves. One, or a pair, make a simple dark dress a dress parade affair without equal.

The same thing has been done with turquoise blue jewelry and gold. Wear the coral with navy and contrast your black costumes with the flattering creations of turquoise. New coronets or halos of either coral or turquoise matching earrings and large sized clips, so that you can use them to contrast your dinner and dance dresses with some exciting results.

Some classic coiffures can be achieved with the new leaf halos of frosty silver or gold . . . deep wide and graceful leaves form the matching clips that can be anchored at each shoulder.

Seafoam green costume jewelry made in the same way with halos, clips, bracelets and earrings, making a set, are as refreshing as the gardenia white beads set in dull silver.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Not long ago we described some long, comfortable mitts to be worn over the creamed hands and arms at night. Any number of women inquired about them, but more than one felt they were too expensive.

There is an inexpensive hand beautifying glove on the market, wrist length and made of a specially treated leather that makes them soft and flexible and comfortable. They can be worn while doing any household tasks that don't call for immersion of the hands in water, and we found them entirely comfortable for wear over cream laden hands at night if they were one or two sizes larger than our street gloves.

According to the manufacturers, the leather has been so treated that it has a beautifying quality, acting, while the hands are in motion, as an emollient. We wouldn't contradict them, but we personally would make doubly sure by coating the hands with a cream of an oil first.

They're inexpensive enough to have more than one pair. The pair used at night with cream, for instance, would get too soiled if it were used for housework, or even motoring. The night glove should be used for nothing else.

They're easily washed with lukewarm water and a bland soap right on the hands. Rinse them in water of about the same temperature, and be sure, since they're leather, to dry them away from the heat. After they're dried they are worked with the fingers until the leather regains its original softness.

Maybe we're wrong, but after going into the hand beautifying problem pretty thoroughly we've decided that protection of the hands is the most important thing. Constant oiling is swell—but women just don't get around to it. So it seems only logical that protection, which amounts to preservation of the precious skin oil, would be the logical answer.

And these gloves are protectors. Wear 'em while you sweep or drive or garden, and pull another pair over your hands at night, creaming the hands heavily first.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Fish Who Catch Other Fish with Bait Shown at Field Museum

Strange fish that catch other fish with bait, and have their front legs behind and their hind legs in front, have been placed on exhibition in Albert W. Harris hall at Field museum. Albert C. Weed, assistant curator of fishes at the museum, yesterday explained that the angler fishes had used bait for other fish long before the sport of fishing was thought of by man.

"Angler fishes are found in all seas, from the edge of the surf to extremely great depths," Mr. Weed said.

"These fishes have on the head an organ consisting of a slender rod with a fleshy part at its tip used as a bait. The fishes do their angling after the Eskimo fashion rather than that of the white man. The Eskimo moves a piece of ivory in the water and, when a trout comes to look at it, strikes with his spear. The angler fish waves its bait like a flag, and swallows small fish coming to inspect it."

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce and uses this as an excuse to oppose their marriage. When Barbara determines to marry Rance, regardless, her father has a stroke. Barbara fears he'll kill himself deliberately. She promises him she won't marry Rance without his consent. Gregory goes away and Barbara strives futilely to put him out of her mind. Disbrough, her father's partner, is a frequent visitor at Lynwood. Her father approves of him as a husband for Barbara, knowing she is not in love with him. In desperation, Barbara marries Disbrough. It is to be, until Barbara decides otherwise, a marriage in name only, Barbara sharing her fortune with him. Then with his daughter safe from his enemy Brawne loses his grip on life. His mind becomes definitely blurred. Rance returns for a visit to the Chiswicks.

INSTALLMENT XLVI.

REUNITED.

They were to dine at the Chiswicks', a ceremonial affair given for a visiting senator. Gregory would be there, would see her entering at her husband's side. She kept to her room all morning with a feeling of physical collapse. In the afternoon she put on a smock and went down and weeded in the flower garden until, unable to work any longer, she flung down under a flowering crab tree and gazed up listlessly into the pink and white maze.

The bees were droning busily, the thrush came down to splatter in the fountain as she lay, wide eyed, looking up at the bits of blue sky picked out of the fragrance above her. She knew that Gregory had waited for her by the bridge. Why hadn't she gone? Would he return again tonight, or would he accept her absence as final?

When she came in late in the afternoon, with the lengthening of the golden shadows across the lawns, she saw her husband.

"I'm not up to going out to dinner tonight, do you mind?"

"What's wrong?"

"It was Gregory Rance at the station. I don't want to meet him."

"He shouldn't have come here," he said, frowning, "but that is no reason for you to avoid him. You can't meet issues by running away from them."

"That's true."

"The fact that you aren't afraid to meet him will show him that it is over," he said carefully. He wanted to say, "My dear girl, you are fortunate enough to be the wife of a man whose career is now certain. You will be the wife of an ambassador some day—who knows, perhaps of a secretary of state. You don't throw a brilliant life like that away for a romantic memory of an irresponsible Bohemian." He did not say it, but he looked it, and, studying him, she divined the reasons of his assurance.

The next moment she was lost in his arms.

"You want me to go then?"

"I most certainly do. Senator Brascom is a man of tremendous influence in Washington. He can mean a great deal to me. It's a pity that we are not in a position to entertain him."

"Very well, if you insist."

She went to her room and put on the gray and blue dress she had worn the night Gregory Rance had dined at Lynwood.

It was a large dinner, and the rooms were crowded when they entered the Chiswicks'. There were a number of groups to pass through before she saw Rance approaching. He kept his glance averted and did not offer his hand. She had a sense of suffocation as he loomed up over her.

"My husband," she said in a low voice. "Mr. Gregory Rance."

Disbrough put out his hand cordially.

"How are you? I know all about you, of course," he said evenly. "Great admirer of your books—particularly the first ones." He turned away ostensibly to leave them alone. For the first time she had a feeling of a false note in him.

She heard Rance say:

"That's the dress you wore the night I came to dinner."

She raised her glance to his.

"Yes."

"I was there last night," he said abruptly.

Her eyes were heavy under the questions in his.

"I wanted to go."

"Why didn't you?"

"I don't know."

She shook her head.

"No. I've stopped thinking."

"You know why I've come, don't you?"

"Yes."

"You gave me a promise in that letter. Have you kept it?"

She nodded her head. Some one came up. He moved away. Everything she had said amazed her, and yet everything she had answered had been instinctive and felt. With him she was real, as she had been from the first meeting. All the rest was pretending to be something she wasn't. She went forward, smiling, to speak to her hostess.

At dinner they were on opposite sides of the table and apart. He did not once look at her. Whenever her eyes returned restlessly to him, he was watching her husband. Something boyish had gone in Rance, and something new and imperious had come. His face was leaner and sterner. He made little effort to talk, but always his eyes studied her husband.

After dinner, when the men came in, Rance did not return. She was grateful for that, and at the first opportunity rose to go.

"Queer fellow, Rance," said her husband as they drove home. "Not much to say for himself. I thought the soft shirt a little out of place, didn't you?"

"I didn't notice."

"Invite him up for tea if you want."

Fatuity! Could a man be so blind or so sure of her! He began to tell her of his conversation with the senator. Excellent way to get in real touch with important people. The senator liked him, said one or two complimentary things, asked his advice about the situation in middle Europe. She did not listen, her cheek on her hand, looking out at the night.

When they reached Lynwood, she went into the parlor and sat down by the slumbering fireplace.

"Shall I lock up?" Disbrough said from the hall.

"If you wish."

She heard the chain in the latch, and then his steps going up the stairs. At the end of an hour she rose and went out on the porch. The curve of the moon was just coming up over Bear mountain. A faint light, but she knew every step of the way. She went steadily, without hesitation, past the scent of the lilacs and the trickle of the fountain, to the murmuring of the river. When she reached the bridge she heard Gregory hurrying toward her. The next moment she was lost in his arms.

The cold sickle of the moon was high in the night when she returned. The lamps were lit in the parlor and the shadow of her husband was moving across the windows.

"Better so," she thought entering the hall.

"Good God, where have you been?" he cried in a shrill, nervous voice at the sound of her entrance.

She took off her wrap slowly, hung it on a peg and came into the parlor. He was standing by the round table, staring at her, his fingers jerking along the fringe of the black and white bathrobe he had put on, his bare feet in carpet slippers.

"Allen, it is going to be difficult to say——"

"If you'll explain——"

"O yes, everything will be explained."

She went to the wood box and taking a few sticks flung them on the embers. He remained without moving, watching her. When she bent down over the fireplace, he drew his sleeve quickly over his damp forehead..

"And whatever happens let us keep our self-respect," she added, rising. "There's a great deal to be said, and it's got to be said quietly."

The stillness and determination of her manner alarmed him.

"Well, I am waiting."

"Sit down."

"I prefer to stand," he barked out.

She looked at him curiously, seeing him for the first time in a panic.

"You want to know where I've been? I've seen Gregory, and I'm going back to him."

Child's Naughtiness Is Frequently Sign of Approaching Illness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I feel so mean," said a mother.

"All day yesterday Marjorie was so pernickety. By supper time I was thoroughly out of patience, and when her daddy came home and she whined and didn't want to eat this and didn't want to eat that he was on the verge of spanking her. We thought she was losing her nice disposition.

"And then," she went on, "she woke up this morning with a sore throat and a fever and I felt so mean. It was just her cold coming on."

Haven't you often had the same contrite feeling for the same reasons?

Often what seems like ill temper or laziness is only the forerunner of a cold or some other illness. Children, especially small ones, are not conscious of low physical tone as grown-ups are.

Whenever your small children are contrary or cross—when they show a distate for food and nothing quite pleases them—when they cry easily, instead of being annoyed and perhaps scolding them, look for a physical cause. It may be that they're coming down with something or it may be merely fatigue.

In any case be calm. Don't make an issue of things or do any disciplining. Give them an early hot bath, if you think it's just tiredness, supper in bed on a tray, and if you yourself haven't time, let their father or some one else read them an unexciting story. Then tuck them in an hour or two earlier and snap out the light. If they're coming down with something it will increase their resistance. And if it's just tiredness, the sun will shine again in the morning.

Buffet Dinner at Casino Tonight.

The Byron S. Harveys, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beacom and the Ambrose C. Cramers will be among those having guests at the weekly Thursday buffet dinner at the Casino tonight. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham and Miss Peggy Hambleton are entertaining for Mr. and Mrs. Deering Davis, who will dance after dinner.

Bishop H. P. Almon Abbott, who gave up a brilliant rectorship at St. Chrysostom's church to serve mountain folk in eastern Kentucky, and Mrs. Abbott are returning to Chicago for a brief visit next week. They will be the house guests of Mrs. Charles A. Street at her Astor street apartment. Bishop Abbott will address Lenten meetings each noon while he is here in the Chicago Civic Opera house.

The newly married William C. Welises—she is the former Louise Taylor Booth—are arriving in town this morning after a wedding trip through the West Indies and will be at the Churchill hotel for a few weeks before they leave for France, where they will make their home in Paris.

The A. Howard Richardsons have returned to Chicago from their "exile" in Adrian, Mich., and have taken a house on Banks street, declaring themselves delighted to be back—and back permanently. Their older son, Howard Jr., who has been working in town, and their younger son, Peter, are with them, but the daughter of the house, Miss Joan Richardson, is studying at the University of Michigan. Peter is attending the Francis Parker school.

John Payne Kelloggs Leave for Maya Ruins.

Mr. and Mrs. John Payne Kellogg and the two elder of their three children and a nurse for the latter left on Monday for Florida, where the youngsters and the nurse will spend a month while Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg explore the Maya ruins of Guatemala.

Mrs. Edith Ogden Harrison Manierre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, who suffered minor injuries in the recent Paris riots, is sailing for home Saturday on the Europa. On her return she will again occupy her home on Rose terrace in Lake Forest.

News received from the Woman's Athletic club indicates a startling change from the club's usual routine. It plans to serve buffet dinners, beginning next Thursday night, from 6 until 8 o'clock, for the remaining Thursday in March. Cocktails will be served—and one or two of the more enterprising members of the club have been known to mix their own cocktails according to their special recipes in the club's "pantry"—and tables for bridge may be reserved after the dinner.

At 10 o'clock this morning, in the home of Mrs. George B. Dryden at 1314 Ridge avenue, Evanston, Dr. Karl Menninger of the Institute for Psychoanalysis will talk on "Parental and Educational Application of Psychoanalysis" for the benefit of the Evanston Senior center of the Infant Welfare.

University Guild Will Hear Art Lecture.

At 8 o'clock tonight, in the art center in the Evanston public library, Dr. Rensselaer Lee will lecture before the University Guild of Evanston on ecclesiastical art. The lecture, which will be illustrated by lantern slides, is open to the public. Dr. Lee was graduated from Princeton university and studied ecclesiastical art at the Vatican in Rome. He came to Northwestern university three years ago from the Princeton faculty to head the art department.

Mrs. Milan H. Hulbert, Miss Louise Dewey, Miss Jean Wilhelm, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, and Mrs. Martin Phillipsborn are to be hostesses this afternoon at the weekly causerie of the Alliance Française in the clubrooms in the Fine Arts building, and Mrs. Walter Kirk, Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, and Mrs. William N. Pelouze will pour.

At the usual Saturday noon conference in the Alliance library Jean Freyss, traveler and lecturer, will talk on "Quelques récents livres à succès."

Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt, known professionally as Phyllis Fergus, is spending the last three days of this week in Cleveland as the guest of Mrs. Josephine Forsythe Myers, composer and pen woman. This is one of a series of state visits Mrs. Hoyt is making to present at first hand the plans for the musical program of American composers among the League of American Pen Women to be given during the annual convention in Washington from April 21 to 27.

Mayor Proclaims National Business Women's Week

Mayor Kelly yesterday issued a proclamation designating next week as National Business Women's week in Chicago. The mayor urged all business establishments to coöperate with the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and its affiliates in their campaign next week to bring about the reëmployment of 10,000 women in business and professional positions throughout the country.

Latest Paris Hats Resemble Mexican Peon's Millinery

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Three of the newest French hats to come out in Paris are shown here. They indicate the great variety with which the Paris modistes spice the millinery mode.

At the top is a brimmed hat from Maria Guy which is inspired by the millinery of the Mexican peon. Mme. Maria Guy makes this hat in shiny black straw and bands it around the center of the pointed crown with a wide swath of lustrous white straw. A foolish little ribbon bow is attached like a flag to the peak at the top of the crown. The brim rolls up all around.

In the center is a dinner hat from Gaby Mono, which is a bonnet of transparent sapphire blue straw with a fascinating and flattering halo of shaded blue ostrich feathers around the head.

At the bottom are two views of one of the new berets that all Paris is making. This one is made of dark blue grosgrain ribbon, is wide, and quite rakish on top. A circle of narrow, crimped white grosgrain ribbon with a knot at the right side is the only trimming, being set in the center of the tam crown.

Highly Colored Nails Are Not for the Office

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Indignant" tells that a woman head of her department took her aside the other day and request that she forgo the bright nail polish during her business day. "The old cat," the young business woman calls her superior, "is jealous. She said the boss asked her to speak to me. I don't believe it, because he never said anything himself."

In all probability the boss did speak to the woman superior to intercede, in his behalf, against the flashing nail tip. Some men simply do not like the stuff. It's distracting, and when they're dictating letters they don't want distraction. They may not speak of it directly themselves. Better take the hint, Indignant. Also, get the idea out of your head that some one who takes you aside and tells you something for your own good is an old cat. It's not a success-making frame of mind toward a superior, anyway.

It seems that the Woman Superior told another girl in the office recently that she should do her powdering and rouging in the dresing room. That Indignant protests, too. Well, that's what dressing rooms are for, Indignant. Powdering and making up is part of a ritual that should be performed behind closed doors. Whatever may be said for the privileges extended the coquettish type, who pulls out her vanity at a supper table, this has nothing to do with office managers and office behavior.

It's just one of those things that good sense dictates, Indignant! After all, the boss isn't interested in being vamped. Not the kind you're going to get anywhere with in a business way. There's a time and place for everything.

Moessel Has Splendid Show of His Murals

Themes Run from Colonial Days to Jungle.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An amazingly different show has opened in the Chicago galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue, with the hanging of murals and decorative paintings by Julius Moessel. The entire larger gallery has been devoted to these and the effect is most impressive.

The themes vary in the series. One set of panels depicts the serene, tranquil life of colonial days in Virginia. Another set realises the beauties and terrors of the jungle; tigers and monkeys and elephants are portrayed against a background of tropical trees and enormous ferns.

Still another group of murals gives us a pictorial accounting of birds; herons and flamingoes are heroic characters, and, in lighter vein, penguins disport themselves in solemn conclave. Beyond these is found a striking series of maps, colorful and stimulating, showing both North and South America. Interspersed among these mural themes are single canvases, all well done, all different in subject.

Julius Moessel has a distinguished reputation abroad. He was honored by the late King Ludwig of Bavaria with the title of "Professor," a distinction ranking with the French gift of the Legion of Honor. He has exhibited frequently in Chicago, at the Art institute, and with the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts. This is his first one-man show.

In the smaller gallery an attractive exhibit of Illinois landscapes and a few Provincetown paintings by Irma Rene Koen is hung.

The Illinois landscapes are small in size but fascinating in their perfection. They are vivid, spirited paintings in miniature. One of hills and trees with a rollicking summer sky alive with rolling clouds is particularly to be recommended, and another one near it, cut across with the green whips of trees, is irresistible.

The Provincetown scenes are a little more restrained in tempo, delicately clear in color and possessed of a Sunday charm.

The exhibit is one of the best in town this month. It will continue through March.

Alumni of Chicago Medical School to Meet Tonight

Approximately 400 physicians will attend the annual alumni meeting of the Chicago Medical school tonight at the school at 710 South Lincoln street. An address of welcome by Dr. Adolph Faller of Chicago, president of the Chicago Alumni association, will be followed by an address by Dr. G. Henry Mundt, president of the school. The evening program will include the presentation of a new library to the school by Dr. John J. Sheinin, chairman of the library committee.

Wandering Mate Wishes to Return to Divorced Wife

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I would like your opinion of the girl who runs around with a married man while knowing he is married and has children? Also, what do you think of the man? The girl accepted my hospitality and met our children."

To go on with the story, the woman gave her husband a divorce over the girl and now he is fed up with the blonde, wants to came back where, he claims, his real love is, was, and ever will be. The blonde is still in pursuit of the man, it appears. But his opinion of her now is that she is nothing but a loose one.

"Would I be a chump to take him back?" asks the divorced wife.

Weren't you somewhat of a chump to let the blonde walk off with him, Mrs. X? You say your nature is altruistic. How do you figure that word applies to a contest in which you let your rival walk away without a protest from you? That's not altruism or generosity. It's just plain weakness, too cowardly to fight. Unless, of course, you were fed up on the man and saw this as an easy way of getting away from him.

But maybe you are different. Maybe you thought it would be great and noble to step out of the picture in order that the man might find happiness. There are women like that. But we still can't see where that spirit is so noble if there are youngsters to be taken into consideration.

One thing, however, if a woman wants to take her husband back after one of these affairs, she is no chump to take him back. She is a chump not to. All the talk of pride and appearance is just so much hooey so far as its rewards are concerned. A reunited family has more pride and appearance and, if the woman really wants her man back, she is going to be happier with him than straying around, another lonely divorcée.

Just one word of caution. If you take him back, keep the shutters down on the incident. Pretend it never happened. It's the only way the reunion can be happily managed.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

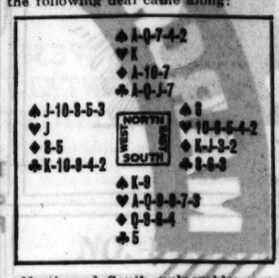
Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

RESPONSES OTHER THAN THE ONE-OVER-ONE.

As I have said before, the fact that you are unable to respond one-over-one does not necessarily imply weakness.

When you develop a partnership you will find that the advantages are all for you if you do not overbid your hand. Providing that your partner has some reserve behind his bid, he will always allow you some leeway to give you a further opportunity to show your true values. Three primary tricks in the opener's hand and three in yours only account for six tricks. The average contract player is not a magician and to produce the surplus tricks without distribution does need some kind of magic.

Good players can often pick one or two tricks out of the air by making subtle, brilliant, and ingenious plays. These triumphs are achieved by the squeeze play, the end play and the strip play. Nevertheless the finest player cannot make four extra tricks against perfect defense. In one of the national championship events of last year I sat in the South position and the following deal came along:



North and South vulnerable:

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 Sp. [1]	Pass	2 Hts. [2]	Pass
3 Cl. [3]	Pass	3 N.T. [4]	Pass
4 N.T. [5]	Pass	6 N.T. [6]	Pass
Pass	Pass

Explanations of the bidding:

1. The hand contains too many losers for an opening two bid under our system. Any response from the partner will be carried to game.

2. My hand contained fine playing developments and game possibilities, yet it is not strong enough to warrant a jump takeout.

3. The three club bid denied adequate support for hearts, but denoted additional values, otherwise two spades or two no-trump would be the proper minimum reply. At the same time, it is not a response force.

4. The heart suit was not rebid, although a six card suit would generally be bid a second time. My bid of three no trumps showed my partner a possible diamond stop.

5. A definite slam try, and shows both a heart honor and a diamond stopper.

6. The spade king eliminates any finesse in spades. With a heart honor located in North's hand, this suit is almost solid. The possession of two long suits to run off assures a very fine play for the slam.

The Play [*indicates card taking trick]:

1.	♦ 8 [1]	♦ 7	♦ K*	♦ 4
2.	♥ J [2]	♥ K*	♥ 4	♥ 3
3.	♦ 5	♦ A*	♦ 2	♦ 6
4.	♣ 2	♦ 10*	♦ 3	♦ 9
5.	♠ 3	♠ 2	♠ 6	♠ K*
6.	♠ 5	♠ 4	♦ J	♥ Q*
7.	♣ 4	♣ 7	♥ 2	♥ A*

On the lead of the heart Q at the eighth trick, West was hopelessly squeezed.

West held the following cards:
♠ J-10-8 ♣ K-10-9

North held the following cards:
♠ A-Q-7 ♣ A-Q-J

All that I had to do was to retain the suit that West discarded, finesse the club and win the balance of the tricks in North's hand.

Points of play:

1. The diamond eight was an evident short opening.

2. With the fall of the heart J on trick 2, I marked West with five spades and five clubs. If this was the case [it turned out to be so], I could not set any suit up and therefore the only chance I had was to make a squeeze play. The plans for this squeeze actually started after I cashed in the second trick.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

John Golden, whose career as an impresario of the drama is impressive, has sought the aid of the Uptown Players, able group of Chicago amateurs, in testing the values of a manuscript that he has ticketed for possible production. This work is a comedy of theatrical life, written by Kay Chandler, which bears the title "Blame the Stars." Therefore this week's performances in the Chicago Woman's Club theater constitute a "tryout" upon which certain of the greater minds of Broadway are concentrated with professional attention.

Such an affair should be "scouted" earnestly by any one—myself, for example—who is endeavoring to determine whether the drama is extinct in this vicinity or merely suffering from a severe stroke of catalepsy. So, with my old scout's hat pulled down over my eyes and a tablet of blank charts and diagrams in my pocket, I dashed to the scene. I am now ready to submit my report to Mr. Golden.

Using a double wing back formation on offense and a box defense—no, that's the style for football scouting—the enemy is advancing along the entire sector behind a rolling barrage—pardon me, that's the military style.

"Blame the Stars" is a light sentimental comedy with four incidental songs and a bit of dancing, dealing with the life of refined actors and actresses, on stage and off, in their dressing rooms and suites in the Blackstone hotel. It tells a story about a leading woman who has lost two husbands by divorce, who is tired of this gypsy life and is ready to retire and settle down as the wife of a queer and comic little rich man with a toupee and a murderous sense of humor.

The leading man—a good fellow, every inch of him—wants to marry her, but she swears that she is "off" actors for life. A new man joins the company, and, behold! he is her long lost first husband, still irresponsible but ready to offer restitution of conjugal rights. Which one will she marry?

The first guess is correct. She breaks her engagement with the eccentric bag of gold, sends the smoothie first husband about his business, and tells the good, smiling, faithful boy that she is his and will be an actress until time to retire to his chicken farm.

All of which I regard as extremely slight material for a production on the big time, Mr. Golden. It will merely curl up and die with anemia when exposed upon the bleak hills of Manhattan island.

On the other hand, "Blame the Stars" is a nice little piece for the exercise of the Uptown Players' talents, and they do fairly well by it. As an amateur production it is moderately diverting. The incidental songs are neat ditties, pleasantly treated. Donald Briggs as the good actor, John Miller as the weak actor, and Marion Hoffmann as the heroine earn citations of merit.

"Hearts and Gizzards," "Dutch Windmill," "Dutch Rose," and "Robbing Peter to Pay Paul" are fundamentally the same pattern. All are old quilt blocks that were first pieced by patient Pennsylvania Dutch women. Blocks with conical or pie shaped pieces require the greatest care and accuracy in cutting and piecing. However, the finished quilt more than compensates for any extra minutes spent in cutting and piecing.

Unusual Pies Come on Stage for Encore Act

They're Excitingly Unique with Good Flavor.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 2 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Did you ever hear of a "shoo fly bow?" Or the "Shoo Fly song?" Or a "shoo fly pie"?

Then you shall, for spang on the heels of our southern pie article, which appeared a few weeks ago and in which we had introduced the New England and southern favorite, shoo fly pie, Mrs. J. D. C., a writer in from Winnetka, sends us a post card and tells us more about this s. f. business. "Shoo fly," in connection with pie, it seems, came from that old comic song, written in Negro dialect, and appearing about 1870. The words, as she recalls them, began the song with: "Shoo, fly, don't bother me; shoo, fly, don't bother me; shoo, fly, don't bother me, for I belong to company G."

Remember it? And the rest about the angels on the wing? Anyway, it tickled the folks back then so much that they not only christened a pie after it but they called the little bows which the dear ladies wore in the fronts of their hair "shoo fly bows."

Mrs. C. also mentions "vinegar pie" as a favorite of rural Pennsylvania, so we'll have to ask the southern cooks to divide honors.

Which brings up another letter, still on this subject of pies. Mrs. L. of Chicago has a husband who demands a vinegar pie made the way "mother used to make it"—without fruit in it. The recipe which we printed for this pie on the 28th of January did have a half cup of raisins in it, but these are optional and without them your husband will have, I believe, just that custard pie texture he remembers.

And while we're harking to pie questions we'll attend to that of Mrs. W. E. T., who is hunting an eggnog pie with a ginger snap crust. The manner of making is this:

EGG NOG PIE.

2 teaspoons gelatin
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup cream, whipped
¾ cup unsweetened, evaporated milk
⅛ teaspoon salt
Rum flavoring
3 tablespoons cold water
¼ cup water
2 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar

Crust.

18 ginger snaps
1 tablespoon sugar
1-3 cup butter

Soak the gelatin in the three tablespoons of cold water for five minutes. Combine the milk and the remaining water, and heat. Beat the egg yolks with the sugar and salt, then stir in the hot milk, being careful to avoid lumps. Cook in a double boiler, stirring conscientiously, until it's thick. Remove from the fire, add the gelatin and flavoring, and cool. Then beat with a rotary beater, folding in the stiffly beaten egg whites and the whipped cream. Meanwhile crumble the ginger snaps until very fine and blend them with the sugar and the softened butter. Line a pie tin with the mixture, patting it in firmly. Bake the crust in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for ten minutes. Chill and pile lightly into it the egg nog filling.

Finally, because we dote on peanut butter and hope you do, here's a prize little pie with eggs as the total thickener instead of gelatin:

PEANUT BUTTER PIE.

12 graham crackers
1-3 cup butter
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 egg yolks
1½ cups milk
1 cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons peanut butter

Make the pie crust first for this one. Crumble the crackers finely, blend with them the one-third cup of softened butter and the tablespoon of sugar. Line the bottom and sides of a pie plate with the mixture, patting it firmly. Bake ten minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees F.). Have ready a filling made like this:

Blend the salt, flour, and brown sugar, adding the slightly beaten egg yolks. Pour over this the scalded milk, stirring busily, and cook in a double boiler until thick. Then let cook five minutes more, stirring occasionally. Stir in the peanut butter, add the rest of the butter, and serve chilled.

MAYOR OPPOSES WATER PLANT AT 67TH AND LAKE

Favors Site That Won't Hurt Property Values.

Mayor Kelly declared yesterday that he is opposed to the construction of a south side filtration plant on made land in the lake off 67th street. South side residents and property owners have protested against the construction of the plant at this site. The city has applied to the Public Works administration for funds to carry out the filtration project.

"I do not want to interfere with the orderly development of a beautiful lake front, nor do I want to injure property rights," said the mayor. "The filtration plant should be built where it will not adversely affect the value of surrounding property. I am not wedded to any particular site, but I would favor any location, other than 67th street, that would result in the least expenditure for the site and the plant."

Estimate Costs on Ten Sites.

City engineers under the direction of Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt have prepared cost estimates for ten sites, of which five would be made land in the lake and five inland. The estimated costs of the island sites range from $19,469,640 to $21,725,560, while the costs of lake front locations vary from $16,000,000 at 67th street to $18,968,000 at 47th stret.

However, south side residents, who first organized as the Jackson Park Protective association to fight the 67th street site, now have extended their activities as Chicago's Lake Front Protective association, to include opposition to any site along the lake front. Some 150 civic and improvement clubs and other organizations all over the city have joined the movement, according to Wells Martin, chairman of the enlarged association.

Foresees North Side Plants.

"The city proposes in the future to build filtration plants in the lake off Chicago and Wilson avenues," said Mr. Martin. "This lake front, which is one of the finest in the world, cost millions of dollars to improve, and there are plans for further beautification. We feel that it should be reserved for recreational or park purposes.

"We realize that construction on an inland site might increase the total cost, but we believe that an additional expenditure would be justified to preserve the lake front. There are inland sites where plants would be a credit to neighborhoods, instead of doing harm to property values."

It appeared likely yesterday that some time will elapse before money is spent for a filtration plant on any site. Conditions set up by PWA officials, which require action by the city council and the state legislature have not been met.

$22,400,000 Asked from PWA.

When the city applied for a PWA loan of $22,400,000, which included an amount sufficient to complete meterization south of 39th street, plans had been made to expend the money in five years. PWA officials requested that the work be completed in three years, which would add $1,500,000 to the cost.

Needing authority to approve this extra expenditure, Commissioner Hewitt sumbitted the request to the council. It was referred to the finance committee, which has not acted on it. The council also, according to several opinions in the city hall, will have to approve any change in the site of the proposed filtration plant.

Richmond, Va., March 7.—(AP)—Gov. George C. Perry today signed the dispensary liquor control bill, assuring legal liquor in Virginia on March 22.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Sanitary District Trustee Howard Elmore yesterday asserted that John Bain, whose conviction for sonspiracy to defraud depositors of his bank chain was upheld by the Appellate court on Tuesday, is not living on his property in Tinley Park as was stated in THE TRIBUNE of Wednesday morning. Mr. Elmore said that he owns no property in Tinley Park. He also asserted that although he was a banking associate of Bain at one time, he sold all his Bain bank stock in 1926 and never acquired any other shares in the chain of banks.

By error THE TRIBUNE yesterday referred to Earl B. Dickerson, assistant attorney general, as backing a candidate for Republican ward committeeman. Attorney Dickerson is a Democrat and is supporting Herman E. Moore, candidate for Democratic committeeman of the 3d ward.

A story in Tuesday's TRIBUNE named Des Plaines as one of the communities visited by state's attorney's police in raids on gambling establishments in country towns. The raiding squads found no gambling in Des Plaines.

Park Board and Fair Agree on Ordinance Granting Site

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Officials of the South Park board and of A Century of Progress agreed yesterday on the draft of an ordinance permitting the 1934 World's Fair to occupy its present location on South park land. The ordinance will be presented today to Mayor Kelly for his approval as head of the South park board. The signatures of the park commissioners and Fair representatives will be affixed and the formal ratification will be voted by the board at its next meeting.

With this matter disposed of, all the technicalities which have held back actual construction and rehabilitation work at the Fair grounds will be cleared up. Permits will be issued, existing contracts validated and intense activity is expected to follow.

Reach Agreement at Meetings.

The agreement is the result of night and day meetings between Fair and park board representatives. Yesterday's meeting was held in the office of Attorney George Gorman, counsel for the South Park board, at 1 North La Salle street, and was attended by Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of A Century of Progress, Gorman and George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the South park system.

With the affixing of signatures within the next few days a total of $550,579, representing money received by A Century of Progress from exhibitors, concessionaires and advance ticket sales now held in escrow, will be released for corporate expenditures. These include operating expenses, rehabilitation of buildings and grounds and some small construction.

Under the new ordinance the Stadium will not be under A Century of Progress this summer as it was last year.

A total of $750,000 is to be spent by A Century of Progress before the opening of the exposition on June 1 on walks, pavements, lighting, public address system and repairs to water and sewage lines, according to J. L. McConnell. In addition, $300,000 will be spent on "the biggest fountain in the world," according to Mr. McConnell. Colored lights will play over the fountain at night. It will extend from the 16th street bridge southward 850 feet.

Plan New Light Effects.

Describing the lighting effects of the 1934 Fair, Mr. McConnell said that the north and south lagoons would be decorated with lights extending along the shore lines. Decorative light standards also will mark the shore line, and an improved system of underwater lights will be visible, particularly from the Sky Ride.

"Everywhere the intensity of color and light combined will be stronger at the new Fair," Mr. McConnell said. "The buildings will harmonize more than they did last year. Each area will have its distinctive lighting effects, each its style of light standards, which will be, first of all, decorative, such as the colored conical lights put up late last summer at the south end.

"The entire lighting effects of the court of the Electrical building and that of the Hall of Science will be changed. The moving, changing lights were lost to last year's Fair crowds, which moved too fast to see the panorama of shifting color. They will not be used this year. Our crowning achievement, however, will be the new Midway on the island. We are going to knock the eyes out of our visitors this year."

FRANK HAWKS AMAZES CHINESE WITH GIANT PLANE

SHANGHAI, March 7. — (AP) — The penetration of China by American airplanes advanced another stage today.

Frank Hawks, noted American pilot, arrived with a giant American made bomber, the largest and latest type China has seen. He will demonstrate it to the Nationalist government, which is building up an air fleet for both military and commercial purposes. The fleet already has reached sizable proportions and is composed almost entirely of American airplanes.

Hawks' bomber, with its 82 foot wing spread and its other dimensions similarly large, caused amazement among the Chinese, who hitherto had not seen such a giant of the skies.

FORD BLAMES GUNMAKERS FOR WARS OF WORLD

Says About One Hundred Men Brew Strife.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Fort Myers, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Charging that a small group of men were responsible for war through the manufacture of munitions and by fostering international distrust, Henry Ford thinks Senator Borah "had the right idea" in his attack on the half billion dollar navy program and other army and navy construction.

"The people in general don't want war," Mr. Ford said, "but it has been forced on them by scheming munition makers looking for enormous profits through the sale of arms.

He Can't Stop Wars.

"I do not pay much attention to the talk about war for I have found out that there is not much I can do about it as an individual. Outlawing war depends upon the people. In the past they have followed the war makers. If we could get rid of the approximately 100 men responsible for wars in this world, the people would enjoy peace.

"But as long as greed for profits accentuates the makers of munitions, and as long as countries maintain their race for the strongest armaments, just so long will we be in danger of being pushed into another war. It could have been avoided.

Cites Purchase of Knife.

"A man who buys a knife acquires it for the purpose of attack. He doesn't buy the knife to carry as a souvenir. Nations purchasing cannons and battleships purchase them for the purpose of attack, not for playthings. Guns are made to kill with, and when a country acquires more guns than the neighboring country, they are apt to go to war in order to use the guns.

"I have been pleased to notice a nation-wide religious revival, a more serious point of view in the minds of the average person. President Roosevelt has made this religious revival a keynote in his recovery measures. This is a hopeful sign. I believe that religion should be taught in our schools as well as reading, writing and arithmetic. It is the fourth 'R' in education.

"If I were allowed to make a suggestion concerning public schools I would say—let the older students teach the younger ones. Those that teach learn the most."

World Miners' Federation Asks Shorter Hours Code

GENEVA, March 7.—(AP)—A desire for a work code similar to codes in the United States was indicated today in a communication to the league of nations by the International Federation of Miners, which favored reduction of hours and limitation of production. A resolution adopted by the miners at Brussels asked the league to convoke an international coal conference. It said "existing anarchy is the chief cause of all miseries."

EDSEL FORD GOES FISHING AFTER KIDNAP THREAT

Miami Beach, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Edsel Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, went fishing two weeks ago when kidnapers were reported to have threatened him, but he was watched by guards who carried machine guns, the Associated Press was informed today by a high ranking officer of one of the three law enforcement agencies reported to have supplied the guards.

The threat, according to the officer, was made in Detroit before Ford came here Feb. 18, but some indication an attempt might be made was said to have prompted a request for protection.

The guards returned to routine duties when the boat came back to Miami Beach after five days of fishing by Ford in the lower Florida Keys.

Officers said they did not believe there were guards now about the Ford cottage on the grounds of a hotel here, other than the customary watchmen.

A PET SQUIRREL CAUSES UPROAR IN NEIGHBORHOOD

Almond, a pet gray squirrel of Mrs. Stella Kubiak, 2504 West 45th street, escaped from his cage yesterday afternoon and caused an uproar in the neighborhood. He bit two men and a woman and played tag with a police squad from the New City station in a chase which ended when a police bullet hit Almond after a dozen shots had been fired.

The squirrel, after escaping, scampered up the alley in the rear of the home, with his mistress in pursuit. He scrambled over a fence and into the rear yard of Mrs. Olga Engel, 4597 South Talman avenue, who was hanging out wash.

Almond nipped her in the right leg. She screamed. Her husband, Louis, rushed to her rescue. Almond bit him on the right hand, and bounded on. Then he bit James Pecsharos, 1221 West Adams street, a peddler, who was passing through the alley.

Police were called, and for fifteen minutes hundreds of residents of the area watched them chase the squirrel. Finding themselves outmaneuvered time after time, the policemen finally opened fire and killed him.

INDIANA NAMES BO M'MILLIN FOOTBALL COACH

GOLDEN GLOVES FINALISTS MARCH ON CHICAGO

CLEVELAND AND DETROIT TEAMS ARRIVE TODAY

Will Fight for Titles Tomorrow.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thirty-two boys, from which select group will come the 1934 Golden Gloves champions, with a week's arduous preparation behind them, will advance on Chicago today for their final battles in the Stadium tomorrow night. Promptly at 8 o'clock the first of these youngsters, two of the four contending flyweights, will climb through the ropes to inaugurate Chicago's greatest boxing show.

Eight minutes later, unless one of these boys wins by a knockout, the announcer will raise the hand of the winner and he will then have qualified for the championship in his weight. In succession there will be two semi-final bouts in each weight division followed immediately by the eight title matches.

Everything Is Ready.

Apparently an old time crowd of enthusiastic amateur boxing fans will watch tomorrow night's finale. Mail orders are no longer accepted, but a supply of tickets remains which can be purchased at Tribune Tower and at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street. Every seat, as most fans know, affords an excellent view of the ring.

Arrangements have been completed for the finals. The 32 contestants may report at the Stadium any time between 2 and 6 p. m. to weigh in and for their physical examinations. This permits an early examination with ample time for dinner and a rest period, or if the boxer and his trainer wish they may report at 6 o'clock and then wait at the Stadium until the time to enter the ring.

Cots have been arranged in the dressing room, where the boxers may rest before their turns in the ring. The usual system of checking clothes, both for contestants and officials, will be used.

Cleveland Has Edge.

Primarily these boys from Tennessee, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, and Illinois [representatives from Nebraska, Wisconsin, and Iowa were eliminated in the three day Tournament of Champions] are fighting for a diamond studded golden glove. This highest award is supplemented by an emerald-silver glove for the lads defeated in the championships, while the alternates named on the intercity team will receive a ruby-bronze glove.

But more than the array of prizes, which also includes two team trophies, is the fight for a berth on the Chicago squad which will meet the championship team of New York in Madison Square Garden on March 28.

Numerically the fighters from Cleveland and Detroit will have an advantage. Six Cleveland boxers, accompanied by their coach and trainer, Sam Otis, sports editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer; Alex Zirin, and by Cleveland A. A. U. representatives, will arrive this afternoon. This team is practically certain to win the trophy for the out of town cities, since each defeated semi-finalist will score one point in the standings. Thus Cleveland has six points even if all its contestants are eliminated in the semi-finals, which is decidedly improbable.

Detroit Has Chance.

The defeated finalists will score three points, while each champion will be credited with five points. The other team trophy will be awarded to the Chicago squad scoring the most points, and in this battle the Catholic Youth organization holds a decided advantage over its nearest rival, George Trafton's gymnasium, which will be represented tomorrow night by Irving Goldstein, 126 pounds, and Fred Caserio, 160 pounds.

Cleveland's greatest rival is the squad of four boys from Detroit, which also is expected in Chicago this afternoon. Jack Carvath will represent the Detroit Free Press at ringside, while C. H. Brennan of the Michigan association of the A. A. U. also will accompany the squad.

Peoria is third in point of numbers in the fight for team honors. Three boys—Aaron Wade, lightweight; Keith Graves, welterweight, and Fred Tyus, middleweight—remain in the battle for Golden Gloves. It should not be at all surprising to see at least one of these boys finish on top in his class. The squad will arrive today accompanied by Kenneth Jones of the Peoria Journal-Transcript.

Michigan Has Punchers.

Grand Rapids, Mich., will have two boys in tomorrow's bouts, Patsy Urso, flyweight, whom many believe to be the outstanding fighter in his division by reason of his impressive victories on the first night of the tournament of champions, and Peter Gregaitis, light heavyweight.

Gregaitis has been one of the sensations of the tournament. With only a few bouts as a background this gangling lad outfinished many opponents who apparently were his boxing superiors. He may lose against such contestants as Joe Louis, Detroit; Joe Bauer, Cleveland, and Ario Soldati, the Rockford veteran, but he also may surprise one of them. The Grand Rapids Press will be represented by its sports editor, Roscoe Bennett.

JOHN McCORMACK RESERVES SEATS FOR FINAL BOUTS

Cleveland Has Heart Set on Six of Eight Titles.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Looks as if that seat way up there in the corner of the top balcony near the red roof of the Stadium will be at a premium tomorrow night. . . . John McCormack, the celebrated Irish tenor, hurried his arrival for a concert to be present at the ringside. . . . McCormack is one of the world's greatest boxing fans. . . . Johnny Bommarito, who will fight for the lightweight championship, is a banana peddler in Saginaw. . . . Aaron Wade's public down in Peoria calls him Trinkets because he has a terrible weakness for glittering jewelry.

One thing we won't have to worry about is Ray Wozniak. . . . The twin brother of Charley Wozniak, C. Y. O. 160 pound champion, didn't get past the quarter finals this year. . . . Honest Injun, a fellow from Nashville quit a good job as an executive in a mercantile house to come here and root for Murray Spencer, the Nashville heavyweight. . . . Pretty soft for the referees. . . . They're the only officials who have not been ordered into the "soup and fish." . . . Phil Kenneally, the C. Y. O. lightweight champion, is a son of Pat Kenneally, who train d Packey McFarland when Packey was the boss of the lightweights. . . . Up in Detroit the fans call Joe Louis, the light heavyweight contender, Poker Face Joe.

A check up of the scratches and bruises incurred during the early rounds of the Tournament of Champions revealed how surprisingly few C. Y. O. boys were damaged. . . . Those fellows seem to know how to take care of themselves. . . . Hope Jesse Levels, the Cleveland flyweight, doesn't want to smoke his cigar between rounds. . . . If he does Head Usher Andy Frain may yet qualify for the finals. . . . Soon after the last blow is struck, the bike riders will begin to move into the Stadium for the six day whizz. . . . Golden Gloves fans are pretty lucky after all. . . . Leapin' Lena Levinsky will be at the fights to cheer along her favorites. . . . May bring along the Kingfish, she says. . . . Wait until you hear the Royal Rooters club from the Savoy A. C. whoop it up for Otis Thomas, their heavyweight. . . . Al Fuller, the voice of the Palmer house, rushed back from a cruise on the Caribbean to help welcome the visiting newspaper men to Golden Gloves headquarters.

New York scouts will be cluttered around the ringside. . . . They brought along a movie camera last year, then Chicago whaled the stuffin' out of them in the Inter-City matches. . . . Hard to tell how the New York scouts will be equipped this year. . . . Cleveland's team and a big delegation of rooters pull into town at noon today and will set up their own headquarters at Palmer house. . . . They won't be satisfied with less than six of the eight championships. . . . The Irish and the Italians can all cheer for Tommy Barry, the Springfield bantamweight. . . . Tommy's father is Irish and his mother Italian. . . . Tommy himself is a coal miner. . . . Again I warn you to get there early or you may miss the best fight of the night.

INJURIES FATAL TO CANADIAN HOCKY PLAYER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDMONTON, Alta., March 7.—Harvey Robertson, member of the Leduc Hocky team of the Northern Alberta league, died in a hospital here today as a result of injuries sustained in a game here last night between the Wetaskiwin and Leduc teams.

Robertson was skating down the boards when he collided with a Wetaskiwin player. His head hit the ice with great force.

Several of Robertson's teammates believed the collision was deliberate on the part of the Wetaskiwin player and a general melée in which both players and spectators joined followed.

TILDEN DEFEATS COCHET; PLAA IN 1ST VICTORY

3,000 See Americans Take Series, 3 to 2.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

William T. Tilden defeated Henri Cochet in straight sets last night, giving the Americans a three to two victory over the French in the International Professional tennis series at the Broadway armory. Earlier in the evening Martin Plaa conquered Ellsworth Vines in a four set match. Three thousand attended.

The score of Tilden's victory over Cochet was 6-4, 6-3, 7-5, while Plaa disposed of Vines, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. On the first night of play, Tuesday, the Americans won both singles events, but lost the doubles.

The match between Tilden and Cochet was indoor tennis at its best. The Frenchman, maneuvering with graceful agility, repeatedly worked his adversary out of position and then took the net to smash and volley with decision. Tilden, often forced to the defense, turned the tables again and again with rifle shot placements, which zipped just beyond the Cochet's flashing racket.

Tilden Bears Down.

After the Frenchman had taken a 3-1 lead in the first set Tilden won four consecutive games. He dropped the next and then ran out the set 6-4. In the second set the American stepped away to a 3-0 lead, but the Frenchman drew up on even terms at three all. Then Tilden took three straight games for the set.

After Tilden had gone into a 3-1 lead in the third set, the best tennis of the evening was played. Cochet, maneuvering cautiously, would exchange strokes with his opponent until one of Tilden's drives would fall in midcourt instead of just inside the baseline. Pressing forward with catlike assurance, the Frenchman would drive to a corner and take the net to dispose of Tilden's return with a killing smash or a sharply angled volley. Proceeding in this fashion, he won three consecutive games to take the lead at 4-3.

Each won a game and the count was 5-4 in favor of the Frenchman. Then it was Tilden's turn to outmanuever his opponent. Chasing Cochet from corner to corner with his perfectly placed drives, he won three straight games, terminating the match.

Vines Loses Form.

Plaa's superior steadiness accounted for his victory over Vines. Points which were decided by killing smashes usually went to the American, but those which were determined after long rallies generally were credited to the Frenchman.

After Plaa had taken the first set at 6-3, Vines unleashed his power attack. Putting the ball away with powerful smashes, he won the second set at 6-4. Midway in the third set the American began to lose his sureness of stroke. Plaa, on the other hand, improved his polished game, being more than a match for Vines' briliant spurts. The Frenchman took the third set at 6-3 and stepped away to a 3-0 lead in the fourth. Then Vines began winning on his service and the count worked to 5-3.

Plaa Finally Wins.

On his own service Plaa brought the score up to match point. Then he drove over the baseline. Again he relinquished a chance for victory when Vines' splendid volley dropped beyond his reach. After going to match point four times the game was again deuced. There was a swift exchange from the baseline and again it was Plaa's advantage when Vines, closing in on the net, failed to get a fast volley over the barrier. During the prolonged exchange which followed the American made one sally toward the net, but was driven back by the Frenchman's lob. Finally Vines netted, giving victory to Plaa—his first of the tour.

NOTRE DAME TO DROP MARQUETTE FIVE FROM CARD

Milwaukee, Wis., March 7.—(AP)—When Notre Dame and Marquette universities clash in a basketball game here Saturday night it may be the last game between the schools for some time, William Chandler, basketball coach at Marquette, revealed tonight.

The reason for discontinuing a rivalry that has endured for several years, Chandler said, is that Coach George Keogan of Notre Dame objected to remarks about officiating made by the Marquette coach after the game at South Bend in January.

Chandler charged that one of his best players was forced out of the game, while a Notre Dame athlete, equally culpable, was permitted to continue play.

ALBIE BOOTH MAY HELP COACH N. Y. U. ELEVEN

New York, March 7.—(AP)—New York university's football team may have another Yale-trained coach. Albie Booth.

Here for a series of conferences before taking up his new duties as head coach, Dr. Marvin A. [Mal] Stevens, who piloted Yale's football teams for five years, indicated he would seek Booth as an assistant.

A Run on BABY'S BANK!

Around midnight the Old Man sneaks into the nursery, gropes for baby's bank—and finds Mother already has been there! She was first to think of getting tickets for the Golden Gloves finals at the Stadium tomorrow night.

But Baby still has some capital, for Mother found excellent seats on sale for $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and 55 cents. The top price is $3.30.

Low prices and the peak in thrills! You can't beat that combination. Why, yesterday there were 17 Scotchmen in line at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street. And there were others at the ticket counter in Tribune Tower. No further mail orders will be accepted.

LEADING GOALIES PROTECT HAWKS, WINGS TONIGHT

Chicagoans Tackle Division Pace Makers.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A Scotchman and a Welshman will do their darndest to show up each other tonight when Chuck Gardiner of the Blackhawks and Wilf Cude of the Detroit Red Wings take their places in the nets at the Chicago Stadium tonight.

Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Cude at present are considered the handiest goalkeepers in the National Hocky league. Chuck, who was born in Scotland, is certain of winning the Vezina trophy for gateminding for the second time, having been scored on only 68 times thus far. This leaves him 24 goals up on Lorne Chabot of the Canadiens, who has been counted against 92 times. Cude is third with 93 goals allowed.

Matches Gardiner.

But it is young Cude who has kept pace with Gardiner since the Red Wings began their amazing climb from what seemed to be a slump to first place in the American division. Since he came to the Wings 25 games ago on Jan. 4, Wilf has had only 45 goals scored on him against 43 for Gardiner. It is no small feat in your first year back of a good team to be matching the work of a goalie playing the best game of his career.

Cude, the only Welshman ever to make good in the big leagues, is 24 years old, having landed in Toronto from Wales with his family at the age of 10 months. His father, Harry Cude, served with the 1914 originals during the world war, and on his return, war injuries necessitated the removal of the family to the drier climate of western Canada, which is where Wilf made his hocky debut as a flyweight forward.

He Has Plenty Help.

He developed into a goalie with the famed Melville Millionaires and was discovered by old Frank Frederickson, who was scouting the west for the Pittsburgh National league club. This organization presently was shifted to Philadelphia, where Wilf was so embarrassed by his colleagues that he set a league record for goals scored against. This is an outstanding instance of the argument that a goalie, in order to make good, has to have a few hocky players, notably defense men, working in front of him.

Fortunately Cude now has more than a few ball players to help him repel enemy raids. Not the least of these is Ebbie Goodfellow, once one of the leading forwards of the league when Manager Jack Adams shifted to defense in the course of the Red Wings' profitable shakeup.

Working with him are Walter Buswell, once of the Shamrocks; Doug Young, and Teddy Graham, former Blackhawk captain, who came to the Wings in a trade from the Montreal Maroons.

Wings Hold Record.

The Wings are not only in first place, two and one-half games ahead of the Hawks and Rangers, but also boast the longest winning streak of the year. Until the Rangers defeated them at New York on Feb. 22, they had played 13 games without a loss.

The Blackhawks, for their part, already are scenting the possibility of first place in the American division before the regular season is over. They base their hopes on their great showing against the Maroons at the Stadium last Sunday and the fact that they meet the Wings in their next two games, playing them here tonight and at Detroit Sunday.

The much discussed Hawk rookie, Joe Graboski of the Ontario Hocky league, had his first workout with the team yesterday afternoon, working at center between John Gottselig and Lolo Couture. He made a satisfactory impression on Owner Frederic McLaughlin and Manager Tommy Gorman, considering the handicaps under which he had come here. He flew from Detroit yesterday afternoon, after having spent five days off skates while wrangling with immigration authorities.

HOOSIER LEADER

BO M'MILLIN.

Espinosa and Shute Win 4 Ball Golf Title

Miami, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—As the final stroke of a thoroughly tingling golf finish today, slender Denny Shute of Philadelphia, the British open champion, rapped in a nine-foot putt on the 36th green that was worth exactly $500 and clinched the international four-ball professional championship for himself and his Spanish partner, Al Espinosa of Akron, O.

They defeated the defending champions, Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and Horton Smith of Chicago, 1 up, in a match whose excitement was carried right down to the last hole for the benefit of a gallery of 1,200 spectators at the Miami Country club.

Winners Get $750 Each.

The victory was worth $750 apiece to Shute and Espinosa. The losers collected $500 each. The result kept intact the precedent by which no team has been equal to the task of repeating its triumph in the tournament since it was established in 1926, but Smith and Runyan came closer to turning the trick than any other combination.

Favorites after their record-smashing shotmaking earlier in the week, Smith and Runyan never were in the lead at any stage of the final match. Fighting uphill all the way, they squared the match once in the morning and three times during the afternoon round. The diminutive Runyan sank a 15 foot putt for an eagle two on the 35th hole to deadlock the score for the last time, only to overplay the home hole and see his rival, Shute, combine the approach and putt that settled the match with a birdie four.

Last Seven Holes Thrill.

One down at the end of the morning round and three down after the first two holes of the afternoon session, Smith and Runyan battled their way back to even terms again at the short 26th, where Runyan sank a 7 foot putt for a deuce. Still all square, with seven to go, the two teams went on a scoring spree that has had few equals for thrills in professional competition. It took nothing less than a birdie to win or halve six of the last seven holes and an eagle to decide the seventh as both sides handed old man par a terrific drubbing.

Missouri Quintet Elects Kenneth Jorgensen Captain

Columbia, Mo., March 7.—[Special.]—Kenneth Jorgensen of Riverside, Ill., has been named captain of the 1934-'35 University of Missouri basketball team, it was announced today by Coach George Edwards.

PICKED TO LEAD HOOSIERS OUT OF BIG TEN DEPTHS

Former Centre Star Gets Job.

Bloomington, Ind., March 7.—[Special.]—A. N. [Bo] McMillin is the new head football coach at Indiana university.

His appointment was announced here tonight following a meeting of the faculty athletic committee. He will come to Bloomington early next week to take charge of spring football practice.

The former quarter back who put the name of Centre college on the football map will come here from Kansas State college at Manhattan, Kas., where he has served as head coach for the last six years. He coached at Centenary and Geneva colleges before going to Kansas State. His team last year defeated all except Nebraska in Big Six competition.

Will Pick Line Coach.

McMillin will name his own line coach. A. J. [Butch] Nowack, present line coach, will not remain. McMillin, E. C. Hayes, who retired as head football coach at Indiana about two months ago, and McMillin's line coach will form the main board of strategy in the new Hoosier football lineup.

While the coaching staf is not complete, its organization is expected to include W. H. Thom and Paul Harrell, present assistants. Whether or not they will be assigned to the freshman or varsity squads is yet to be determined. Selection of any student assistants on the staf also is yet to be made. Announcement is expected to be forthcoming shortly as to the assistant McMillin will bring with him here.

Sought by Clevenger.

McMillin was not a candidate for the job, but was sought by Athletic Director Z. G. Clevenger, because of his fine national playing and coaching record. A list of between 75 and 100 coaches regarded available and of high caliber has been combed for the last month in the university's search for a successor to Hayes, now track coach at Indiana. Athletic Director Clevenger, Coach Hayes, Dr. W. J. Moenkhaus of the faculty committee, and President W. L. Bryan have conducted negotiations which terminated with the recommendation of McMillin and his acceptance by the board of trustees.

McMillin's acceptance came following conferences between him and Athletic Director Clevenger in St. Louis.

No announcement as to salary considerations was made except that officials here said the new coach's salary is in line with that generally paid for the services of Big Ten coaches. Nor was there mention of the length of McMillin's contract.

Selection Meets Approval.

Announcement of McMillin's selection met with high approval here on the campus tonight. He is regarded an intensely popular choice, and those who know his coaching say that he will give Indiana a spectacular style of game. His "five man" back field has been the talk of the Big Six in recent years. He is regarded as one of the more daring coaches of the younger school, and it is believed he will give Indiana football fans the open, spectacular style of game for which they have long been clamoring.

"Mr. McMillin was one of the greatest quarter backs the country has had," said Athletic Director Clevenger in announcing McMillin's appointment. "He is very popular with the faculty, students and football followers at Kansas State. I believe he will win his way into the hearts of Indiana people in the same fine way that he has won them at Kansas State.

Loses to Pittsburgh.

"He is one of the outstanding coaches of the country. Working in the Big Six conference under conditions similar to our own here at Indiana, he has developed colorful and fighting teams each year. I feel confident his Indiana teams will play spectacular ball and give a very good account of themselves."

It was pointed out tonight that Kansas State is the smallest of the Big Six schools, yet McMillin's team fought through the Iowa State, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Kansas games last year with a clean slate only to lose finally to Nebraska, which in turn lost only to Pittsburgh.

McMillin is accustomed to making a success of teams small in numbers, it was pointed out here. He was the hero of the country when he led Centre's little handful of "Praying Colonels" to victory over Harvard and others of the nation's greatest. Size proved no draw back then. That was back in 1919, 1920, and 1921.

Is 37 Years Old.

At the age of 37 he is coming into Big Ten football full of confidence that he can make a success at Indiana.

McMillin, strangely enough, made himself first known against Indiana, the scene of his new job. In October, 1919, Centre journeyed to Bloomington for a game with Indiana which was supposed to be a comparatively easy contest for the Hoosiers. Indiana took a 3 to 0 lead early, to which it clung until the closing minutes of the game when McMillin came into the game attired in jersey and track pants and personally led the Praying Colonels to a 12 to 3 victory. This was the beginning of Centre's national fame, later realized with the famous victory over Harvard in 1921.

DAZZO MATCH RODAK'S FIRST AT TEN ROUNDS

Golden Gloves Graduates Paired at White City.

Leo Rodak, former flyweight, bantamweight and featherweight Golden Gloves champion, is expected to receive one of his hardest tests as a professional against Paul Dazzo, 1930 Golden Gloves bantamweight titleholder, at White City, Monday night. It will be Rodak's first bout at ten rounds.

Dazzo has an edge in experience and punching, but Rodak's superior boxing may nullify his opponent's favorite blows, left hooks to the body and head.

Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight champion, has received an offer from Martin Burke, promoter, to meet Harry Dublinsky in an overweight bout at New Orleans, April 9.

Matt Dour, north side middleweight, is matched with Buddy Byers in a four round supporting bout on the Johnny Phagan-Fritz Heinz card Monday at Marigold Gardens.

Danny Delmont, west side junior welterweight, will box Dominick Mancini of Pittsburgh tomorrow at Louisville, Ky. Steve Pajdo, featherweight, faces Joe Euhr for six rounds and Lenny Cohen, bantamweight, tackles Sonny Brentz for eight.

Tony Canzoneri, New York lightweight, is to meet Frank Klick, junior lightweight champion, at San Francisco after his contest against Baby Arizmendi at Los Angeles next Tuesday. Following the contemplated Klick battle Canzoneri is scheduled to leave for New York to board a liner for Italy, where he is matched with Cleto Locatelli the latter part of April.

Frank Schultz, flyweight champion of the Catholic Youth organization, is paired with Jim Kileen in a bantamweight bout on the amateur card tonight at C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street. F. M.

Rustler Poloists Name Lineup for Saturday's Game

Lineups of two of the four teams that will meet in the polo double header Saturday night at the 124th Field Artillery armory were announced yesterday.

Steve Hammond, captain of the Green Bay Rustlers, who will meet the Cleveland Riding club in the senior division feature, stated that his teammates will be Fred Lange Jr. and Lieut. H. D. Reed.

From the camp of the 124th Field Artillery Cardinals, who will play the Milwaukee Badgers, came a statement that the Cardinals will line up with Lieut. Romeo Mura, team captain; Lieut. Don Rice and Lieut. Lou Levine. Word was also received from William Wagner, captain of the Badgers, that Richard Cullum has been named as a certain starter. The third member of the trio is expected to be picked tomorrow afternoon before the team departs for Chicago.

The Cleveland players are due here tomorrow for final workouts. Their horses have been at the armory all week, having seen action against the 124th Field Artillery team last Saturday night.

The makeup of the Cleveland battle front has not been revealed, except that Hank Evinger is a fixture at the defensive back position. Evinger captained the Ohio threesome that captured the class D championships in the 1933 nationals at the armory here. Others in the running for positions on the Cleveland team against Green Bay Saturday night are Bill Fergus, Charles Calhoun, Maj. Ollie Gates and Capt. Clifford Radcliff.

FIELD OF MANY NATIONS TO RIDE IN SIX DAY RACE

Italian, French, Belgian, German, Swiss, Canadian and American riders will match speed in the six day bicycle race which starts in the Stadium at 9 o'clock Sunday night. Each nationality in this cosmopolitan field will have its following among the fans.

One of the most popular of the riders is Reggie McNamara, who just completed his 100th six day race and is coming to Chicago to ride his 101st event. McNamara finished fifth in the recent New York race with Dave Lands as his partner. He will ride in the Stadium with Lands.

ROOSEVELT AND PHILLIPS LIGHTS AGAIN IN FINAL

Defeat Senn, Lindblom for Title Chance.

Roosevelt and Phillips are back in the final round for the Chicago Public High School league lightweight basketball championship. The two teams, which have appeared in the title playoffs several times during the last six years, triumphed in the semi-finals yesterday, Roosevelt defeating Senn, 39 to 36, at Roosevelt's gymnasium and Phillips winning from Lindblom, 25 to 21, at White City.

Roosevelt, defending champion, will be seeking its third title when it meets Phillips at Loyola university gymnasium Saturday. Phillips has won four championships, its last one in 1932. The league heavyweight title battle also will be played Saturday, Lane Tech opposing Tilden Tech at White City.

The work of Jones, forward, enabled Phillips to enter the finals. He broke through the Lindblom defense to score six baskets and one free throw. Phillips led, 13 to 10, at the end of the first half, but the score was tied, 21 to 21, in the last period. Phillips was assured of victory when Jones scored a field goal and followed with a penalty shot.

Senn at no time seriously threatened to overtake Roosevelt's lead. At the intermission Roosevelt led, 19 to 10, and with less than two minutes to play held a 37 to 28 advantage. Senn scored six points in the final minutes, but Cohen, Roosevelt forward, sank a field goal to clinch the victory. The lineups:

RIVERSIDE WINS FROM YORK IN TWO OVERTIMES

State Prep Meet Now in Full Swing.

Riverside defeated York, 34 to 27, in two overtime periods last night in the opening of the La Grange district tournament of the state high school basketball meet. Neither team scored in the first extra period, but in the second Riverside made eight points.

In other games at La Grange, Morton, 1932 Illinois state champion, was eliminated by Wheaton, 28 to 26, and Downers Grove defeated Bensenville, 31 to 26.

The Joliet district meet started last night with Coal City defeating Lisbon, 64 to 3. Second round games were played at Libertyville while first round contests were staged at Crystal Lake.

Nearly all of the 64 districts in the state now have opened. The remaining ones will start tonight. The sectional tournaments bringing together the winners of district meets, will start next week.

SOUTH AND WEST K. OF C. QUINTETS MEET TONIGHT

South and west divisions of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league will be in action tonight with a number of important games which may help determine finalists in the championship round which starts March 18. The preliminary schedule will close Sunday.

Loyola-Hyde Park vs. Auburn Park and McHale vs. Aquinas tops the south division card at White City, while the west division features at the West Side clubhouse will be Hennepin vs. Hughes and Damen vs. Tonti. The schedules:

WARD'S PITCHING DAZZLES CUBS' STRATEGY BOARD

Shows How He Won 25 Games with Angels.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 7.—Charley Grimm, who manages the Cubs, discovered in the course of today's training that he might have an exceptionally good pitching prospect in Richard O. Ward. This wasn't exactly a surprise, but more of a confirmation, for it had been reported in advance that Ward might amaze a few people with his skill.

Until Ward was given a chance today to exhibit himself under critical eyes little was known about him except that he won 25 games while losing nine with the Los Angeles team last season. Twenty-five victories are a lot in any league and doubly so in the Pacific Coast league where hitters have all the edge, because of a jack rabbit baseball.

Ward won that many games although it was only his second year in organized baseball. That is ample proof he is getting along rapidly. He once thought he was going to be a great boxer, but he gave that up before becoming mired in the professional ring ranks.

Beautiful Change of Pace.

Ward was put on the mound this morning and told to reveal his wares to Grimm and Coaches Corriden and Kelly. He immediately showed a beautiful change of pace ball for which Grimm expressed great admiration. Then he let loose with a fast ball that was equally impressive.

A curve was next, and that, too, was worth looking at. All three are thrown with exactly the same overhand motion. The only correcting he needed was in the covering of the ball with his glove when he wound up. He was doing it in such a way that a third base coach could tip off just what was going to be thrown.

William Lee, the only other newcomer in the staf of eight pitchers, also came in for attention. He was one of the men used in batting practice. Lee is the six foot plus fellow purchased from Columbus, O., by William Veeck, late president of the Cubs. Despite the handicap of a lame back Lee showed a lot of ability and apparently will not need much polishing. His biggest weakness is said to be inability to keep runners close to the bases. This can be corrected without much effort. Lee, like Ward, pitches overhand.

English, Jurges in Uniform.

The two one eyed infielders, Woody English and Bill Jurges, were in uniform today despite their mysterious ailments. Woody's left eye still is as red as a hot poker, and Jurges' good eye now is giving indication of taking up the malady. Both fellows found that after working up a good sweat they forgot their troubles. Prior to this there had been plans for sending them to Los Angeles for treatment.

Pitcher Lynn Nelson, who was shipped to the mainland yesterday for observation, probably will return before the week-end. He was rushed away when it was feared that an ear abscess indicated a mastoid operation might be necessary. Club officials phoned the Hollywood hospital this morning and were told that serious complications were not expected.

White Sox Meet in Camp Game Despite Weak Arms

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 7.—Sore or weak arms hanging from the torsos of James Dykes, Ralph Kress, Paul Edwin Gregory, and Leslie Tietje of the White Sox have not served to alter Manager Lew Fonseca's plan to conduct his first intraclub game of the year tomorrow at high noon.

Old Man Dykes, as sprightly a gent each day as there is on the lot, did not even permit his sore arm, the first he's had in three years, to interfere seriously with his infield drilling today. Kress, first of the sore arm brigade, also worked out valiantly, though he did little throwing.

Gregory and Tietje Excused.

Gregory and Tietje are not exactly sore arm victims, Manager Fonseca simply feels that their arms will be stronger if they develop them more carefully. As a consequence both have been excused from participation in tomorrow's game. Each is expected to be ready for the first exhibition of the year against the Los Angeles Angels Sunday afternoon.

The weather here has been perfect every day since the first squad arrived—in fact the Sox never have lost a minute because of adverse weather conditions since they opened their spring camp here a year ago.

As a result of the current hot spell and the eagerness of the athletes, Fonseca says he has his crew far ahead of the conditioning schedule and if there is no rain during the remainder of the week or on Sunday in Los Angeles, all the lads may be given Monday off. And it will be a real day off, for all paraphernalia will be left at Wrigley field, where the Sox will continue their series with the Angeles Tuesday and Wednesday.

Will Scout Cubs.

On March 15 and 16 the Sox will work out in Pasadena, but the drills will be concluded in time for the athletes to scout the Cubs in the games at Wrigley field on March 15 against the Angeles and on March 16 against the Hollywood Stars.

The Sox will meet the Cubs at Wrigley field in Los Angeles on March 17 and 18, and Fonseca has announced he will do little experimenting in the all-Chicago games. The Sox have the remarkable record of having won eight of their last nine games with Cubs and naturally want the record to continue overwhelmingly in their favor just as long as possible.

As a consequence the Sox skipper probably will send his pitchers to Los Angeles to watch the Cubs perform against the coast leaguers on the 15th and 16th.

John Pomorski May Be Answer to Sox's Prayer

[This is the fourth of a series of articles on rookies in training with the White Sox and Cubs in California.]

Baseball has produced hundreds of hardened athletes who confess assorted hobbies, but it remained for John Leon Pomorski, recruit right handed pitcher with the White Sox, to champion canaries. John dotes on choppers and rollers just as Herbie Pennock dotes on fox raising and Burleigh Grimes on horses.

JOHN POMORSKI.

Just now, however, John is many miles from his aviary at 975 Old Orchard avenue, Montreal, Que., and he doesn't expect to see his hundreds of pets again until some time next October.

Meanwhile he's all engrossed in winning a regular birth beside Sam Jones, Ted Lyons, George Earnshaw, Ed Durham, Joe Heving and Milt Gaston.

Pomorski, who also bats right handed, was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1907. He is 6 feet tall, weighs 185, fair haired and his eyes are hazel. He is married and the father of two children.

As a student at the Passaic, N. J., High school a few years ago he played on the famous Passaic Wonder team which won 159 consecutive basketball games before finally losing to Hackensack.

Pitching for Attleboro in the New England league in 1928, Pomorski, who is called "Pommy" by his mates, scored 21 victories against 11 defeats and yielded an earned run average of 2.84. He participated in 40 games, working 28 complete contests, a total of 281 innings. His team was last in fielding and third in hitting.

John has pitched the last four seasons for Montreal of the International league and always managed to win more games than he lost. In 1930 he had 13 triumphs against 8 defeats; 1931 his record was 17 and 9; 1932 it was 13 and 11, and 1933 he won 14, losing 7.

IF SIZE COUNTS, BROWN PITCHERS SHOULD BE GOOD

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—A group of towering rookie pitchers is the first conspicuous result of Rogers Hornsby's efforts to hoist the St. Louis American league team from the cellar.

Nine of the twelve pitchers who will get a trial at the training camp, which swung into action today, are more than 6 feet tall.

Jim Weaver, acquired from Newark of the International league, is 6 feet 6 inches tall.

COCHRANE GETS ANGRY.

Lakeland, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Stanley R. [Bucky] Harris isn't managing the Detroit Tigers this year, but Micky Cochrane, who is, believes his predecessor is going to help the club win games.

Harris was quoted recently in a newspaper interview as saying that Detroit hasn't much chance this year.

"I'm going to put that clipping on the bulletin board and have everyone read and remember it," Cochrane said when he heard about it.

DUROCHER STILL OUT.

Bradenton, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinal infield had its first defensive drill here today in the second workout of the training season.

Leo Durocher, who is favored to win the regular job at short, still is absent.

REDS RELY ON VANCE.

Tampa, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Confidence that Dazzy Vance will win twenty games and that at least half of the club's contests are "in the bag," was expressed by Manager Bob O'Farrell today as the Cincinnati Reds raced through another workout.

CRONIN DRILLS TRAVIS.

Biloxi, Miss., March 7.—(AP)—Washington's Senators finally got back at Mike Martin, their hard-driving trainer. They made him referee the first volley ball game at Spring training camp here, and led him an umpire's life throughout the contest.

Joe Cronin, the Senators' manager, is busy teaching new tricks to Cecil Travis, the rookie third baseman picked to succeed Ossie Bluege. Latest arrival at camp is Al Thomas, pitcher.

YANKEES SIGN TWO.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Danny MacFayden, last of the holdouts on the New York Yankees' pitching staf, and Shortstop Frank Crosetti came to terms with Manager Joe McCarthy today. MacFayden signed up here and joined Vernon Gomez and George Uhle in their first workout, while Crosetti's contract arrived at the Yanks' offices from California. Uhle, already signed, reached camp today.

ROOKIES BEAT A's.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Pounding out twelve hits, the Yanigans scored an 8 to 3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in a training camp game today. Eddie Madjeski hit a home run and two singles for the winners.

Bing Miller was at first base for the Yanigans.

GIANTS TIE YANIGANS.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—The New York Giants' regulars and Yanigans played their second short practice game without reaching a decision today, winding up in a 2 to 2 tie after six innings. Travis Jackson set the pace for the regulars, hitting a triple and a double, while John Leonardo, a rookie right hander, did the day's best pitching.

WILSON LIKES GRABOWSKI.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—The work of young Reg Grabowski, former Syracuse sandlotter and more recently of the Reading club in the New York-Pennsylvania league, is beginning to make an impression on Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies.

Wilson worked the pitchers lightly again today, but Grabowski's easy motion and air of confidence caught his eye before practice sessions ended.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

DOLPH CAMILLI, Cubs' first baseman, while playing in the Coast league, struck out five times one afternoon. . . . He was going to bat a sixth time when his manager, Nick Williams, grabbed the bat from his hands . . . "No you don't," shouted Nick. . . . "Nobody is going to set that kind of a world record for me" . . . And he sent up a pitcher to pinch hit. . . . President Lou Comiskey of the White Sox has lost 78 pounds since last November. . . . Last year when he went to California with his team he became ill because of the altitude as he was crossing the mountains and returned to Chicago after 36 hours in camp. . . . This year he didn't know there were any mountains. . . .

Homer Stonebraker, Wabash college's all-time basketball great, is sheriff of Cass county, Indiana, but finds time to officiate high school games. . . . It is reported that Ed Krause, Notre Dame football and basketball star, is ready to sign for a college coaching job. . . . Several professional football teams likewise are seeking his services. . . . Dutch Fehring and Ray Eddy, Purdue basketball players, were teammates for three years at Columbus, Ind., High school. . . . Tom Ellerby, Michigan track captain, had no interest in the sport until after he enrolled at the university. . . . He has been running the quarter mile in 51 seconds this winter. . . .

Dave MacMillan, Minnesota basketball coach, says his boys like to play at Notre Dame better than any other school. . . . "The treatment given visiting teams at Notre Dame is wonderful," MacMillan recently stated when the question where he preferred most to play was put to him . . . "The crowd cheers every good play you make impartially," he added. . . . Paul Franklin, Chicago Bears' utility man, is from Central Normal of Danville, Ind., and not from Franklin college as programs and newspapers frequently have it. . . . Ollie Adelman, freshman quarter back at Northwestern, is working his way through school as a correspondent for a Milwaukee newspaper. . . .

A group of Chicago newshawks installed a ping-pong table in their pressroom to while away the hours between murders. . . . In the elimination contest to choose a champion, the janitor walked away with the honors. . . . Donie Bush, manager of the Minneapolis ball club, has not been in that city since his team won the American association title in 1932 . . . Says it is too cold . . . He went direct to camp from his home in Indianapolis. . . . Glen Seidel, Minnesota quarter back, had three A's and two B's for the last quarter in his engineering course. . . . He also is a Sunday school teacher in one of Minneapolis' largest churches. . . .

Aaron Rosenberg, Southern California's great linesman, landed a job as an assistant movie director because he happened to be in a night club when a movie producer was trying his luck at a crap table without much success. . . . "Can you make a pass?" the producer asked, turning to a big fellow looking over his shoulder. . . . "Why I guess so, but I'm broke," he replied. . . . "Okay, here's the dough, make a pass," the producer instructed, and Rosenberg made six passes in a row. . . . He went to work in the studio the next Monday. . . . A magazine called Racquet will make its appearance June 1. . . . It will be published in Chicago. . . . Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers, who has won the Lady Byng hocky trophy for sportsmanship five times, is again a candidate, although Joe Primeau of Toronto will get several votes. . . . The Cleveland Country club recently signed Billy Burke, 1931 national open champion, as its professional. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., defeated Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, in a ten round, no decision contest at Milwaukee. . . . Frank Kair of Chicago broke the international tournament singles event bowling record by spilling 732 pins in the A. B. C. tourney. . . . The Maroons strengthened their hold on first place in the Big Ten basketball standing by defeating Purdue, 35 to 21.

MICHIGAN COUNTS ON PLACE POINTS IN BIG TEN TRACK

Decision of Big Ten track officials to award points for five places in the conference track meet at the Midway Saturday is expected to prove a boon to the Michigan squad. The Wolverines are bringing a well rounded team to Chicago in an effort to unseat the Hoosiers from the indoor track throne which they have occupied for two years, and the extra place points should help. Previously the contending teams have been awarded five points for every first, three for every second, two for every third, and one for every fourth. The new plan sets up a 5-4-3-2-1 system.

Hoosiers Produce Unknowns.

Ratings on the basis of recent performances give Michigan and Indiana four first places each; Michigan in the dash, hurdles, high jump and two mile, and Indiana in the 440, 880, mile and relay. Michigan, however, seems certain to win place points in five events, with the rankings somewhat as follows: seconds in the 880 and pole vault, thirds in the dash and the one mile run, and fourth in the relay. Indiana appears limited to place points in only four events: seconds in the mile and the two mile, fourth in the pole vault and fifth in the 440. If the results follow this pattern Michigan will win the meet with 36 points and Indiana will be second with 31.

Coach E. C. Hayes' Indiana team, however, has been rated second to Michigan in the prognostication prior to each of the last two meets, and each time he has furnished surprises in the shape of comparative unknowns who proceed to outdo all recorded efforts credited to them and to win the meet.

Hobbs Rated High in Mile.

One of Hayes' incipient heroes is the mysterious Marmaduke Hobbs, a sophomore distance man who was rated last as a better prospect than Charlie Hornbostel. Hobbs has been running second to Hornbostel in the mile all year, and is likely to place high in that event. The outside chance—the element which Indiana has capitalized on—would be a victory for Hobbs over Alix of Michigan in the two mile. And then there is one Bill Smullen, another Hoosier sophomore distance man, for whom a 9:26 two mile race was once mentioned. Such good time would win the event, but Smullen hasn't run it that fast in any recent meet.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ENDS TITLE BOUTS.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 7.—If Madison Square Garden officials adhere to their assertions, not given for local publication, made before their return to New York, Miami has seen the last of their attempts to hold title bouts.

Two contests have been carded this winter, with Miami and its tributary territory enjoying a horde of visitors not seen since the land boom days. Yet the fistic presentations were unprofitable. The Rosenbloom-Knight contest, which attracted considerable local following because Knight is a southern boy, drew about $25,000 and brought out no red ink for the ledger if renovation of the big arena was charged to the contest to follow.

We have before us advance publicity for the heavyweight title mill. Attendance was estimated at 40,000 and gate receipts at $100,000. Paid attendance actually was less than 9,000 and gross gate receipts, before tax, just above the $44,000 notch. So it took a couple of bottles of red ink for the ledger on that date.

Now perhaps the surprising thing in attendance was the paucity of spectators in the $2.20 section. That indicated local patronage was not interested and would not pay even the minimum cost. As a matter of fact, the $20 and $11 sections were better filled relatively than any other reservations. Those patrons probably were winter visitors.

The only really successful fight conducted by the Garden down here was that between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling in 1929. It grossed over $400,000. Stribling was a Georgia boy and large crowds came by special trains. Jack Dempsey assisted in the promotion and his popularity and mixing among the populace helped the gate. Moreover, the affair was held on the site of a Miami Beach public park easily accessible to winter visitors.

Thus encouraged, the Garden built the present 52,000 capacity arena to hold the Sharkey-Scott fiasco the following season. Sharkey had not impressed particularly against Stribling the year before and Scott had the reputation of claiming foul and seeking the canvas if the claim was not allowed. The bout was a bloomer, both as to competition and finances.

There is no reason to believe a really good match would not draw in Florida, but there's a counter argument against such fights. Any bout which would draw real money here would draw even more real money in New York, Chicago, or Philadelphia. So why lose that extra money? That's the reason why many observers think Miami has seen its last title bout, for the present at least.

TUNNEY NOT A HORSEMAN.

Gene Tunney, undefeated heavyweight champion at his retirement, was asked by a newspaper man while a visitor at Hialeah, "When are you going to buy a few 2 year olds and campaign a racing string?"

Because of the wealth he accumulated while in active ring service, with one payment of nearly $1,000,000 as his share of the second battle against Dempsey at Chicago, and the independent fortune which his wife possesses, Tunney is deemed eligible for a racing establishment. As readers often have been told, racing is costly and not a money maker over a period of years even for the big stables which take down the rich stakes.

Tunney shook his head.

"I've never had a longing to own race horses. I like to visit a race track, but I'm not a real enthusiast, not enough to have a stable. Besides that," the ex-champion added, "I'm told it's a very expensive sport."

Do You Remember Way Back When:

HORNER ROLLS FIRST BALL AT A. B. C. TONIGHT

Peoria, Ill., March 7.—(AP)—The clatter of falling ten pins will begin echoing through the rafters of the Peoria state armory tomorrow night when the 34th annual American Bowling congress opens.

The congress continues through April 9, thirty-three consecutive days, during which time 5,231 bowlers from all sections of the nation will fire at the maples. Most of the outstanding bowlers of the country will shoot for a share of the $57,211 in prize money over the 24 specially constructed alleys.

Chicago Second in Number.

This year's congress has drawn 1,329 five man teams, 2,601 doubles teams, and 5,231 individuals. Peoria heads the entry list with 272 teams, mostly of the booster variety, with Chicago second with 157. Other cities with large entries are Detroit, 63 teams; Cincinnati, 43; Cleveland, 42; St. Louis, 46; Milwaukee, 42; Syracuse, N. Y., 37; Indianapolis, 20; Columbus, O., 18, and Buffalo, N. Y., 18.

Horner to Throw Opener.

Gov. Henry Horner will open the tournament tomorrow night by sliding the first ball toward the pins. He will be followed by 24 teams from the state house at Springfield, which will compete not only for tournament cash prizes, but also for a special trophy donated by the governor. Mayors John W. Kapp of Springfield and Charles L. O'Brien of Peoria also will assist in the opening ceremonies.

On Friday night Knights of Columbus teams of Peoria will have their fling on the alleys. The first out of town teams will appear Saturday.

$25,000,000 Waterfowl Plan Urged

BY BOB BECKER.

Federal Surplus Relief corporation funds up to a maximum of $25,000,000 will be used immediately to acquire 325,000 acres of land for the rehabilitation of waterfowl, and possibly an additional 5,000,000 acres for wild life will be purchased if the government approves the report of the committee on wild life restoration recently made public by the department of agriculture. The purchases are recommended for wild life rehabilitation purposes under the plan of the administration to acquire and divert 50,000,000 acres of low priced or tax reverted submarginal lands to uses of more economic importance to the country.

This huge proposal to join together the program of taking lands out of cultivation with a nationwide program of increasing waterfowl and upland game is one which all outdoor fans have been watching for some time.

Biggest Project of Kind.

If it goes through it will be the biggest project of its kind ever attempted in this country. The committee which prepared the report is composed of Thomas H. Beck of Wilton, Conn.; J. N. Darling, Des Moines, Ia., and Prof. Aldo Leopold, Madison, Wis.

The plan lists an additional $25,000,000 from the PWA and CWA easy money funds for the employment of labor on the tracts which are suggested for purchase, with a preliminary "emergency fund for surveys, examinations, etc. of projects" of about $400,000.

Three Sources of Revenue Seen.

Maintenance of the waterfowl and upland game areas which would be purchased under the proposed program can, according to the committee, be provided from three sources, with an estimated annual income of $3,500,000. The sources would be: Continuation of the present 10 per cent tax on arms and ammunition, amounting to about $2,500,000, stated to have already been agreed upon by the manufacturers; proceeds from the stamp tax of $1 on waterfowl hunters, estimated at $700,000, and the migratory bird conservation act appropriations of $300,000. Subsistence farms for residents who would manage the refuges are suggested.

In the plan as submitted a 25,000 acre tract of water and land is suggested for Illinois for the use of waterfowl and 50,000 acres for an upland game area.

Michigan Five Names Plummer '34-'35 Captain

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 7.—[Special.]—Alfred H. Plummer of Wabash, Ind., a regular on the Michigan basketball team for two seasons, today was named captain of the 1934-'35 squad. He succeeds Ted Petoskey of St. Charles, Mich.

Plummer is the only man who broke into the regular combination as a sophomore last year, and was a regular most of this season despite the repeated shakeups. He is a forward.

Coach Franklin Cappon announced today that 11 men had been awarded letters and four numerals. The letter winners are:

Capt. Petoskey; Captain Elect Plummer; Fred Allen, Wayne; Eztel Tessmer, Ann Arbor; Emanuel Fishman and George Ford, Detroit; Russell Oliver, Pontiac; John Regeczi, Muskegon Heights; Arthur Evans, Flint; Richard Joslin, Kenilworth, Ill.; and Chelso Tomagno, Chicago. Those given numerals are: Clayton Faulson, Wiunetka, Ill.; William Borgmann, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Robert Kositchek, Lansing, and D. King Lewis, Mt. Pleasant.

WALTHER LEAGUE QUINTETS PLAN DISTRICT MEET

The Walther league, Lutheran young people's order, yesterday announced the inauguration of a district wide basketball tournament. The territory comprises all of northern Illinois as far south as Kankakee and Joliet. Sixteen teams from nine zones have been selected and will begin play on March 18 in the gymnasium of Concordia college at River Forest. The eliminations will continue on March 24 and 31, with the semi-finals and the championship games April 4 and 7.

The league also is sponsoring an open bowling tournament at the Gold Coast Recreation, in which any member may participate. It will open on March 24 and play will continue on Saturdays and Sundays so that out-of-town bowlers may find time to bowl.

BLUE RIBBONS TO BATTLE TORONTO SEXTET TONIGHT

The Maple Leaf amateur hocky club of Toronto will play the Blue Ribbon six in the second and final game of the international series at the Coliseum tonight.

The Leafs were completely outclassed by the Baby Ruths in the final game.

A factor in tonight's clash to be reckoned with is that the visiting club happens to be the first one that has brought a complete roster with it, and the extra men will help to give the Blue Ribbons a battle.

The Blue Ribbons, who had a chance to watch the Leafs in action, held a practice late yesterday afternoon, designing a system which they hope will stop the visitors and allow them to garner enough goals to down this powerful Canadian six.

If the Blue Ribbons win tonight the club will be one of the favorites to win the Senior Midwest A. A. U. hocky tournament which will open next Thursday. Houghton, Mich., and St. Cloud, Minn., already have entered. Lineups:

HARVARD SEXTET LOSES TO YALE IN OVERTIME, 5 TO 4

New Haven, Conn., March 7.—[Special.]—Yale scored a 5 to 4 victory over Harvard in the playoff of their hocky series tonight, when Capt. Joe Gilligan, with less than two minutes remaining, made the winning goal, the first scored in more than half an hour of overtime, past Capt. Degive. The match seemed about to end in a tie when Jimmy Mills' pass was caught almost as a loose puck by Gilligan who had an open drive at Degive. It was Yale's twenty-second victory in the 70 games of their series begun 34 years ago. Harvard has captured 45 games and three have been ties.

Tonight's game began with a Yale onrush by goals by Douglas Robinson and Roger Shepard, in which each also contributed an assist followed by a goal by Sam Callaway for Harvard in the first, closing the first period with Yale leading 2 to 1. Harvard's rally, through goals by Windy Hasler and Bill Watts, early in the second chapter, first tied and then put the Crimson out in front, only to be overturned by brilliant goals by Spare Dave Stoddard and George Robson, keeping Yale ahead, 4 to 3.

U. S. BONDS RISE AS GENERAL LIST REACTS SLIGHTLY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 7.—United States government long term issues featured the listed bond market today, showing the best strength in about a month, as domestic corporation bonds and leading foreign loans moved irregularly lower. Government bonds closed the day with net gains of 1-32d to 20-32ds point, registering new highs for the year for most of the issues.

An outstanding feature was a sharp rally in the three issues of the Alleghany corporation on denials that J. P. Morgan & Co. had taken over control of the Van Sweringen railroad interests as a result of difficulties in meeting bank loans.

Alleghany Issues Rally.

Alleghany 5s of 1944 rallied at one time to 62¼, for a 2¼ point gain; the 5s of 1950 gained 2⅜ to 32½, and the 5s of 1949, at 55, were up 2⅝ points from yesterday's closing quotation.

Elsewhere, listed bonds held to a rather narrow range. A number of secondary rails lost fractions to around a point, and there were scattered declines in the utilities and industrials. At the same time many so-called prime investment issues held small gains, although a number were unchanged on the day.

Foreign List Is Mixed.

While some traders and investors exhibited nervousness over the higher wages-shorter hours plan of the NRA code authorities, there was little urgent liquidation apparent.

In the foreigns, French government and municipal loans rallied fractionally to 2¾ points, as Dutch East Indies and Swiss government 5½s of the "gold payment" group, eased fractionally. Bonds of the German group were irregularly lower. Scandinavian loans and United Kingdom issues ruled firm. Issues of the Australian group moved fractionally higher in active trading. Latin American bonds finished irregularly lower in very quiet dealings.

Hamilton-Brown Shoe Company.

Investors' Guide: Please advise through your column in the paper or by self-addressed envelope that is enclosed about the stock of Hamilton-Brown Shoe company, as a friend and I have arguments occasionally about this stock.—R. P.

Answer: Hamilton-Brown Shoe company, a St. Louis manufacturer, was unable to pay its debts as they matured in 1930, and William R. Gentry was appointed receiver in May of that year. Payment of all claims by the receiver enabled the court to terminate the receivership on June 23, 1931.

Rising prices and increased volume helped the company to report a profit in 1933, the first since 1927. The four year record of earnings follows:

	Sales.	Net loss.	Loss per com. shr.
1933	$4,525,000	*$ 102,000	*$0.52
1932	†	272,000	1.39
1931	†	848,000	4.31
1930	8,223,000	1,681,000	8.55

*Net income. †Not reported.

On Dec. 31, 1933, current assets, consisting of $167,000 cash, $519,000 receivables, and $857,000 inventories, totaled $1,544,000 and current liabilities were $70,000.

HARVESTER FIRM REAPS BENEFIT OF ECONOMIES

Reports Big Slash in 1933 Deficit.

The business of the International Harvester company turned the corner in May, 1933, and continued to improve throughout the remainder of the year with the result that the company closed the period with a deficit of only $1,886,000 as compared with a $7,582,000 loss in 1932. Sales were 5 per cent greater in 1933 than in 1932. These results were set forth in the annual report released last night by President Addis E. McKintry.

ADDIS E. McKINSTRY. [Moffett Photo.]

Economies in operating and distributing costs accounted in a large measure for the improvement, Mr. McKinstry said. "While the results are far from satisfactory," he said, "the movement is in the right direction."

Maintains Strong Position.

The company's position as one of the strongest industrial concerns financially in the country was maintained during the year. At the close of the period the company had current assets of nearly twelve times its current liabilities. Current assets were $232,328,864, against current liabilities of $19,506,451.

Of the net working capital $176,711,000 is held in the United States, $13,699,000 in Canada, and $22,412,000 in other countries. In stating its foreign balances the company did not take advantage of the appreciation which has taken place, but used the exchange quotations of Dec. 31, 1932, in translating the working capital into United States funds. This was done, President McKinstry explained, because of the uncertainty of international exchange and the fact that such funds are more or less permanently invested abroad.

Collections Are Improved.

Collections of the company in 1933 improved as a result of the better financial position of the agricultural population. Receivables on Dec. 31 were $90,061,000, or $20,690,000 less than a year previous.

The company increased its capital expenditures last year to $2,749,000 as compare dwith $1,633,000 in 1932. Another noteworthy change was an increase from $1,558,000 to $8,645,000 in "other" investments. President McKinstry explained that this increase was due to advances made to suppliers on long term timber contracts and the conversion of "frozen surplus cash balances" in Argentina into bonds of that country payable in United States funds.

Mr. McKinstry finds a better feeling on the part of the American farmers.

Farm Position Better.

"Improvement in the price of some major products already appears to have ushered in a revival of confidence among American farmers, and has brought about a measurable increase in their purchasing power," he told shareholders. "The trend of prices such as likestock, dairy products, poultry, etc., appears to be upward and as soon as these prices rise to satisfactory levels, it may be expected that the farmers will be in the market for new and improved machines which offer them the most immediate and available means of reducing production costs."

Commenting on the "made work" policy followed in 1933 he said that about 4,000 of veteran employés who had been laid off were called back to augment factory forces.

"The purpose of this policy," he said, "was to help reduce unemployment in the various communities affected and thereby increase purchasing power. While this policy produces goods beyond present demands, the company has full faith in the recovery of agriculture and believes that in the not distant future the goods will be needed."

H. M. Stronck Mentioned for Federal Deposit Post

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—H. M. Stronck, Chicago banker and investment broker and former head of a Tucson, Ariz., bank, is being mentioned as successor to E. G. Bennett, who recently resigned as a director of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation. Mr. Stronck only recently left Chicago to make his home in Tucson because of illness in his family. In recent months he has been serving as Mr. Bennett's assistant.

Ward's Sales Increase 52%; Walgreen 25%

Participating in the general increase in mail order business, Montgomery Ward & Co. reported yesterday that February sales were 52.21 per cent greater than in February, 1933. The Walgreen company, large Chicago drug store chain, revealed its February sales were 25.6 per cent ahead of those in the same month of 1933.

Montgomery Ward February sales totaled $15,421,893, compared with $10,131,891 in February, 1933. This is the largest gain over a similar month in a preceding year since May, 1923, when an increase of 69.30 per cent was shown. At that time the country was emerging from the depression of 1921.

Totals Above 1932 and 1931.

Sales last month also exceeded those of February in 1932 and 1931, when the totals were $11,963,366 and $15,244,975, respectively. Of the total retail business was up 29.88 per cent and mail order business soared 80.73 per cent. The advances were attributed to general increases in business throughout the country.

The company also announced the signing of two long term leases on stores in downstate cities. One covers the premises at 100-106 North Vermilion street, Danville, which are being remodeled, and a department store will be opened. Remodeling will be started about April 15 on premises in the business district of Galesburg for another department store.

Walgreen Increase 25.6 per Cent.

Walgreen February sales totaled $4,079,759, compared with $3,248,371 in the same month last year—an increase of $831,388, or 25.6 per cent.

Sales for the first two months of 1934 totaled $8,383,229, compared with $6,913,336—an increase of $1,469,893, or 21.3 per cent. There were 477 stores in operation Feb. 28, compared with 471 at the end of February last year.

J. C. Penney company's February sales were $11,744,961, up 38.9 per cent from the same 1933 month. January's rise was 43.2 per cent.

Kroger Grocery & Baking company reported its sales increased 12 per cent for the second period of this year which ended Feb. 24, to $16,686,477, compared with $14,844,670 in the like period of 1933—an increase of $1,841,807. During the first period which ended Jan. 27, there was a 5 per cent gain over last year.

National Tea Reports Gain.

The National Tea company reported its sales for the four weeks ended Feb. 24 totaled $4,735,401, compared with $4,650,848 in the same period of 1933—an increase of 1.81 per cent. Number of stores in operation declined from 1,385 to 1,269.

S. H. Kress & Co. reported February volume of $5,083,475, compared with $3,895,802 in 1933—an increase of 30.5 per cent. Sales for the first two months of this year totaled $10,189,992, compared with $7,808,785—an increase of 30.5 per cent.

CLEVELAND HAS A SHORTAGE OF METAL WORKERS

Cleveland, O., March 7.—(AP)—Partly the result of heavy production demands by the automotive industry, a shortage of skilled metal trades workers was reported in Cleveland today for the first time since 1929.

A survey of numerous plants produced statements that first class tool and diemakers, good machinists, and in some cases lathe workers and molders are becoming increasingly hard to find.

The reasons assigned included the increasing output of automotive parts, the limitations of NRA codes on working hours, the drifting of many metal tradesmen into other fields and a shortage of apprentice replacements.

Union leaders added that some manufacturers do not pay wages high enough to attract skilled help.

ST. PAUL VOTES DOWN PLAN FOR MUNICIPALLY OWNED POWER PLANT

St. Paul, Minn., March 7.—(AP)—A proposal to issue $10,230,000 in bonds for establishment of a municipally owned electric light and power plant was defeated in yesterday's municipal primary election by more than 15,000 votes.

Complete unofficial returns today gave 47,569 votes against the issue and 32,346 for it.

The bond issue was favored by Mayor William Mahoney who was renominated in leading a field of four candidates for the mayoralty.

ELECT THREE TO DIRECTORATE OF U. S. GYPSUM CO.

Solomon A. Smith, president of the Northern Trust company, was elected a director of the United States Gypsum company yesterday to fill the vacancy created by the death of Melvin A. Traylor. C. H. Shaver, secretary and treasurer, also elected to the board succeeding R. G. Bear, deceased, and W. L. Keady, assistant operating director of the company, was elected a director to succeed C. R. Birdsey, resigned.

Sewell L. Avery, president, in his report to stockholders, stated that for the first two months of this year the company made a profit of approximately $53,000 after all charges, compared with a loss of $87,000 in the corresponding period of 1933. The company made a profit of $93,000 in January, compared with a loss of $30,000 in the same month of 1933. For February there was an estimated loss of $45,000, compared with a loss of $57,000 in February, 1933.

Regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 a share on the preferred and 25 cents a share on the common were declared payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 17.

CHARGE RADIO TUBE MONOPOLY IN PATENT SUIT

Trenton, N. J., March 7.—(AP)—The Radio Corporation of American and the General Electric company are charged with controling radio patents, in violation of anti-trust laws and court decrees, in a 65 page answer to patent infringement suits brought by these companies in federal court against the Hygrade Sylvania corporation of Massachusetts, manufacturers of radio tubes.

The answer, which amended a previous answer, was filed yesterday by former Federal Judge Hugh Morris of Delaware, representing the Hygrade concern. Morris traced a series of agreements by which radio rights throughout the world, he said, were divided by agreements among American, German, French, English, and Dutch monopolies.

Electric Power Upturn Best in Five Years

While electricity output in the Chicago district for the week ended March 3 was practically the same in volume, and maintained about the same margin over output in the parallel week of 1933 as in the preceding week, the national output not only was the largest since last September, but also raised its margin over comparative weeks to the highest percentage since 1929.

The Edison Electric institute reported yesterday that output of electrical energy in the United States for the week amounted to 1,658,040,000 kilowatt-hours, or 16.5 per cent over the total of 1,422,875,000 in the corresponding week of 1933.

Improvement .7 Per Cent.

This was a gain of .7 per cent over the total of 1,646,465,000 kilowatt-hours in the week ended Feb. 24, which included Washington's birthday, compared with a loss of 0.2 of one per cent between corresponding weeks of 1933.

The large improvement in comparison with last year was to a great extent due to the industrial stagnation occasioned by the banking crisis in 1933.

In the Chicago district production for the week was 102,809,000 kilowtthours, or 13.4 per cent in excess of the 90,642,000 total in the comparable week of last year. The preceding week's output of 102,830,000 was 14.0 per cent ahead of 1933.

Preliminary figures for February indicate a rate of increase similar to that of January, which made the best showing since October, according to the Commonwealth Edison company.

Detail Chicago Output.

Following are the output and percentage comparisons with last year for the Chicago district.

KILOWATT-HOUR OUTPUT.

Week ended.	1934.	1933.	Per cent increase.
March 3	102,809,000	90,642,000	13.4
Feb. 24	102,830,000	90,230,000	14.0
Feb. 17	99,758,000	95,486,000	4.5
Feb. 10	104,416,000	98,511,000	6.0

In five of the main territorial divisions output increased its lead over that of the like period of 1933, but it lessened slightly in two.

Production in New England rose 15.7 per cent, against 14.2 in the preceding week; in the middle Atlantic region 15.3, against 14.4; in the west central region 10, against 7.5; in the southern states 11.9, against 4.1, and in the Rocky mountains 18.2, against 16.3.

In the central industrial district output maintained a margin of 24.6, against 24.7, and on the Pacific coast 7.7, against 12.5.

STANDARD OIL, INDIANA, OFFICES ON 5 DAY WEEK

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana announced last night that effective April 1 employés in the general offices, refinery offices and sales division headquarters in fourteen states will work only five days a week. Most of the employés will be free all day Saturday, instead of working half a day. However, skeleton staffs will be maintained.

It was explained the new working period actually is only a rearrangement of hours since the office employés concerned have been working on a 40 hour week prescribed by the code. The change was authorized by the Standard Oil management in response to requests presented by representatives of employé groups in the Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, and Quincy offices.

"Directors of the company believe that general adoption in industry and trade of a five day week schedule for office employés will aid recovery," the announcement stated.

STEEL OUTPUT MOUNTS TO 49% AS ORDERS RISE

Detroit Plants Run at Capacity.

Urgency of automotive business has raised steel works operations at Detroit to full capacity; releases of rails have spurred production at Chicago, Pittsburgh, and Birmingham; canning orders have engaged tin plate mills at 75 per cent; structural steel awards and requirements of new projects have expanded, and prices of scrap are following the ascending trend.

This is the status of the steel industry, whose national operations average 49 per cent of capacity, or two points higher than last week's, according to the Iron Age.

Detroit is the only large steel producing center in the country operating at capacity. The Great Lakes plant has been running at 100 per cent for some time, and with the firing of six open hearth furnaces Ford's Rouge works have attained the same basis.

Chicago Plants Get Rail Awards.

At Chicago rail mills have been allotted an aggregate of 29,000 tons from the Chicago and North Western and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois roads. A Pittsburgh district mill is working on releases from the Wheeling and Lake Erie and will soon roll 42,000 tons for the Pennsylvania. Another mill has booked 10,000 tons from the Southern and 18,000 from the St. Louis-San Francisco.

Structural steel awards, amounting to 21,800 tons, are the highest since the second week in January. New structural projects total 13,000 tons, against 7,200 last week and 10,825 in the preceding week.

Two fundamental problems have arisen which may affect prospects of the steel industry. They are labor disagreements and the President's request for shorter hours and higher wages.

Place Second Quarter Orders.

"The labor situation in the automotive industry has become increasingly ominous," say the Iron Age.

"Wage rates, of course, can be increased further, but not without a compensatory rise in prices. Buyers have already sensed the change in the price outlook and are commencing to place contracts for the second quarter at the present market."

Advances in scrap prices at Chicago and Philadelphia have revised the Iron Age's composite upward to $12.92 a gross ton from $12.75 last week. Composites for finished steel and pig iron remain at 2.028 cents a pound and $16.90 a gross ton, respectively.

Production of steel ingots during February, according to the review, was 25.3 per cent higher than in January, compared with a gain of 15.1 per cent in pig iron output.

100% Nichols Assails Jones and "Black List" of Banks

J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, renewed his attacks yesterday on the administration's banking policies by sending a letter to Jesse H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, in which he took Mr. Jones to task for recent reported utterances.

JOHN M. NICHOLS. [Paul Sione Photo.]

Mr. Nichols has been adamant in his refusal to go along with the government's plan to insure bank deposits, and in his latest remarks he criticized Mr. Jones' demands that banks expand their credits to industry.

"Dedicate Brochure to Me."

Mr. Nichols yesterday addressed the following letter to Mr. Jones at Washington:

"My attention has been called to the March 1 edition of the American Banker, which reports you as compiling a 'black list' in which will be listed the names of such banks as have shown unwillingness to make loans on responsible securities for the aid of industry and business. It speaks of pressure to be exerted through the RFC, incurring the displeasure of the administration, and intimates that such banks may be dealt with through publicity adroitly handled.

Turn on the Heat.

"If protecting the deposits of some 16,000 people has become a felony then we are eligible for the black list and proposed boycott. Turn on the heat, if you will, but not a dollar of our customers' money is going toward the support of busted industry and idiotic professor born ideas. My first duty is to my depositors and not to you or the Democratic party.

"To hear some of you talk one might think you were seated in office for eternity. So far as I can see you are just another group of politicians who within the next 36 months will likely face a crushing defeat at the hands of the Republican party which, if I may venture the opinion, will be due entirely to your own stupidity.

"Cracking down on such men as Henry Ford and tearing into sound banks is hardly Americanism as I understand it. You know we haven't gone soviet yet.

Asks About Own Bank.

"Also I notice in one of the bank papers under the heading 'Whose Face Is Getting Red' that the National Bank of Commerce in Houston, Tex., of which I understand you are chairman, has reduced its loans by 11.1 per cent, yet you tell the rest of us to dish it out. In this case what is sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander.

"When I believe that our merchants can safely and profitably borrow money, with a reasonable assurance of paying it back, I shall tell them so. In the meantime we sit tight. This is not my money, neither is it yours. It belongs to the depositors. If they are not satisfied with the way we conduct a bank they may withdraw it at any time, put it in their sock or bury it where they will. Then possibly some of you political crooners can induce them to make these loans to industry themselves. I refuse to take this responsibility as I do not believe this is a safe time either to borrow or loan."

AUSTRALIAN LOAN OVERSUBSCRIBED; BRINGS PREMIUM

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 7.—Australia's seventh conversion loan of £21,636,000, with interest at 3½ per cent, was so heavily oversubscribed here that many applicants received only 18 per cent of what they had applied for.

At the outset of today's dealings the price opened at a premium of 1⅝ and closed at a premium of 1 13-16. This was the last and the largest of the present series of Australian conversion loans and was offered at 97.

Apossible explanation of the large initial premium is that while the Australian subscription lists were open the giltedged market became exceptionally active and strong, altering values considerably.

Hazel-Atlas Glass 1933 Net Equals $6.22 a Share

Wheeling, W. Va., March 7.—(AP)—Annual report of the Hazel-Atlas Glass company shows 1933 earnings of $2,701,020, the largest in the firm's history. The report, announced yesterday, shows 1933 dividends of $6.22 a share as compared with $4.68 in 1932. Earnings in 1932 totaled $1,922,784.

AM. TELEPHONE BUSINESS, PROFIT GAIN IN JANUARY

New York, March 7.—(AP)—A further gain in the long lines business of the American Telephone & Telegraph company in January was indicated by the report filed with the interstate commerce commission.

Gross income was $7,747,893 against $6,651,153 in the same month last year. Net operating income was $1,468,512 against $459,497.

The report covers operating activities only, excluding nonoperating income such as dividends, interest and other revenues received and nonoperating charges, such as interest and rents paid.

Fisher Body Employes Call Off Vote on Strike

Cleveland, O., March 7.—(AP)—A strike vote scheduled for tomorrow by employés of the Fisher Body company, a subsidiary of General Motors corporation, was called off late today by agreement between union officials and Ralph A. Lind, executive secretary of the Cleveland regional labor board. The agreement affects 7,000 men.

U. S. OFFERS NEW EXCHANGE LOAN OF 460 MILLION

Hints New Plan for Cash Redemption.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today announced a new government loan, amounting at the most to 460 million dollars.

The loan is for refinancing purposes only. Secretary Morgenthau said that the government's new security issue would be four year 3 per cent notes, and that no more of the new notes would be issued than is necessary to replace 460 million dollars of treasury certificates due on March 15.

Holders of the old certificates which mature on March 15 were given the option by Secretary Morgenthau of accepting in exchange for them the new treasury four year notes or of being paid off in cash.

May Be New Policy.

This move was taken here to foreshadow a new policy by the treasury of using its immense cash balance for redemption of maturing securities. With more than $4,874,000,000 in cash on hand, the treasury has temporarily ceased its heavy borrowing and is content to refinance or retire maturing issues.

Secretary Morgenthau's announcement today appeared to make certain that when a billion dollars of liberty bonds mature on April 15 the treasury will offer to pay them off in cash or exchange them for some new notes. Treasury officials were confident tonight that the present cash balance is large enough both to meet the government's running expenses and to redeem the maturing Liberty bonds.

Size Cause of Surprise.

The smallness of the new security offering which Secretary Morgenthau announced today took local circles by surprise. Previously the treasury has followed a policy of borrowing as much money as possible while the markets are favorable. Today's move brought a temporary end to that policy.

No new money whatsoever will be borrowed by the treasury on the new notes. There will be no cash sale of them, and the only persons who may obtain any of the new notes are holders of the maturing certificates who wish to make a trade.

The notes will be dated March 15, 1934, and the interest will be payable semi-annually. They will mature March 15, 1938, and will not be subject to call for redemption prior to maturity. The issue they are to replace is the $460,000,000 of treasury certificates, series TM-1934, due on March 15.

Treasury expenditure this year is more than $5,000,000,000 less than the $11,000,000,000 figure indicated by the President in his budget message. This fact had supported the belief in some quarters that the treasury would use its March financing operations to increase its cash balance.

STOCKS SHIVER IN CHILL WIND FROM CAPITAL

Losses Range Up to Five Points for Day.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 7.—Chill winds from the direction of Washington blew over the stock market in the late trading today and prices shriveled up rather sadly in all departments. Extreme losses amounted to as much as 5 or 6 points.

Activity picked up sharply on the decline and the ticker fell behind for the first time in weeks. The turnover was around 1,747,330 shares, more than double that of yesterday.

The apparent cause of the market's upset was alarm over two dispatches from the nation's capital, one indicating that stock exchange regulation, long the market's pet nightmare is more or less a certainty at this session of congress, and another the announcement that the government is preparing to "crack down" on industry to bring about shorter hours and higher wages.

Labor Reports Disturbing.

Reports of fresh labor difficulties in the midwest also proved a disturbing element. Still another excuse for selling was found in the market's technical condition—the failure of stocks to stage the generally expected rally after the creeping decline of the last few days.

The selling movement started shortly before the beginning of the last hour and gained momentum rapidly, extending to all sections. Some of the higher priced group leaders like U. S. Smelting, Case, and American Can were outstanding selling targets. Smelting sold off more than 5 points. Motor issues attracted more than their share of the liquidation orders, General Motors, Chrysler, Auburn, and Mack running into offerings of volume and dropping 1 to nearly 3 points. Earlier in the day this group had managed to edge slightly above its previous closing levels on reports that the threatened strike at the Buick, Fisher, and Hudson plants in Michigan had been postponed.

Tobacco Group Weak.

Another group to fold easily was the tobacco shares. American Tobacco common and B stock dropped 2 and 3 points, respectively, Liggett and Myers B slumped 3, and Bayuk Cigar 3¾. American Sumatra, however, went contrary to the trend, selling up a point to a new high for the year, only to ease back within a fraction of its previous close. Phillip Morris was another tobacco issue to advance, reaching the best level since 1930.

An individual strong spot was International Nickel which forged ahead to a new high since 1930.

The rails ignored indications of a record gain in carloadings for the week to join headlong in the retreat.

COTTON LOWER; TRADERS WATCH WASHINGTON NEWS

Interest in the cotton market lagged yesterday compared with a few weeks ago, and prices moved erratically within a moderate range. Every bulge brought out selling orders.

Trade and Carolina mill interests were on the buying side on declines.

At the close futures in Chicago were 9 to 16 points net lower, with other markets off 4 to 10 points. Spots lost 5 points in New York at 12.30 cents; New Orleans lost 10 points to 12.05 cents; Houston was unchanged at 12.15 cents, and Galveston dropped 5 points, also closing at 12.15 cents. Prices:

BUTTER AND EGGS FIRM; POTATOES TOUCH NEW LOW

Butter and egg futures were steady to firm on the Chicago Mercantile exchange Wednesday. Butter closed ½c lower to ¼c higher, eggs unchanged, while April potatoes dropped 7c to a new low.

March butter opened easy, but gained strength later on new buying and short covering. Stocks continued moving heavily out of storage. Chicago's holdings have fallen under the 10,000,000 pound mark.

October eggs opened at a new high of 20¾c. New buying was active most of the session, but the market eased slightly and closed unchanged.

PRESIDENT SEEKS EARLY ACTION ON STOCK CONTROL

N. Y. Exchange Questions Constitutionality.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—At the same time President Roosevelt announced today he expects this session of congress to pass stock exchange regulation legislation, the New York stock exchange challenged before congress the constitutionality of the Fletcher - Rayburn stock regulation bill.

The action of the exchange was interpreted as notice to the committees and to congress that unless the bill is amended to meet objections of those opposing the legislation, enactment will be followed by a test of its constitutionality in the courts.

Hopes for Delay Dashed.

The statement of the President that he desires stock exchange legislation at this session of congress dashed any hopes of opponents of the legislation that Senator Robinson, the Democratic senate leader, spoke with authority when a few days ago he said in the senate that "no assurances" could be given that the legislation would be passed during this congress.

Within an hour after the President made his statement Chairman Fletcher of the senate banking and currency committee, who said he was "not at all surprised" by the President's action, announced that he expects to have the bill on the floor of the senate before the end of next week. Hearings, he said, as the program now stands, will probably end Friday.

The position of the exchange is that the mere declaration by congress that "transactions in securities as commonly conducted upon securities exchanges are effected with a national public interest" does not make this so as a matter of law. Such transactions as "commonly conducted" are not transactions in interstate commerce, according to the lawyers for the exchange, and congress, they declare, "cannot by legislative fiat ascribe to them legal characteristics which they do not otherwise possess."

Argue Sales Are Intrastate.

"Sales," it is argued, "are made only between members of the exchange and, in the case of the New York Stock exchange, the transactions occur only in its building in the city of New York. . . . The actual contracts of purchase and sale take place only in New York City, and all deliveries of securities and payments of money in connection with the performance of these contracts likewise occur solely in New York City."

The use of the telegraph, telephone or other means of communication does not make a transaction one in interstate commerce, according to the exchange brief, and various court decisions are cited in support of its contention that "interstate communication is not interstate commerce." The bill, "as a whole," it is declared, is unconstitutional.

At the hearing before the senate committee today, the bill was opposed by Samuel P. Reyburn of New York.

Sees Harm in Bill.

The committee also received from a son of a former president, Archibald B. Roosevelt, a statement that if the bill is passed through congress as introduced the municipal bond firms would go out of business and that the saleability of government bonds would be destroyed.

"The bill in its present form," said Mr. Reyburn, "with its provisions restricting and arbitrarily fixing amounts and terms of capital and capital security credit should not be enacted. I believe that the securities act of 1933, similar in many respects, does serious injury to industry, commerce, and trade, and if not amended, will also cause great harm to both labor and the consumer.

"Credit cannot be supplied to industrial and commercial trade and financial transactions for either capital or operating needs safely and economically under the rigid directions of a general law. In my opinion, it can not be economically provided or compeled by governmental bureaus."

C.E.Parker Represents RFC in Rock Island Road's Case

Attorney Charles E. Parker of the firm of Hopkins, Starr & Goodman states that he represented the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the federal District court in the Rock Island railroad bankruptcy case. THE TRIBUNE yesterday erroneously reported that Leo J. Hassenauer, first assistant United States district attorney, represented the RFC. Mr. Hassenauer represented the government, but not the RFC.

SELLING WAVE FORCES GRAIN PRICES LOWER

Mild Liquidation in Oats Starts Downturn.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Mild liquidation developed in May oats yesterday which started a selling movement in other grains that was not halted until wheat and corn had dropped about 1 cent each from the previous close.

May oats sold down to 33¼ cents, ⅞ of a cent under Tuesday's finish and reaching the lowest level since Nov. 1. Cash interests and shorts bought on the break while some buying of oats against sales of corn appeared.

A moderate rally from the inside levels followed but the finish was ⅜ to ⅝ of a cent lower with May at 33⅝ cents.

Wheat was ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent lower Wheat was ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent lower, corn was off ⅝ to ¾ of a cent, rye lost ½ to ⅞ of a cent, while barley declined 1 cent.

Uncertainty Increases.

For many weeks there was fairly general buying of oats in small lots on the assumption the abnormally small crop of 772,000,000 bushels harvested in 1933 would ultimately result in a scarcity of supplies.

Demand for cash oats, however, has been of a hand to mouth character for many weeks, with the visible supply of around 41,000,000 bushels only 1,000,000 bushels less than 5 years ago.

Market uncertainties which were more marked and many scattered longs liquidated their holdings. Sentiment was extremely bearish toward the end of the session and the weakness in stocks and cotton which developed after the grain markets closed intensified this feeling. Many traders believe general liquidation in the May deliveries had started and more or less uneasiness was noted in the comment of traders.

Bulk of Open Interest in May.

There is an open interest of around 301 million bushels in all grain futures of which 223 million is in the May option. On Tuesday sales of all grain futures aggregated 6,278,000 bushels, the smallest for a full business day since August 14, 1933, when business was restricted by the limits placed on daily price fluctuations.

Crop reports on winter wheat from Kansas were more favorable, and crop expert H. C. Donovan of Thomson & McKinnon said recent rains had saved many fields that were regarded as certain to be abandoned previous to receiving moisture.

Winnipeg wheat was ⅜ to ½ cent lower at the close, while Liverpool dropped ⅛ to ⅜ cents, prospects of large Argentine exports depressing the latter market.

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, Mass., March 7.—Despite weakening trends in ¼ blood fleeces, the general situation in the Boston wool market was considered strong. Supplies were limited, and imports must be depended upon prior to the marketing of the new domestic clip if consumption is anywhere near normal.

LONDON WOOL.

LONDON, March 7.—(AP)—A better selection of wool was offered at today's auction. It consisted of 7,304 bales, of which 5,936 were sold. There was a satisfactory demand, and good quality wools were purchased by home and German buyers. There were some withdrawals, owing to firm limits.

DECLINE IN GRAIN, COTTON HELPS CARRY LARD DOWN

Scattered selling, due to weakness in grains, stocks, and cotton, particularly toward the last, carried prices on lard futures 5 to 10 cents lower yesterday. Business in all was fair, with little inquiry for cash lots from abroad.

Cash lard prices were off 10 cents on regular and loose, the latter being $6.20 and the former $6.45. Leaf lard was unchanged at $6.50.

Bellies were 10 cents lower on May, with no change in the more deferred months. Cash bellies were off 12½ cents to $8.12½. Prices:

UNSETTLEMENT GRIPS LIVE STOCK; HEAVY HOGS GAIN

Cattle Move Lower, but Lambs Rally.

Live stock markets became unsettled again yesterday, influenced by sharp decline in grains and the lack of action in the stocks. A two way trade developed for hogs, lightweights sinking 5 to 10 cents at the close, while medium and heavy butchers were strong to 10 cents higher.

Anything with weight held the slight advance through to the close, in face of the lower tendency in lard yesterday and the draggy condition of the wholesale pork trade. The mild rally in butchers carried the medium weight hogs to the top of the price list, while lightweights of good quality sold anywhere from 10 to 25 cents under the top quotations.

Heretofore only the 190 to 220 pound averages have been eligible to the top. Yesterday's peak of $4.65 was paid for prime 240 pound butchers, while numerous sales of 250 to 260 pound averages were made up to $4.60. Very little averaging under 185 pounds brought more than $4.50.

Average Up 5 Cents.

Most of the 2,450 hogs bought for the relief corporation averaged from 180 to 240 pounds and cost $4.50 and $4.55 mostly. Including these hogs, the general average price at $4.45 showed 5 cents advance over the preceding session, but it still is 30 cents under a week ago Monday.

The quality of hogs has been on the downgrade the last ten days and choice hogs are hard to obtain. This gradual deterioration evidences the end of the winter season and supplies are expected to remain light for the next few weeks.

Cattle salesmen were disappointed with the behavior of the cattle market on light supplies yesterday. Anticipating a stronger trend sellers started out asking higher prices, but reports from the wholesale beef trade were discouraging.

Most Grades Decline.

The better grades of light and heavy retained Tuesday's gain, but the rank and file ruled weak to slightly lower, some late bids indicating as much as 25 cents decline. Notwithstanding the lower trend for the bulk new highs were made by cattle of show type. Prime 1,318 pound steers sached $7.35, while 1,203 pound averages were sold up to $7.40 and 1,112 pound long yearlings reached $7.50, the top for the day.

Lambs scored a mild rally yesterday on some of the smallest supplies of slaughter stock in years. Only 5,000 arrived at Chicago. Buyers were out early, but bought cautiously at steady to 10 cents higher quotations, larger interests paying up to $9.25, while shippers bought at $9.35 in the better grades of wooled stock.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Miscellaneous.

MEN—LIVING ON NORTH SIDE OR IN northern suburbs, attention! The last 9 days of Feb. I made $299.00. I made $148.50 in one day! This beats my record for several months past. I came into this work from a mechanical trade and have helped develop men who were in business, professional men, and others from many fields who, like myself, much prefer very large cash com.-bonus incomes than ordinary business and trade uncertainties. Our company has made a wonderful reputation in the electrical unit field—and owns and operates several factories in the world. Here is how good this business is: During the bank moratorium a year ago I got currency for my pay, and so did all the other men nationally! But this work isn't easy. It is hard—and so is everything else worth wanting. It is steady, has no seasons, and calls for no investment, purchase or deposit on your part. If I think you can do this job I will give you my sincerest personal help—and if I don't think you are the right man I will tell you so, and want you to come to me with the same frankness.
I will look for you at 2:00 p. m. Thurs., March 8, in Room 215 at 1046 Wilson-av. My name is T. N. Lind.

RESIDENTS OF DOWNERS GROVE, WHEATon, Lombard, Glen Ellyn, Palos Park, Elmhurst, Clarendon Hills, Westmont, Western Springs, Hinsdale, West Chicago, etc., interested in something permanent that will pay them from the start and more later with large com.-bonus cash, will be here at 1:00 p. m. sharp, Thurs., March 8—no matter what their past experience has been. Married men supporting families preferred, capable of starting out on a self-supporting basis, and rapidly adding to their incomes. We shall select a few residents of these towns and prefer men with cars. We have placed numerous men in splendid positions, and in the electrical unit field we hold a place of highest honor and most remarkable progress. No cost to those selected. In adding to our force at this time we must have men who are as dependable and as earnest workers as those we now have. You will come Thursday at the time specified to Room 18, Ross Bldg., 5106 Main-st., Downers Grove.

MEN—LIVING IN LAKE FOREST, DEERfield, Highwood, Antioch, Woodstock, Northbrook, Gray's Lake, Fox Lake, Barrington, and other Lake Co. towns who have ambition, have families, own and drive their cars, are not on relief, desire an opportunity to get into perm. business where com.-bonus income will grow—will accept this invitation. I represent a large, successful elec. unit company, with wonderful success record—and we shall put on a few more acceptable men. Ask for Paul Goble at 10:00 a. m., Fri., March 9, Deerpath Inn., Lake Forest. No investment involved.

Position of Importance.

Large local retail merchant operating nine branch stores has openings in his household utilities department for two men, not under 25, who are looking for a permanent connection with a future. USED AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY IF YOU BUY A CAR FROM STUDEBAKER

Studebaker's bargains are so outstanding that in many cases a used car purchased from Studebaker is worth twice the value—if judged by competitive offerings. And remember, Studebaker gives you five days' driving trial with each sale.

1932 PONTIAC.

A De Luxe sport model. We recommend this as the outstanding coupe value in town. It's in the finest of condition. Has wire wheels, side mounts, rumble seat. Special, $395.

1933 STUDEBAKER.

A recent 6 sedan that was used as a demonstrator. Has adv. free wheeling, automatic starting, automatic choke, safety glass. Positively looks and runs as if never driven a mile. It's a de luxe model. Only $795.

1932 FORD V.

A beautiful de luxe roadster, finished smart color. Has a big rumble seat. The interior, motor, and tires seems brand new. Has wire wheels, side mounts, metal covers, etc. Only $365.

1932 STUDEBAKER.

You'll be forced to admit it if you see this magnificent sedan, that it's a real beauty. And it runs like clockwork. Many extras; also wire wheels. It's a real buy at only $575.

1930 LA SALLE.

Some lucky buyer is going to get the bargain of a lifetime in this fine V-8 sedan. Nice appointments and a number of extras. It's 100 per cent in every detail. Special today, $495.

1932 HUPMOBILE.

Really this Hupp is the last word for beautiful appearance and snappy performance. It's a fine purchase in a sedan for merely $495.

1932 ESSEX.

Here's an auto that was owned by a wealthy family who gave it the finest of care. Today it will still give new car satisfaction. Now $375.
